Nixon Plans Telethon On Election Eve

Both Nominees Step Up Final Bids For Votes

By UPI

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy Saturday night stepped up their final drives for votes in the closing days of the election campaign.

Nixon, touring California, announced plans for an unprecedented nationwide four-hour appearance Monday afternoon, during which he will answer questions telephoned to his TV studio in Detroit from all parts of the country.

ASK EQUAL TIME

Democratic National Chairman Henry M. Jackson estimated that the TV time will cost the Republicans $500,000. He said it indicated the GOP has become frantic over election prospects.

The American Broadcasting Co., which will carry the telethon, offered to sell Kennedy equal time but the Democratic National Committee said it had to reject the plan.

"We are not negotiating with ABC for the purchase of this time," a spokesman said. "We cannot afford it. We have hoped that Mr. Nixon would accept the Senator's invitation to a fifth radio-tv debate."

An ABC spokesman said the network had offered to sell an equal amount of time to the Democrats, and suggested that Nixon, who had been scheduled to appear from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. est, be on the air from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m. and 5:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. It offered Kennedy the periods from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. to 5:30 p. m., and 6:30 to 7 p.m.

The network declined to disclose the cost of the program.

Kennedy, in a speech Saturday night in New York before a national television audience, pledged to "get this country to work" if elected and said he wanted to be known as a president "who not only prevented war but won the peace."

Nixon's telethon, which will be paid for by the Republican National Campaign Organization, will be the first such program ever attempted on a national scale by a presidential candidate.

Volunteers will man the 100 telephones at station WXYZ in Detroit and will relay the questions to the Vice President.

Bill Stover, a Nixon aide setting up the program in Detroit, said the volunteers "will take calls

Kasavubu May Make Personal Protest To Dag

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu will fly to New York Sunday to protest to United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold against alleged U.N. interference in the Congo's internal affairs, sources close to the president said Saturday.

Plans for the trip were reported as Malayan U.N. troops cruised through this tense capital in armored cars and Tunisian soldiers of the U.N. force moved into the south Kasai area where serious disturbances had flared.

At the same time the Congolese army broke its pledge to remain in barracks outside Leopoldville and resumed patrols through the capital. No violence was reported immediately, however, as the Congolese and the U.N. patrols roved about the city.

(Moscow radio, in a broadcast heard in London, charged that the United States had made "a direct provocation against the Congo and a challenge to the United Nations" by inviting officers of Congolese Col. Joseph Mobutu's army to Washington.)

State Baptists Meet Tuesday

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—The 113th annual meeting of the Louisiana Baptist Convention will convene here Tuesday with more than 2,000 delegates expected to attend.

Highpoint of the three-day convention will be the dedication of the new Louisiana Baptist headquarters here.

Dr. Ramsey Pollard of Memphis, Tenn., president of the Southern Baptist convention, will be one of the convention's featured speakers.

Harold Abbott of Shreveport is convention president. His successor will be elected Wednesday.

600,000 In State May Go To Polls

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Louisiana votes Tuesday against a back-drop of legislative attempts to thwart a federal court order to integrate New Orleans public schools.

More than 600,000 of the state's 1,152,151 registered voters are expected to vote for President, U.S. Senator, Congressmen and local officials, as well as to make their way through an unprecedented total of 55 constitutional amendments.

The Legislature is holding a 12-day special session called by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis in a last-ditch effort to prevent integration. Five Negro girls are due to be admitted to the first grade of New Orleans schools Nov. 14.

BACK KENNEDY

Sen. John F. Kennedy is favored to bring the state's 10 electoral votes into the Democratic column for only the second time since 1944. President Eisenhower took the state by some 86,000 votes in 1956 and it backed the Dixiecrats in 1948.

Gov. Davis has not made an endorsement, but most state leaders have come out for the Democratic ticket.

A poll this week by nine newspapers gave Kennedy 60.5 per cent, Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon 30.8 per cent and the States Rights party's slate of unpledged electors only 8.7 per cent.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., 69, is a heavy favorite to win his fifth six-year term. His opponent,

Recreation Program Is Given Nod

By SARAH LITTLE
Staff Writer

Some 2098 voters yesterday passed a 1.75 mill property tax, giving the City of Monroe the go ahead signal on a $1,625,000 recreation program.

In order to pass, the bond issue election had to have a plurality of both popular votes and assessments which it did, carrying 1476 votes against 622 for the issue with property assessments $3,776,236 to $2,208,855 for the issue in unofficial tabulations last night.

Voting was light in both Wards Three and Ten, when only 2098 voters casting ballots with 12,575 eligible to vote in the issue.

Also passed in the election yesterday was a one mill tax for maintenance for the recreation program. This was carried with a total of 1434 popular votes for the tax against 635 against it. The assessments on this total were $3,456,249 for and $2,344,995 against.

UNANIMOUS

The voting was almost unanimous for the bond issue. It was carried by popular votes in all precincts in Ward 10 going for the issue and only one assessment against.

This marks the first capital outlay that the City of Monroe has ever designated for a recreation program.

The passage of this bond issue for the recreation program will raise the property taxes of the people in the city limits of Mon-

Committee Passes Bills At Hearings

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE — Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' segregation bills aimed to block school integration ran into token opposition Saturday, but headed to the house for final passage today.

The House, in a 45 - minute session, advanced the 29 bills for a floor vote today after Davis' key committee, Judiciary B, adopted the plan at a dramatic three-hour hearing.

Three New Orleans lawmakers objected to three major bills, but other than that the 15-man committee stamped unanimous approval on legislation drafted to cope with the New Orleans integration issue.

Shortly after the House adjourned, the New Orleans delegation conducted its second private session to discuss the bills, but no announcement later.

PLAN OPPOSITION

A reliable source said, however, that several of the items would be opposed by the New Orleans legislators.

A number of New Orleans people, joined by several persons from Baton Rouge, went before the committee to object to most of the entire package of bills.

And at one point during the hearing, when tempers were flaring, Rep. E. J. Grizzaffi of St. Mary Parish declared that one bill would make a "gestapo gang" out of the state police.

The committee, headed by Rep. T. T. Fields of Farmerville, opened the hearing to opposition on each of the segregation bills.

Rep. L. D. Napper, a Ruston attorney, explained the key measure, a bill on interposition, which would permit Louisiana to bolt from federal rule.

American Slain In Reds' Ambush

SAIGON, Viet Nam (UPI) Communist terrorists killed a U.S. operations mission official Saturday in a machine-gun ambush on a main road some 70 miles east of Saigon.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said the Vietnamese driver of the American official's jeep also died in the ambush attack near the beach resort town of Long Hai.

The International Cooperation Administration identified the American victim as Dolph B. Owens, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., who arrived in South Viet Nam recently to serve as public safety adviser.

FAMILY NOTIFIED

His wife and two small daughters were en route to join Owens overseas when they learned of his death. Mrs. Owens was notified at the airport at Memphis, Tenn. She returned to Tuscaloosa.

Owens was the third American to be killed in Communist attacks in this Southeast Asian nation in the past 16 months.

Shortly after today's attack a group of deputies, expressing concern over a resurgence of Red activities, introduced a bill in the National Assembly to strengthen the armed forces and increase security against the Communists.

The embassy spokesman said the fatal ambush occurred this morning as Owens and his driver were leaving Long Hai where he

ADVANCE ARMING DATE

Air Force Strides To Cut Missile Gap

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force took a long stride toward closing the missile gap Saturday in an order advancing by a full year the date for completing the first squadron armed with Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The squadron is now slated to become operational in July 1962, and will have 55 Minuteman ICBM's placed in underground "silos" within a 115-mile radius of Malstrom Air Force Base near Great Falls, Mont.

In congressional testimony last spring the years 1962 and 1963 were given as the period in which the Soviets would enjoy the greatest numerical superiority in ICBM's because of their earlier start in the production of ocean-spanning rockets.

The advance in the Minuteman program was described by the Air Force as an effective means of narrowing a numerical gap because of the larger number of missiles per squadron. Atlas and Titan ICBM squadrons have either nine or 12 missiles each.

A spokesman said the smaller size and greater simplicity and reliability of the solid-fueled Minuteman makes possible the larger number of missiles per squadron. A Minuteman squadron with 55 missiles will have only 500 men compared with 600 men in a nine-missile Atlas squadron.

The Air Force said highly satisfactory results in preliminary tests made possible the advance in the operational date, and has also advanced the date for the first full-scale test firing on a Minuteman at Cape Canaveral Fla. This firing is now expected within a few weeks.

Sunshine Will Be Feebler For Hours Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — Sunshine reaching the earth will be a tiny bit feebler Monday.

Sunlight will be infinitesimally shaded because of Mercury, the sun's tiniest planet.

Mercury will pass between the earth and sun, in what astronomers call a transit, between 9:35 a.m. and 2:12 p.m. EST. It's an event which happens only about 13 times every 100 years on the average.

Mercury's passage can be seen only with a telescope, and then careful precautions are necessary. Looking at the sun directly would blind the eye, even with a filter.

The only way earthlings should observe the passage is to place a piece of white cardboard beyond the eyepiece of a telescope, so the sun's image is projected onto the cardboard, warn astronomers of the American Musuem - Hayden Planetarium.

Kennedy Film Branded Hoax

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System notified the New Orleans Times-Picayune Saturday it would make no further use of the controversial filmed interview of Sen. John F. Kennedy with Mr. and Mrs. John McNamara of Newport, Ky.

Republican National Chairman Thruston B. Morton has branded the interview a campaign hoax and demanded the Democrats stop showing the five-minute film.

Morton said the film on medical care for the aged "has been exposed as a deliberate deception."

He made public an affidavit from Dr. L. Howard Schriver of the Ohio Blue Shield medical insurance plan showing that insurance covered all but $146.25 of McNamara's $619.60 total hospital and medical expenses for an operation resulting from a fall from a ladder

Judge Puts Pressure On Finch Jury

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The pressure was on Saturday for the jury in the Finch trial to bring in a verdict. But jurors failed to agree and were sent to their hotel for the weekend.

The judge worked the jurors overtime after telling them flatly that he believes the case involves "the willful and deliberate taking of a human life."

The prosecution has asked first-degree murder convictions for Dr. R. Bernard Finch, 42, handsome physician, and his mistress, Carole Tregoff, 23. They are accused of slaying the physician's estranged wife, Barbara Jean Finch, but they claim the shooting was accidental.

Superior Court Judge LeRoy Dawson kept the jury working straight through the noon hour Saturday. Bailiffs took them sandwiches and coffee. The jurors continued deliberating until 2 p.m. despite the custom for a jury to work only half a day on Saturdays. They will go back to work Monday morning.

By 2 p.m. the jury had deliberated 67 hours and 45 minutes.

"I hope to get through this case by Christmas," the judge said. "I've given up on Thanksgiving."

Man Gets Life Term For Fire Death Of Wife

CHATOM, Ala (UPI) — A 12-man circuit court jury found William E. Pace, 45, guilty of first degree murder in the fire death of his wife Saturday. He was sentenced to life in prison.

The jury deliberated only 53 minutes and recommended mercy, making the life sentence mandatory.

Pace, operator of a Mobile manufacturer's agency, was accused of setting fire to the automobile in which Mrs. Johnnie Anne Pace, 26, sat in a wooded area last May. She died of her burns about a month later in a Mobile hospital.

The state contended Pace killed his wife in order to collect her insurance to pay heavy debts.

Legislators Due To Boss Schools

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The real surprise to be revealed by segregation leaders and Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' administration is just how the Legislature proposes to run New Orleans schools.

A legislative resolution is expected to be introduced, a key informant said Saturday, setting up the mechanics for the move.

A group of legislators would be named as the real bosses of New Orleans schools, since lawmakers are considered immune from federal arrest.

Here is where the real states' rights showdown with the federal courts would come from the Legislature, for the governor himself would not have to be involved.

Gov. Davis and Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion already are under federal injunctions against further interference in the Nov. 14th integration of first grades in New Orleans schools.

Considerable legislative speculation has arisen over the question whether the special session program might throw Gov. Davis into another round with the federal courts.

The program, as Davis and others have made clear, was drafted by members of the Joint Legislation Committee on Segregation, the State Sovereity Commission and others.

For weeks, the term "legislative interposition' has been rumored, with never a clear understanding.

House Bill No. 2, the interposition measure, already has been introduced and with the other bills in the 28-bill segregation passage comes up for final House passage in the House Sunday.

One of the key measures, which has stirred protests of New Orleans lawmakers as a violation of home rule, is House Bill 18. It gives the Legislature the power to

Woman Seeing Parade Plunges 5 Stories, Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman plunged to her death from the fifth floor window of a Times Square hotel Saturday night and fell into the midst of a throng watching a torchlight parade for Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Police said the woman apparently fell while watching the parade from a window of the Hotel National at 42nd street and 7th Avenue.

As she plunged, the parade was passing the famous intersection en route to the Coliseum 18 blocks north for a giant Democratic rally.

The woman was tentatively identified from papers in her room as Mary Janet Tamburri, about 30, a city teacher who had registered at the hotel three days ago.

Nixon's Campaign Travels Set Record

WITH NIXON IN CALIFORNIA—NIA (UPI)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon's aide said Saturday that his 50-state, 64,000 mile presidential campaign will be the longest in history when he winds up in Los Angeles late Monday night on election eve.

By the time the weary Nixon and his wife, Pat, vote Tuesday in East Whittier, Calif., they will have appeared in 188 cities. The vice president plans to round out his promise to visit all 50 states by flying to Alaska.

Meantime, Nixon set out under murky skies early Saturday for a barnstorming trip in the San Francisco bay area in a final determined bid to keep California's vital 32 votes in the GOP camp next Tuesday.

Before taking off from Fresno for San Jose, Nixon received an encouraging telephone report from New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who predicted for the first time in the campaign that the GOP can carry the big empire state with its important block of 45 electoral votes.

Nixon's press secretary, Herbert G. Klein, said Rockefeller was "greatly elated" by the improved New York prospect. Nixon meantime cancelled plans to fly back to Washington Monday night and also added an additional half hour telecast for Sunday night to his heavy campaign schedule. It will be recorded in Los Angeles before he takes off for Alaska.

Seven Attempt To Leave Cuba, Are Arrested

HAVANA (UPI)—Cuban labor leader David Salvador, an early Fidel Castro supporter ousted from power by more militant Communists, Saturday was arrested as he tried to flee Cuba in a yacht.

Salvador, former head of the Cuban Labor Confederation (CTC) was seized by Fidel Castro agents at Jaimanitas Beach near Havana. Six other persons were arrested with him. The government rado confirmed their seizure.

Salvador organized the CTC for Castro in the early days of the Castro regime. He was dumped from power by Communist textile workers leader Jesus Soto.

Reports described Salvador as an ex-Red. But he once had run for councilman in his native city of Cienfuegos as a Communist Party member.

Joaquin Agramonte Molina, provincial coordinator of the Castro 26th of July movement in Camaguey Province was arrested with Salvador as was Salvador's sectary, Luisa Perez Ruiz.

The others arrested were identified as Monteagudo Ciegodeavila a pharmacist, Francisco Ramirez Rivera, a former policeman, Pedro Bello Macia, an ex-soldier and Carmen Bello Macia.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sunshine reaching the earth will be a tiny bit feebler Monday.

Sunlight will be infinitesimally shaded because of Mercury, the sun's tiniest planet.

Mercury will pass between the earth and sun, in what astronomers call a transit, between 9:35 a.m. and 2:12 p.m. EST. It's an event which happens only about 13 times every 100 years on the average.

Mercury's passage can be seen only with a telescope, and then careful precautions are necessary. Looking at the sun directly would blind the eye, even with a filter.

The only way earthlings should observe the passage is to place a piece of white cardboard beyond the eyepiece of a telescope, so the sun's image is projected onto the cardboard, warn astronomers of the American Musuem - Hayden Planetarium.

Kennedy Film Branded Hoax

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System notified the New Orleans Times-Picayune Saturday it would make no further use of the controversial filmed interview of Sen. John F. Kennedy with Mr. and Mrs. John McNamara of Newport, Ky.

Republican National Chairman Thruston B. Morton has branded the interview a campaign hoax and demanded the Democrats stop showing the five-minute film.

Morton said the film on medical care for the aged "has been exposed as a deliberate deception."

He made public an affidavit from Dr. L. Howard Schriver of the Ohio Blue Shield medical insurance plan showing that insurance covered all but $146.25 of McNamara's $619.60 total hospital and medical expenses for an operation resulting from a fall from a ladder

Air Force Strides To Cut Missile Gap

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force took a long stride toward closing the missile gap Saturday in an order advancing by a full year the date for completing the first squadron armed with Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The squadron is now slated to become operational in July 1962, and will have 55 Minuteman ICBM's placed in underground "silos" within a 115-mile radius of Malstrom Air Force Base near Great Falls, Mont.

In congressional testimony last spring the years 1962 and 1963 were given as the period in which the Soviets would enjoy the greatest numerical superiority in ICBM's because of their earlier start in the production of ocean-spanning rockets.

The advance in the Minuteman program was described by the Air Force as an effective means of narrowing a numerical gap because of the larger number of missiles per squadron. Atlas and Titan ICBM squadrons have either nine or 12 missiles each.

A spokesman said the smaller size and greater simplicity and reliability of the solid-fueled Minuteman makes possible the larger number of missiles per squadron. A Minuteman squadron with 55 missiles will have only 500 men compared with 600 men in a nine-missile Atlas squadron.

The Air Force said highly satisfactory results in preliminary tests made possible the advance in the operational date, and has also advanced the date for the first full-scale test firing on a Minuteman at Cape Canaveral Fla. This firing is now expected within a few weeks.

Judge Puts Pressure On Finch Jury

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The pressure was on Saturday for the jury in the Finch trial to bring in a verdict. But jurors failed to agree and were sent to their hotel for the weekend.

The judge worked the jurors overtime after telling them flatly that he believes the case involves "the willful and deliberate taking of a human life."

The prosecution has asked first-degree murder convictions for Dr. R. Bernard Finch, 42, handsome physician, and his mistress, Carole Tregoff, 23. They are accused of slaying the physician's estranged wife, Barbara Jean Finch, but they claim the shooting was accidental.

Superior Court Judge LeRoy Dawson kept the jury working straight through the noon hour Saturday. Bailiffs took them sandwiches and coffee. The jurors continued deliberating until 2 p.m. despite the custom for a jury to work only half a day on Saturdays. They will go back to work Monday morning.

By 2 p.m. the jury had deliberated 67 hours and 45 minutes.

"I hope to get through this case by Christmas," the judge said. "I've given up on Thanksgiving."

Man Gets Life Term For Fire Death Of Wife

CHATOM, Ala (UPI) — A 12-man circuit court jury found William E. Pace, 45, guilty of first degree murder in the fire death of his wife Saturday. He was sentenced to life in prison.

The jury deliberated only 53 minutes and recommended mercy, making the life sentence mandatory.

Pace, operator of a Mobile manufacturer's agency, was accused of setting fire to the automobile in which Mrs. Johnnie Anne Pace, 26, sat in a wooded area last May. She died of her burns about a month later in a Mobile hospital.

The state contended Pace killed his wife in order to collect her insurance to pay heavy debts.

Fair, Colder Expected Today

Fair but colder today — that is the official forecast.

The weatherman predicted last night that the high today would not be above 60 degrees. It may drop to the mid - 30's tonight.

Winds today will be northerly from three to 12 miles per hour.

The high Saturday in the Twin Cities was 76. The low recorded here was 48 degrees.

IN NEW ORLEANS

Legislators Due To Boss Schools

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The real surprise to be revealed by segregation leaders and Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' administration is just how the Legislature proposes to run New Orleans schools.

A legislative resolution is expected to be introduced, a key informant said Saturday, setting up the mechanics for the move.

A group of legislators would be named as the real bosses of New Orleans schools, since lawmakers are considered immune from federal arrest.

Here is where the real states' rights showdown with the federal courts would come from the Legislature, for the governor himself would not have to be involved.

Gov. Davis and Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion already are under federal injunctions against further interference in the Nov. 14th integration of first grades in New Orleans schools.

Considerable legislative speculation has arisen over the question whether the special session program might throw Gov. Davis into another round with the federal courts.

The program, as Davis and others have made clear, was drafted by members of the Joint Legislation Committee on Segregation, the State Sovereity Commission and others.

For weeks, the term "legislative interposition' has been rumored, with never a clear understanding.

House Bill No. 2, the interposition measure, already has been introduced and with the other bills in the 28-bill segregation passage comes up for final House passage in the House Sunday.

One of the key measures, which has stirred protests of New Orleans lawmakers as a violation of home rule, is House Bill 18. It gives the Legislature the power to

Woman Seeing Parade Plunges 5 Stories, Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman plunged to her death from the fifth floor window of a Times Square hotel Saturday night and fell into the midst of a throng watching a torchlight parade for Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Police said the woman apparently fell while watching the parade from a window of the Hotel National at 42nd street and 7th Avenue.

As she plunged, the parade was passing the famous intersection en route to the Coliseum 18 blocks north for a giant Democratic rally.

The woman was tentatively identified from papers in her room as Mary Janet Tamburri, about 30, a city teacher who had registered at the hotel three days ago.

Nixon's Campaign Travels Set Record

WITH NIXON IN CALIFORNIA—NIA (UPI)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon's aide said Saturday that his 50-state, 64,000 mile presidential campaign will be the longest in history when he winds up in Los Angeles late Monday night on election eve.

By the time the weary Nixon and his wife, Pat, vote Tuesday in East Whittier, Calif., they will have appeared in 188 cities. The vice president plans to round out his promise to visit all 50 states by flying to Alaska.

Meantime, Nixon set out under murky skies early Saturday for a barnstorming trip in the San Francisco bay area in a final determined bid to keep California's vital 32 votes in the GOP camp next Tuesday.

Before taking off from Fresno for San Jose, Nixon received an encouraging telephone report from New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who predicted for the first time in the campaign that the GOP can carry the big empire state with its important block of 45 electoral votes.

Nixon's press secretary, Herbert G. Klein, said Rockefeller was "greatly elated" by the improved New York prospect. Nixon meantime cancelled plans to fly back to Washington Monday night and also added an additional half hour telecast for Sunday night to his heavy campaign schedule. It will be recorded in Los Angeles before he takes off for Alaska.

Seven Attempt To Leave Cuba, Are Arrested

HAVANA (UPI)—Cuban labor leader David Salvador, an early Fidel Castro supporter ousted from power by more militant Communists, Saturday was arrested as he tried to flee Cuba in a yacht.

Salvador, former head of the Cuban Labor Confederation (CTC) was seized by Fidel Castro agents at Jaimanitas Beach near Havana. Six other persons were arrested with him. The government rado confirmed their seizure.

Salvador organized the CTC for Castro in the early days of the Castro regime. He was dumped from power by Communist textile workers leader Jesus Soto.

Reports described Salvador as an ex-Red. But he once had run for councilman in his native city of Cienfuegos as a Communist Party member.

Joaquin Agramonte Molina, provincial coordinator of the Castro 26th of July movement in Camaguey Province was arrested with Salvador as was Salvador's sectary, Luisa Perez Ruiz.

The others arrested were identified as Monteagudo Ciegodeavila a pharmacist, Francisco Ramirez Rivera, a former policeman, Pedro Bello Macia, an ex-soldier and Carmen Bello Macia.

act of interposition. The Supreme court has not ruled on the act of nullification was no good, but the court has not ruled out the act of interposition."

Interposition is Davis' big weapon to ward off a federal court order to integrate New Orleans schools by November 15. Actually, five Negro first graders will enter white schools in New Orleans if the legislature is unsuccessful.

But, with the House and Senate convening at 1 p.m. today, the New Orleans delegation, caucusing late Saturday, still appeared uncertain on a course to take.

Rep. Maurice Landrieu and Rep. Salvador Anzelmo, both of New Orleans, rose in the House to protest the administrations quick action in pushing the bills ahead for final adoption.

Declaring that the bills should have been heard by the city affairs committee, Landrieu said, "I think I protest for many."

Anzelmo then spoke out, "I rise to stand with Landrieu on the principle that we should stand together for law and order."

A spokesman for the delegation has said the New Orleans lawmakers will not vote as a unit while there is a general feeling that Sen. Robert Ainsworth will map their course.

Ainsworth, veteran legislator and president pro-tem of the Senate, returned to New Orleans on Friday after saying he would return to the capitol Sunday with his mind made up.

Davis' bills, which were drafted by numerous state and local officials, in effect would put the Orleans Public schools under the rule of the legislature.

The state police would be authorized to move to any point in Louisiana to "enforce law and order" while any public school ordered integrated would lose its state assistance.

Supt. Shelby M. Jackson, who testified at the committee hearing, explained that the legislation would apply to any public school in the state that was ordered to integrate.

"We must maintain the segregation of our schools," Jackson said during the hearing.

Davis is ordered by a three-judge court to keep his hands off the issue, and, in view of this, there is a possibility that he won't sign the bills now being handled in the special session.

The legislation would become law regardless.

Davis' leaders introduced the bills at the last minute Friday after days of secrecy, the house quickly referred them to Judiciary B and the hearing was set for Saturday morning.

And it was here that the first sign of open opposition was made.

Rep. Kenneth Barringer, Rep. Walter Clark and Rep. Vernon C. Gregson, all of New Orleans, voted against these items during the committee hearing:

H13 — Authorize legislature to operate public schools in parishes of more than 300,000 population. Approved 11-3.

H19 — Create board of trustees to handle public school systems in cities of over 500,000 population. Approved 12-3.

H20 — Repeal law designating superintendents of schools as treasurers of school boards. Approved 12-5.

H22 — Provide no school board or member thereof shall exercise their functions when any school under their jurisdiction has been ordered to carry on any program contrary to state law and made an act by a member in violation grounds for removal. Approved 12-5.

H23 — Authorize school boards to protect public interest in closed schools and authorize sale of abandoned school properties. Approved 12-5.

H24 — Authorize State Board of Education or State Superintendent of Education to revoke certificates of teachers who instruct classes in violation of state law or policy. Approved 12-5.

H25 — Authorize denial of promotion or graduation credit to pupils who attend schools operating contrary to state law and policy. Approved 12-5.

H26 — Repeals state law providing for nomination and election of members of Orleans Parish school board. Approved 12-5.

Besides Fields, northeast Louisiana committee members voting in favor of all the bills were Rep. Mike John Jr., Monroe, Rep. L. J. Allen, Jonesboro, and Rep. Jack Crane, Monterey.

One committee member Rep. Jesse Knowles of Lake Charles, asked Napper at the outset of the hearing if the interposition bill could block integration without the remainder of the package.

"Yes, it could," Napper answered.

Les Addison, president of an organization in Baton Rouge called "open," headed the small parade of opponents who went before the committee.

Addison, in an interview, said "open" was comprised of about 500 active members although the organization did not have membership cards.

He said the group was formed to assemble information of the "damage that has been done in other states by closing the schools."

Addison opposed most of the bills, but was joined on other items by members of New Orleans organizations interested in the school crisis.

Highlighting the opposition, however, was testimony given by Victor Bussie, Louisiana Chief of AFL-CIO.

Bussie, a powerful figure on the legislative scene, said the state AFL-CIO organization was opposed to "any law" that would close the schools.

When asked by a committeman how the AFL-CIO in Louisiana stood on segregation, Bussie answered, "I do not intend to become involved in matters of segregation and integration."

Others speaking out against the bills included Mrs. Mary Sands, president of the "Save Our Schools" organization, of New Orleans, George Dreyfus, president of the Louisiana Civil Liberties Union, Mrs. M. Gamus, a New Orleans teacher, and David Maxwell, a professor at Tulane University.

Maxwell said he feared that if the legislature took control of the Orleans schools only LSU would be left open.

"We are having a hard enough time now trying to find students in Louisiana good enough to attend Tulane," Maxwell stated.

Two Methodist ministers also appeared before the committee, the Rev. W. E. Trice, University Methodist church, and the Rev. John Wynn, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church, both of Baton Rouge.

Dr. Trice read a telegram to the committee from Bishop Aubrey G. Walton of Louisiana urging Davis to keep the schools open. He said he was appearing on behalf of Bishop Walton, but did not offer any comment.

The Rev. Wynn, however, touched off a series of heated remarks, complaining that committeemen had infringed on the rights of those who had testified.

He charged that committeemen asked "loaded questions," then got into an exchange with Fields and Rep. Ford Stinson of Bossier, who both reminded him they were Methodists.

Once, John asked Mrs. Sands if her organization had a better plan for the New Orleans issue than the legislature.

"We've been waiting for the legislature to produce a plan that would work," she answered as applause erupted.

Mrs. Sands was joined by other organizational spokesman in telling the committee they wanted the New Orleans schools kept open.

They included Mrs. Betty Wisdom, Independent Women's Organizations of New Orleans, Mrs. Katherine Wright, SOS, of New Orleans, and C. E. Richards, New Orleans group for public education.

Once Addison produced a package which he said contained petitions with over 1,000 signautres requesting the legislature to keep the schools open.

He was handed additional petitions with about 500 signatures.

Then Fields came up with a huge bundle of signatures which he said Davis received from citizens encouraging him to block integration if it meant closing the schools.

"These six telegrams were sent urging the governor to keep the schools open at all costs," Fields said.

Napper and Rep. John Garrett, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, of Haynesville explained a majority of the bills, assisted by Rep. Risley Triche, a Napoleonville lawyer.

Grizzaffi, the outspoken solon from St. Mary rose before the committee to suggest that one bill would convert the state police into a "gestapo gang."

Sen. Kelly Gravois of Plaquemines parish spoke in behalf of the bills.

Other members of the committee included Rep. James Beeson, Jefferson, Rep. Curtis Boozman, Natchitoches, Rep. Fred Decuir, Iberia, Rep. Herbert Fondren, St. Mary, Rep. Reeves Morgan, E. Feliciana, and Rep. Elmer Tapper, St. Bernard.

Plans To Visit Tito

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Sekou Toure of Guinea will visit Yugoslavia in late November or December, a spokesman for President Tito reports.

BARBARA FLINN, 9-year-old fourth grader, smiles as she displays a letter and autographed photo from Vice President Richard Nixon. Someone spread the rumor that if Nixon was elected president, children will have to go to school on Saturdays. This worried Barbara and she wrote the Republican presidential nominee, assuring him of her support, and put the question to him. Nixon replied, thanking Barbara for her support and said the matter of attending school on Saturdays is for local and state officials to decide and is not in the jurisdiction of a federal official such as the President or Vice President. step in and take control of the New Orleans schools.

The proposed resolution, which has not been introduced, would not spell out how the Legislature would take charge. It merely would outline the procedure.

With a committee of lawmakers in charge of the schools, any federal court injunctions then would have to be aimed at the legislators who would represent the entire Legislature.

The informant said the proposal might be introduced later as a resolution. The Legislature, can if it wants, suspend the rules and act on resolutions quickly, without long formalities involved in passage of bills.

At this stage, the informant did not make clear whether this proposal actually was ready, whether it was still being discussed, or whether the final decision even had been made to introduce it.

So this final step still carries an air of uncertainty.

An administration floor leader said Friday no more bills would be introduced but resolutions can be handed in any time.

Judge Puts Pressure On Finch Jury

This is the second trial for the pair.

The jury in the first trial was discharged after it had deliberated for 37 hours and 30 minutes without reaching a verdict.

The jury in the second trial was called before Judge Dawson Friday, and he electrified the defendants, lawyers, jurors and courtroom audience by commenting in strong terms on the evidence in the case. Dr. Finch and Miss Tregoff sobbed while he talked.

"The explanation given by the defendant Finch," said the judge, "as to the circumstances surrounding the firing of the fatal shot to me does not sound reasonable in any of its aspects, and it appears to me to have been concocted by him in an attempt to justify what is shown by the evidence, in my opinion, to be the willful and deliberate taking of human life."

Tennessee Man Returned Here On Theft Charge

Monroe police authorities have returned a Dyer, Tenn., man from Lafayette to answer charges that he took two shotguns from the home of an acquaintance here in a dispute over money he said the Monroe man owed him.

Robert Franklin Hale, 24, was booked at police headquarters about 2 p.m. yesterday, then transferred to the parish jail on felony theft charges.

Police said R. L. Williams, 102 Auburn St., Monroe complained Friday that Hale entered his home and took a .16 gauge shotgun valued at $165 and a .410 automatic shotgun valued at $87.50.

Williams said he called Hale in Lafayette and asked for the return of the guns. However, Hale refused, Williams told police.

Monroe police wired Lafayette police who arrested Hale and held him until Monroe authorities arrived to bring him to Monroe.

Hale had not made bond for his release late yesterday afternoon.

Lawmaker Asks Passage Of Amendment 36

BATON ROUGE (Staff Special) — Rep. E. J. Grizzaffi of St. Mary Parish urged north Louisiana voters Saturday to vote for proposed constitutional amendment no. 36.

Grizzaffi explained that the amendment would permit the Morgan City Harbor district to float a $10-million bond issue to improve the channel from Morgan City to the Gulf of Mexico.

The amendment is subject to the approval of the Morgan City people, Grizzaffi added.

"If we can get this amendment passed, the channel from Morgan City to the Gulf will be cleaned out, giving Louisiana a waterway from the Gulf to Shreveport to the west and Monroe to the east," Grizzaffi stated.

He explained that the project has received the endorsement of the legislature and added that during the current special session support had been offered by Rep. Lawrence Gibbs, Monroe, Sen. Jamar Adcock, Monroe, Rep. T. T. Fields and Sen. B. R. Patton, both of Farmerville, Rep. L. D. Napper, Ruston, and Rep. Lasley Downes, Rayville.

"I understandt he civic leaders of Monroe are interested in improving the port facilities of the Ouachita River," Grizzaffi said. "This amendment giving the state a waterway from the Gulf to Monroe would be a great help."

In addition, Grizzaffi touched on the industrial movement southward and said the project would help Louisiana relocate industry in this state.

Recreation Program Is Given Nod

roe to an estimated 2.75 mills or $2.75 per $1,000 assessment.

City officials were jubilant last night when the final total came in some time around 11 p.m. showing that the issue had passed almost two to one for the issue in every precinct.

The $1,625,000 recreation program calls for four recreation centers, two swimming pools, six ballfields, nine tennis courts, picnic areas and playground equipment for small tots.

This program is similar to the $1,650,000 recreation program proposed in the defeated bond issue of December, 1957. The 1957 issue, which was a five phase program calling for $9,080,000 total was defeated by a large majority.

Plans for the recreation facilities in this bond issue include:

Two white recreation centers at Parkview and Oaklawn Streets on the Southside, and near Westminister Street and the Sterlington Road in the College area.

The Parkview center will incorporate a swimming pool, three tennis courts and the center itself, with main offices located at this site. The college area center will have two tennis courts.

Two recreation centers for Negroes on Berg Jones Lane and Renwick Street, with a swimming pool at the Renwick Street center. Both Negro centers will house two tennis courts each.

Each of the four centers will have a gymnasium, game room, club rooms, dark room, small kitchen, handcraft and art rooms, and concession lobby.

Jack Hesketh, recreation director, said that with these facilities, the department will be able to inaugurate an accelerated program for all ages. Girls and boys, as well as adults and elderly people will be able to share in the program and the new facilities.

All kinds of quiet games, plus volleyball, badminton, ping pong, baton twirling, cooking classes for young girls, and supervised baseball parks will be offered. Swimming pools will allow swimming meets with other cities' teams as well as contests among local people of the same age groups.

Hesketh looks forward to the new centers provided by this 1.75 millage tax as a means of preventing juvenile delinquency. Lack of anything to do is often the cause of delinquency, and the recreation program will provide plenty for youngsters to do.

Officials returns for this election will be announced Monday after the city council meets and runs official tallies. The council will meet at 10 a.m. for the count.

Voting by precincts, including the popular vote and the assessment, may be seen in the charts shown on Page 5-A.

Police Probing Pair Of Thefts

Monroe police are investigating two thefts reported yesterday.

E. N. Kyzer, 1007 St. John St., Monroe, told police his daughter's bicycle was stolen from his home sometime Friday night or Saturday.

It was described as a 26 inch girls blue and white vehicle with chrome wheels. The bicycle had no handle bar grips, but was equipped with a rear luggage carrier.

In a separate case, B. D. Robinson, 604 Jack McEnery, Monroe, complained a number of items of clothing valued at some $72 was taken from the backyard clothes line sometime Friday night.

Drunk Driving Charges Filed

Two local men were arrested yesterday by Monroe police and charged with operating motor vehicles while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

Wilson Degeyter, 50, 4200 South Grand St., Monroe, was picked up in the 800 block of Jackson about 1 a.m. yesterday.

He posted a $500 bond and is slated to appear in city court for trial November 9. He was also charged with disturbing the peace.

John H. Martin, 42, 300 North Third St., West Monroe, was arrested at Fifth and DeSiard Streets.

He is being held in city jail under a $438 bond.

Youth 'Better' Following Fall

An 11-year-old Monroe boy injured critically Friday in a fall from a sycamore tree was reported "much better" in St. Francis hospital here yesterday.

Gary Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coy A. Boyd, 232 Pargoud Drive, sustained a fractured skull [illegible] falling about 15 to 20 feet from the tree.

The elder Boyd is a Monroe postal employee.

The boy's parents said he apparently had been swinging from a limb by his legs when the accident occurred about 4:55 p.m.

H25 — Authorize denial of promotion or graduation credit to pupils who attend schools operating contrary to state law and policy. Approved 12-3.

H26 — Repeals state law providing for nomination and election of members of Orleans Parish school board. Approved 12-3.

Besides Fields, northeast Louisiana committee members voting in favor of all the bills were Rep. Mike John Jr., Monroe, Rep. I. J. Allen, Jonesboro, and Rep. Jack Crane, Monterey.

One committee member Rep. Jesse Knowles of Lake Charles, asked Napper at the outset of the hearing if the interposition bill could block integration without the remainder of the package.

"Yes, it could," Napper answered.

Les Addison, president of an organization in Baton Rouge called "open," headed the small parade of opponents who went before the committee.

Addison, in an interview, said "open" was comprised of about 500 active members although the organization did not have membership cards.

He said the group was formed to assemble information of the "damage that has been done in other states by closing the schools."

Addison opposed most of the bills, but was joined on other items by members of New Orleans organizations interested in the school crisis.

Highlighting the opposition, however, was testimony given by Victor Bussie, Louisiana Chief of AFL-CIO.

Bussie, a powerful figure on the legislative scene, said the state AFL-CIO organization was opposed to "any law" that would close the schools.

When asked by a committeman how the AFL-CIO in Louisiana stood on segregation, Bussie answered, "I do not intend to become involved in matters of segregation and integration."

Others speaking out against the bills included Mrs. Mary Sands, president of the "Save Our Schools" organization, of New Orleans, George Dreyfus, president of the Louisiana Civil Liberties Union, Mrs. M. Gamus, a New Orleans teacher, and David Maxwell, a professor at Tulane University.

Maxwell said he feared that if the legislature took control of the Orleans schools only LSU would be left open.

"We are having a hard enough time now trying to find students in Louisiana good enough to attend Tulane," Maxwell stated.

Two Methodist ministers also appeared before the committee, the Rev. W. E. Trice, University Methodist church, and the Rev. John Wynn, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church, both of Baton Rouge.

Dr. Trice read a telegram to the committee from Bishop Aubrey G. Walton of Louisiana urging Davis to keep the schools open. He said he was appearing on behalf of Bishop Walton, but did not offer any comment.

The Rev. Wynn, however, touched off a series of heated remarks, complaining that committeemen had infringed on the rights of those who had testified.

He charged that committeemen asked "loaded questions," then got into an exchange with Fields and Rep. Ford Stinson of Bossier, who both reminded him they were Methodists.

Once, John asked Mrs. Sands if her organization had a better plan for the New Orleans issue than the legislature.

"We've been waiting for the legislature to produce a plan that would work," she answered as applause erupted.

Mrs. Sands was joined by other organizational spokesman in telling the committee they wanted the New Orleans schools kept open.

They included Mrs. Betty Wisdom, Independent Women's Organizations of New Orleans, Mrs. Katherine Wright, SOS, of New Orleans, and C. E. Richards, New Orleans group for public education.

Once Addison produced a package which he said contained petitions with over 1,000 signautres requesting the legislature to keep the schools open.

He was handed additional petitions with about 300 signatures.

Then Fields came up with a huge bundle of signatures which he said Davis received from citizens encouraging him to block integration if it meant closing the schools.

"These six telegrams were sent urging the governor to keep the schools open at all costs," Fields said.

Napper and Rep. John Garrett, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, of Haynesville explained a majority of the bills, assisted by Rep. Risley Triche, a Napoleonville lawyer.

Grizzaffi, the outspoken solon from St. Mary rose before the committee to suggest that one bill would convert the state police into a "gestapo gang."

Sen. Kelly Gravolet of Plaquemines parish spoke in behalf of the bills.

Other members of the committee included Rep. James Beeson, Jefferson, Rep. Curtis Boozman, Natchitoches, Rep. Fred Decuir, Iberia, Rep. Herbert Fondren, St. Mary, Rep. Reeves Morgan, E. Feliciana, and Rep. Elmer Tapper, St. Bernard.

Plans To Visit Tito

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)— President Sekou Toure of Guinea will visit Yugoslavia in late November or December, a spokesman for President Tito reports.

BARBARA FLINN, 9-year-old fourth grader, smiles as she displays a letter and autographed photo from Vice President Richard Nixon. Someone spread the rumor that if Nixon was elected president, children will have to go to school on Saturdays. This worried Barbara and she wrote the Republican presidential nominee, assuring him of her support, and put the question to him. Nixon replied, thanking Barbara for her support and said the matter of attending school on Saturdays is for local and state officials to decide and is not in the jurisdiction of a federal official such as the President or Vice President. Barbara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Wayne Flinn of Oakland, Calif. (AP Wirephoto)

step in and take control of the New Orleans schools.

The proposed resolution, which has not been introduced, would not spell out how the Legislature would take charge. It merely would outline the procedure.

With a committee of lawmakers in charge of the schools, any federal court injunctions then would have to be aimed at the legislators who would represent the entire Legislature.

The informant said the proposal might be introduced later as a resolution. The Legislature, can if it wants, suspend the rules and act on resolutions quickly, without long formalities involved in passage of bills.

At this stage, the informant did not make clear whether this proposal actually was ready, whether it was still being discussed, or whether the final decision even had been made to introduce it.

So this final step still carries an air of uncertainty.

An administration floor leader said Friday no more bills would be introduced but resolutions can be handed in any time.

Judge Puts Pressure On Finch Jury

This is the second trial for the pair.

The jury in the first trial was discharged after it had deliberated for 37 hours and 30 minutes without reaching a verdict.

The jury in the second trial was called before Judge Dawson Friday, and he electrified the defendants, lawyers, jurors and courtroom audience by commenting in strong terms on the evidence in the case. Dr. Finch and Miss. Tregoff sobbed while he talked.

"The explanation given by the defendant Finch," said the judge, "as to the circumstances surrounding the firing of the fatal shot to me does not sound reasonable in any of its aspects, and it appears to me to have been concocted by him in an attempt to justify what is shown by the evidence, in my opinion, to be the willful and deliberate taking of human life."

Tennessee Man Returned Here On Theft Charge

Monroe police authorities have returned a Dyer, Tenn., man from Lafayette to answer charges that he took two shotguns from the home of an acquaintance here in a dispute over money he said the Monroe man owed him.

Robert Franklin Hale, 24, was booked at police headquarters about 2 p.m. yesterday, then transferred to the parish jail on felony theft charges.

Police said R. L. Williams, 102 Auburn St., Monroe complained Friday that Hale entered his home and took a .16 gauge shotgun valued at $165 and a .410 automatic shotgun valued at $87.50.

Williams said he called Hale in Lafayette and asked for the return of the guns. However, Hale refused, Williams told police.

Monroe police wired Lafayette police who arrested Hale and held him until Monroe authorities arrived to bring him to Monroe.

Hale had not made bond for his release late yesterday afternoon.

Lawmaker Asks Passage Of Amendment 36

BATON ROUGE (Staff Special) — Rep. E. J. Grizzaffi of St. Mary Parish urged north Louisiana voters Saturday to vote for proposed constitutional amendment no. 36.

Grizzaffi explained that the amendment would permit the Morgan City Harbor district to float a $10-million bond issue to improve the channel from Morgan City to the Gulf of Mexico.

The amendment is subject to the approval of the Morgan City people, Grizzaffi added.

"If we can get this amendment passed, the channel from Morgan City to the Gulf will be cleaned out, giving Louisiana a waterway from the Gulf to Shreveport to the west and Monroe to the east," Grizzaffi stated.

He explained that the project has received the endorsement of the legislature and added that during the current special session support had been offered by Rep. Lawrence Gibbs, Monroe, Sen. Jamar Adcock, Monroe, Rep. T. T. Fields and Sen. B. R. Patton, both of Farmerville, Rep. L. D. Napper, Ruston, and Rep. Lasley Downes, Rayville.

"I understandt he civic leaders of Monroe are interested in improving the port facilities of the Ouachita River," Grizzaffi said. "This amendment giving the state a waterway from the Gulf to Monroe would be a great help."

In addition, Grizzaffi touched on the industrial movement southward and said the project would help Louisiana relocate industry in this state.

Recreation Program Is Given Nod

roe to an estimated 2.75 mills or $2.75 per $1,000 assessment.

City officials were jubilant last night when the final total came in some time around 11 p.m. showing that the issue had passed almost two to one for the issue in every precinct.

The $1,625,000 recreation program calls for four recreation centers, two swimming pools, six ballfields, nine tennis courts, picnic areas and playground equipment for small tots.

This program is similar to the $1,650,000 recreation program proposed in the defeated bond issue of December, 1957. The 1957 issue, which was a five phase program calling for $9,080,000 total was defeated by a large majority.

Plans for the recreation facilities in this bond issue include:

Two white recreation centers at Parkview and Oaklawn Streets on the Southside, and near Westminister Street and the Sterlington Road in the College area.

The Parkview center will incorporate a swimming pool, three tennis courts and the center itself, with main offices located at this site. The college area center will have two tennis courts.

Two recreation centers for Negroes on Berg Jones Lane and Renwick Street, with a swimming pool at the Renwick Street center. Both Negro centers will house two tennis courts each.

Each of the four centers will have a gymnasium, game room, club rooms, dark room, small kitchen, handcraft and art rooms, and concession lobby.

Jack Hesketh, recreation director, said that with these facilities, the department will be able to inaugurate an accelerated program for all ages. Girls and boys, as well as adults and elderly people will be able to share in the program and the new facilities.

All kinds of quiet games, plus volleyball, badminton, ping pong, baton twirling, cooking classes for young girls, and supervised baseball parks will be offered. Swimming pools will allow swimming meets with other cities' teams as well as contests among local people of the same age groups.

Hesketh looks forward to the new centers provided by this 1.75 millage tax as a means of preventing juvenile delinquency. Lack of anything to do is often the cause of delinquency, and the recreation program will provide plenty for youngsters to do.

Officials returns for this election will be announced Monday after the city council meets and runs official tallies. The council will meet at 10 a.m. for the count.

Voting by precincts, including the popular vote and the assessment, may be seen in the charts shown on Page 5-A.

Police Probing Pair Of Thefts

Monroe police are investigating two thefts reported yesterday.

E. N. Kyzer, 1007 St. John St., Monroe, told police his daughter's bicycle was stolen from his home sometime Friday night or Saturday.

It was described as a 26 inch girls blue and white vehicle with chrome wheels. The bicycle had no handle bar grips, but was equipped with a rear luggage carrier.

In a separate case, B. D. Robinson, 604 Jack McEnery, Monroe, complained a number of items of clothing valued at some $72 was taken from the backyard clothes line sometime Friday night.

Drunk Driving Charges Filed

Two local men were arrested yesterday by Monroe police and charged with operating motor vehicles while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

Wilson Degeyter, 50, 4200 South Grand St., Monroe, was picked up in the 800 block of Jackson about 1 a.m. yesterday.

He posted a $500 bond and is slated to appear in city court for trial November 9. He was also charged with disturbing the peace.

John H. Martin, 42, 800 North Third St., West Monroe, was arrested at Fifth and DeSiard Streets.

He is being held in city jail under a $438 bond.

Youth 'Better' Following Fall

An 11-year-old Monroe boy injured critically Friday in a fall from a sycamore tree was reported "much better" in St. Francis hospital here yesterday.

Gary Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coy A. Boyd, 232 Pargoud Drive, sustained a fractured skull after falling about 15 to 20 feet from the tree.

The elder Boyd is a Monroe postal employee.

The boy's parents said he apparently had been swinging from a limb by his legs when the accident occurred about 4:55 p.m.

Approval Given School Measures

BATON ROUGE (Staff Special)—Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' key committee, the house judiciary committee, stamped approval Saturday on a package of 29 segregation bills to block school integration.

Here, in Brief, is a summary of the bills:

HB 1. Appropriate $168,000 to denray the expenses of the legislature for its 12-day meeting.

HB 2. A 15-page bill which seeks to interpose the sovereignty of the state of Louisiana against the "unlawful encroachments" by the judicial and executive branches of the federal government in the operation of the public schools of the state of Louisiana."

The proposed act seeks to prohibit anyone acting under orders of the federal court from interfering in the maintenance of any state public school.

Citing legal cases as far back as 1798, bill the bill says there is no provision in the 14th amendment of the constitution "purporting or attempting to prohibit the states from maintaining separate schools for white and Negroes."

It declares that neither congress nor the courts has authority to order integrated schools and says that in order to assume such authority there must first be an amendment to the constitution authorizing the federal government to dictate policies on the schools within the states.

Until such time as the constitution is amended, the bill sets forth, "the state of Louisiana as a loyal and sovereign state of the union shall exercise the powers reserved to it under the constitution to judge for itself of the infractions and to take such legal measures as it would deem appropriate to protect its sovereignty and the rights of its people."

The proposed act says further that the state of Louisiana has the obligation to protest its people and cited "acts of violation, thefts, immoral conducts on the part of Negro boys against white girls and negro girls immoral propositions to white boys, assault and rapes" in integrated schools of the district of Columbia as an example of what would happen in Louisiana.

Specifically, with regard to the Orleans Schools, the bill says the federal court order is an unlawful encroachment on powers reserved to the state."

HB 3. Repeals a 1956 act which establishes a method of classifying public school facilities in New Orleans to provide for the exclusive use of school facilities by white and Negro children and further states that only white teachers will teach white children and Negro teachers Negro children.

HB 4. Repeals a 1960 act which provides for the closing by the governor "of any school in the state of Louisiana in case of disorder, riots or violence or to prevent disorder, riots or violence" and provides for the protection of pay of teachers and other employes affected by closure.

HB 5. Repeals a 1960 act which authorized the governor to assume control of school boards and to manage their affairs.

HB 6. Repeals a 1960 act which authorized the governor to close public schools in interest of peace and safety of citizens.

HB 7. Repeals a 1953 act authorizing the governor to close any racially mixed school.

HB 8. Repeals a 1960 act which prohibited the furnishing of books, supplies or fund to any intergrated school.

HB 9. Repeals a 1954 act providing for operation of seperate schools for whites and Negroes.

HB 10. Amends the 1950 act to provide for the closing of schools by the governor "of any public school in the state of Louisiana in case of disorder, riots or violence or to prevent disorder, riots or violence and further to provide for the protection of pay of teachers and other employes affected by the closure.

HB 11. Authorizes the governor to close any public school which is under a court order to carry on any program or plan "not consistent with the constitution and laws of the state or the state board of education's policy."

The governor would have the power to authorize the reopening of schools when it determines it can be done peacefully and with good order.

HB 12. Authorizes the governor to close all public schools when any one of them is under a court order to carry on any program inconsistent with the constitution and laws of the state or with the policies of the state board of education.

HB 13. Prohibits the furnishing of free school books, supplies or other school funds or assistance to schools operating programs inconsistent with the constituion and laws of the state or policies of the state board of education.

HB 14. Provides that all public schools shall be operated in compliance with state law under provision of state police powers and that the state board of education shall not approve any public school which operates contrary to the state law.

It further provides that no books or school lunch funds shall be furnished to schools operating contrary to state laws.

HB 15. Authorizes employment by the state sovereignty commission of an attorney.

HB 16. Authorizes the state police to perform their duties and functions anywhere within the state, including the areas within the jurisdictional boundaries of municipalities or cities.

HB 17. Proposal withdrawn and its contents are unknown.

HB 18. Suspends powers, duties and functions of all parish school boards in parishes of over 300,000 (New Orleans) and gives the power to the legislature.

HB 19. Authorizes the legislature to appoint a board of trustees to handle funds of any school board which shall "cease legally to exist." This is a companion measure with 18.

HB 20. Repeals the section of the revised statutes which designates the superintendent of schools as the treasurer of the school board. This is a companion to No. 19.

HB 21. Authorizes the state board of education to approve and accredit all public schools, except those which are operated in violation of the constitution, the state laws or the policies of the state board of education.

HB 22. Directs that no school board of the state or any member shall exercise the functions of his office when any school or schools under their jurisdiction have been ordered to carry on a program not consistent with the laws of Louisiana.

HB 23. Provides for disposal of public school property when public schools have been ordered to close.

HB 24. Provides for revocation of the teaching certificate of any teacher who instructs a class in violation of the constitution laws of the state.

HB 24. Provides that any child attending a class which is operated in violation of the laws of the state shall not be promoted or given credit.

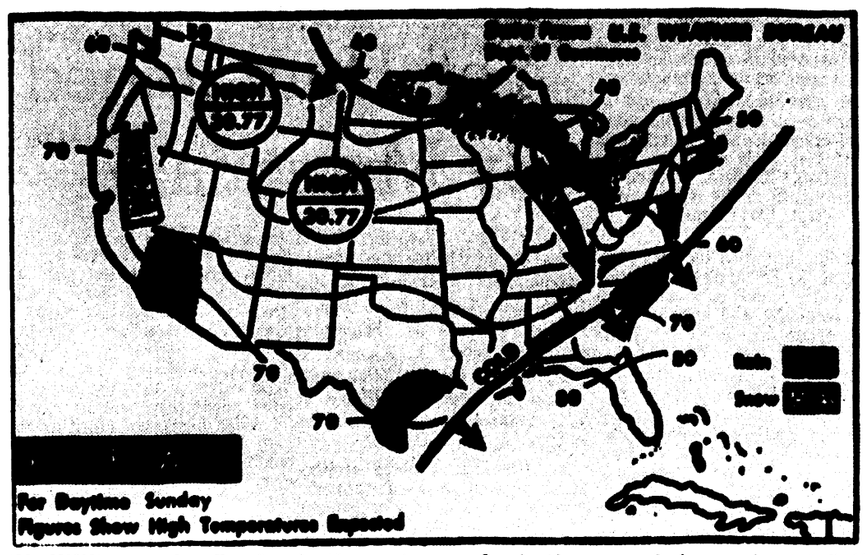
HB 26. Repeals the law which provides for nomination and election of members of the Orleans Parish School Board, a proposal which apparently would prohibit the election of a new school board.

HB 27. Provides for assignment, employment and transfer of pupils in public schools for the current school year the bill is directed at Prohibiting the transfer of Negro children to white schools under the pupil placement system.

HB 28. Deletes provisions of the section of the revised statutes which requires compulsory attendance of children in public and private schools.

HB 29. Provides for revocation of teaching certificates for any teacher in the state operated trade or vocational schools that teaches a class in violation of the state laws. This is directed against vocational schools ordered integrated by a federal court.

HB 30. Provides for the closing of any trade or vocational school which violates the constitutional laws of the state.



SHOWERS are due Sunday in the eastern coast of the Carolinas, southern California and southern Nevada and in the southern portion of Texas. Rain and snow are likely in the Lakes region and western Pennsylvania. It will be cooler in the upper Lakes and west Gulf coast, warmer in the central and southern Plains to the western part of the central Rockies and far Southwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

MAP SUMMARY

A huge mass of cool air extended over much of the country with the leading edge stretching from Southeastern Virginia into southern Texas late Saturday. Temperatures were mostly in the 30's and 40's from northern New England into the upper Mississippi Valley and over the northern half of the Rockies while the 50's prevailed over the plains from Oklahoma into the Dakotas. Readings in the 50's and 60's were common in the southern Rockies and the Pacific States although a few 70's and 80's were reported from southern California into Arizona. The 70's and 80's were reported from southern California into Arizona. The 70's and 80's were also reported from the South Atlantic States into the Gulf Region.

The leading edge of cool air was associated with precipitation in the East. Occasional rain and showers occurred from the Applachians into Southern New England and the middle Atlantic States. Skies were generally fair from the Mississippi Valley through the Plains into the Pacific Northwest.

A warming trend is anticipated from the northern Rockies into northern Texas today but temperatures will be lower than yesterday's from the Carolinas into southern Texas and from the Dakotas into the upper Mississippi Valley. Not much change is expected in the precipitation pattern in the Southwest although showers may spread into New Mexico and northern California Sunday. Snow is forecast for the Great Lakes region and is likely to be mixed with showers in the mountains of New York and Pennsylvania. One to three inches of snow may accumulate in northern Michigan.

Negro Arrested In $500 Theft

Monroe City police yesterday arrested a 43-year-old Negro, Clarence Chares for the theft of $500, $1-bills hidden in the seat of a car he was servicing.

Authorities said he admitted taking the money and that $206 was recovered.

Chares gave his address as 203 South Sixth St., Monroe. He was transferred to the parish jail on felony theft charges.

The owner of the car, Alvin Lester Shipp of Hebert, told police that he left the bills between the seat and back rest cushions of his auto while it was being serviced at a local service station Saturday.

He missed the money after he drove home, and alerted Monroe police.

Youth Caught Between Car, Tree In Crash

A West Monroe High School student was temporarily hospitalized yesterday with a pair of barked shins after he was caught in the middle of a three - car collision on Jackson Street in Monroe.

James Carl Randall, 16, 2403 North Ninth St., West Monroe, was treated and released from St. Francis Hospital yesterday afternoon. His condition was not believed serious.

Randall's troubles began as he started to walk across Jackson Street from the Hospital about 40 feet from the Oak Street intersection.

As he stepped between two parked cars, a third car driven by Mrs. Jennie B. Ragland, 62, 510 Harn St., Monroe, rammed one of the parked autos, catching his legs in a vice between two heavy bumpers.

The youth was rushed a few feet to the hospital on a stretcher and treated.

Later he was released. His condition was described as not serious.

Apparently, the extentions of the bumper of one car saved Randall a more serious injury, taking the impact as the two cars collided.

Weather Losses High

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Flood hail and other weather damage here to crops, buildings and communications is estimated at $800 million.

Local Attorney Elected Alumni Association Head

Thomas W. Leigh, Monroe attorney, was elected president of the Louisiana State University Law School Alumni Assn. in homecoming activities yesterday.

Leigh recently completed 20 years as a member and former chairman of the LSU Board of Supervisors.

First appointed to the board in 1940 by Gov. Sam H. Jones for a six year term, Leigh was reappointed to a full 14 year term in 1946 by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis.

BY COMMITTEE

Approval Given School Measures

BATON ROUGE (Staff Special)—Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' key committee, the house judiciary committee, stamped approval Saturday on a package of 29 segregation bills to block school integration.

Here, in Brief, is a summary of the bills:

HB 1. Appropriate $168,000 to denray the expenses of the legislature for its 12-day meeting.

HB 2. A 15-page bill which seeks to interpose the sovereignty of the state of Louisiana against the "unlawful encroachments" by the judicial and executive branches of the federal government in the operation of the public schools of the state of Louisiana."

The proposed act seeks to prohibit anyone acting under orders of the federal court from interfering in the maintenance of any state public school.

Citing legal cases as far back as 1798, bill the bill says there is no provision in the 14th amendment of the constitution "purporting or attempting to prohibit the states from maintaining separate schools for white and Negroes."

It declares that neither congress nor the courts has authority to order integrated schools and says that in order to assume such authority there must first be an amendment to the constitution authorizing the federal government to dictate policies on the schools within the states.

Until such time as the constitution is amended, the bill sets forth, "the state of Louisiana as a loyal and sovereign state of the union shall exercise the powers reserved to it under the constitution to judge for itself of the infractions and to take such legal measures as it would deem appropriate to protect its sovereignty and the rights of its people."

The proposed act says further that the state of Louisiana has the obligation to protest its people and cited "acts of violation, thefts, immoral conducts on the part of Negro boys against white girls and negro girls immoral propositions to white boys, assault and rapes" in integrated schools of the district of Columbia as an example of what would happen in Louisiana.

Specifically, with regard to the Orleans Schools, the bill says the federal court order is an unlawful encroachment on powers reserved to the state."

HB 3. Repeals a 1956 act which establishes a method of classifying public school facilities in New Orleans to provide for the exclusive use of school facilities by white and Negro children and further states that only white teachers will teach white children and Negro teachers Negro children.

HB 4. Repeals a 1960 act which provides for the closing by the governor "of any school in the state of Louisiana in case of disorder, riots or violence or to prevent disorder, riots or violence" and provides for the protection of pay of teachers and other employes affected by closure.

HB 5. Repeals a 1960 act which authorized the governor to assume control of school boards and to manage their affairs.

HB 6. Repeals a 1960 act which authorized the governor to close public schools in interest of peace and safety of citizens.

HB 7. Repeals a 1958 act authorizing the governor to close any racially mixed school.

HB 8. Repeals a 1960 act which prohibited the furnishing of books, supplies or fund to any intergrated school.

HB 9. Repeals a 1954 act providing for operation of seperate schools for whites and Negroes.

HB 10. Amends the 1950 act to provide for the closing of schools by the governor "of any public school in the state of Louisiana in case of disorder, riots or violence or to prevent disorder, riots or violence and further to provide for the protection of pay of teachers and other employes affected by the closure.

HB 11. Authorizes the governor to close any public school which is under a court order to carry on any program or plan "not consistent with the constitution and laws of the state or the state board of education's policy."

The governor would have the power to authorize the reopening of schools when it determines it can be done peacefully and with good order.

HB 12. Authorizes the governor to close all public schools when any one of them is under a court order to carry on any program inconsistent with the constitution and laws of the state or with the policies of the state board of education.

HB 13. Prohibits the furnishing of free school books, supplies or other school funds or assistance to schools operating programs inconsistent with the constituion and laws of the state or policies of the state board of education.

HB 14. Provides that all public schools shall be operated in compliance with state law under provision of state police powers and that the state board of education shall not approve any public school which operates contrary to the state law.

It further provides that no books or school lunch funds shall be furnished to schools operating contrary to state laws.

HB 15. Authorizes employment by the state sovereignty commission of an attorney.

HB 16. Authorizes the state police to perform their duties and functions anywhere within the state, including the areas within the jurisdictional boundaries of municipalities or cities.

HB 17. Proposal withdrawn and its contents are unknown.

HB 18. Suspends powers, duties and functions of all parish school boards in parishes of over 300,000 (New Orleans) and gives the power to the legislature.

HB 19. Authorizes the legislature to appoint a board of trustees to handle funds of any school board which shall "cease legally to exist." This is a companion measure with 18.

HB 20. Repeals the section of the revised statutes which designates the superintendent of schools as the treasurer of the school board. This is a companion to No. 19.

HB 21. Authorizes the state board of education to approve and accredit all public schools, except those which are operated in violation of the constitution, the state laws or the policies of the state board of education.

HB 22. Directs that no school board of the state or any member shall exercise the functions of his office when any school or schools under their jurisdiction have been ordered to carry on a program not consistent with the laws of Louisiana.

HB 23. Provides for disposal of public school property when public schools have been ordered to close.

HB 24. Provides for revocation of the teaching certificate of any teacher who instructs a class in violation of the constitution laws of the state.

HB 24. Provides that any child attending a class which is operated in violation of the laws of the state shall not be promoted or given credit.

HB 26. Repeals the law which provides for nomination and election of members of the Orleans Parish School Board, a proposal which apparently would prohibit the election of a new school board.

HB 27. Provides for assignment, employment and transfer of pupils in public schools for the current school year the bill is directed at Prohibiting the transfer of Negro children to white schools under the pupil placement system.

HB 28. Deletes provisions of the section of the revised statutes which requires compulsory attendance of children in public and private schools.

HB 29. Provides for revocation of teaching certificates for any teacher in the state operated trade or vocational schools that teaches a class in violation of the state laws. This is directed against vocational schools ordered integrated by a federal court.

HB 30. Provides for the closing of any trade or vocational school which violates the constitutional laws of the state.

MAP SUMMARY

A huge mass of cool air extended over much of the country with the leading edge stretching from Southeastern Virginia into southern Texas late Saturday. Temperatures were mostly in the 30's and 40's from northern New England into the upper Mississippi Valley and over the northern half of the Rockies while the 50's prevailed over the plains from Oklahoma into the Dakotas. Readings in the 50's and 60's were common in the southern Rockies and the Pacific States although a few 70's and 80's were reported from southern California into Arizona. The 70's and 80's were reported from southern California into Arizona. The 70's and 80's were also reported from the South Atlantic States into the Gulf Region.

The leading edge of cool air was associated with precipitation in the East. Occasional rain and showers occurred from the Applachians into Southern New England and the middle Atlantic States. Skies were generally fair from the Mississippi Valley through the Plains into the Pacific Northwest.

A warming trend is anticipated from the northern Rockies into northern Texas today but temperatures will be lower than yesterday's from the Carolinas into southern Texas and from the Dakotas into the upper Mississippi Valley. Not much change is expected in the precipitation pattern in the Southwest although showers may spread into New Mexico and northern California Sunday. Snow is forecast for the Great Lakes region and is likely to be mixed with showers in the mountains of New York and Pennsylvania. One to three inches of snow may accumulate in northern Michigan.

Negro Arrested In $500 Theft

Monroe City police yesterday arrested a 43-year-old Negro, Clarence Chares for the theft of 500, $1-bills hidden in the seat of a car he was servicing.

Authorities said he admitted taking the money and that $206 was recovered.

Chares gave his address as 203 South Sixth St., Monroe. He was transferred to the parish jail on felony theft charges.

The owner of the car, Alvin Lester Shipp of Hebert, told police that he left the bills between the seat and back rest cushions of his auto while it was being serviced at a local service station Saturday.

He missed the money after he drove home, and alerted Monroe police.

Youth Caught Between Car, Tree In Crash

A West Monroe High School student was temporarily hospitalized yesterday with a pair of barked shins after he was caught in the middle of a three - car collision on Jackson Street in Monroe.

James Carl Randall, 16, 2408 North Ninth St., West Monroe, was treated and released from St. Francis Hospital yesterday afternoon. His condition was not believed serious.

Randall's troubles began as he started to walk across Jackson Street from the Hospital about 40 feet from the Oak Street intersection.

As he stepped between two parked cars, a third car driven by Mrs. Jennie B. Ragland, 62, 510 Harn St., Monroe, rammed one of the parked autos, catching his legs in a vice between two heavy bumpers.

The youth was rushed a few feet to the hospital on a stretcher and treated.

Later he was released. His condition was described as not serious.

Apparently, the extentions of the bumper of one car saved Randall a more serious injury, taking the impact as the two cars collided.

Weather Losses High

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Flood hail and other weather damage here to crops, buildings and communications is estimated at $800 million.

Local Attorney Elected Alumni Association Head

Thomas W. Leigh, Monroe attorney, was elected president of the Louisiana State University Law School Alumni Assn. in homecoming activities yesterday.

Leigh recently completed 20 years as a member and former chairman of the LSU Board of Supervisors.

First appointed to the board in 1940 by Gov. Sam H. Jones for a six year term, Leigh was reappointed to a full 14 year term in 1946 by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis.

NO MAJOR VIOLENCE

Southern Schools Calmest Since Integration Decision

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Youngsters are going to school in the South this fall in the calmest atmosphere since the U. S. Supreme Court outlawed public school segregation in May, 1954.

This year, for the first time since that decision, there have been no major outbreaks of violence reported in connection with school integration, but compliance with the ruling has been slowed by court contests.

The five Deep South states of Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina still are standing firm against integration.

However, New Orleans schools are under federal court order to drop racial barriers in the first grades Nov. 14 and Atlanta public schools have been directed to integrate the 11th and 12th grades next fall.

Elsewhere in the 17 Southern and border states and the District of Columbia the number of Negroes attending school with white pupils is up about 5,400 over the figure for last spring. This represents only a fractional increase in a total enrollment of 10,123,554 pupils and 3,095,345 Negroes, however.

Southern School News, published by Southern Education Reporting Service at Nashville, Tenn., reported 768 of the 6,676 school districts in the area now are integrated. The figure includes 17 districts which admitted Negroes to formerly all-white classes for the first time this fall.

The publication said approximately 183,104 Negroes are attending schools with white persons this session as compared with 181,020 reported in the spring. Included in the figure was an estimate of 13,000 for Kentucky. That state's Department of Education late set the total at 16,329 bringing the over-all figure for the region to 186,433.

The slow rise in the number of Negroes attending schools with white pupils is due in part, at least, to use of pupil placement plans in some states and to legal maneuvering in others.

This pattern of gradual integration on a limited basis is being accepted by some Southern white persons and protested by some Negro leaders. But the net result apparently is less friction and an improving over-all picture.

Other factors include Negro emphasis on such campaigns as the sit-ins to obtain equal rights at lunch counters and restaurants and the Supreme Court's refusal to permit indefinite delay in cases involving the cities of New Orleans and Houston and the state of Delaware.

An example of the changing atmosphere in the South is the case of a 6-year-old Negro girl, Delores Jean York, who enrolled in the first grade at the Dollarway School near Pine Bluff, Ark.

Dollarway was the only new school integrated this fall in Arkansas and she was the only Negro pupil to attend that school.

In the past the state has been beset by school integration troubles including demonstrations at Hoxie in 1955, the Little Rock crisis in 1957, school closings at Little Rock and demonstrations at Van Buren in 1958, and protest rallies and a march at Little Rock in 1959.

But no trouble was reported this fall at Dollarway despite earlier protests by community leaders. Citizens Council officials conferred with the school board before classes started and said that while they were opposed to integration they were urging no interference.

The attendance of the girl at Dollarway brought to 10 the number of school districts in Arkansas in which there is some degree of integration. Negroes enrolled in predominantly white schools now total about 100 compared to 85 last spring.

Pending litigation includes challenge of the Dollarway integration plan under which only one Negro was admitted and appeal of a court order appointing the Little Rock plan as fast enough.

The Little Rock ruling by U.S. District Court Judge John E. Miller said, in effect, that Negroes must file individual suits rather than class actions. The decision could slow school desegregation if upheld by higher courts.

The nation's largest segregated school system, Houston, Tex., bowed to federal court pressure and integrated the first grades in some schools, at least to a token extent.

Several other school systems in Texas desegregated prior to this fall and before the Attorney General's office ruled schools forced to integrate by federal court orders would not lose their state aid. An estimated 3,500 Negroes are in schools with white pupils at present.

Dallas is under federal court order to integrate next fall. Integration suits have been filed at Galveston, the Northeast Houston Independent School District (not the same as the Houston School District) and Beaumont.

In Virginia 191 Negroes are attending 30 previously all - white schools compared with 103 in 19 schools last year. Ten cities or counties have intergrated schools, about half this number for the first time. There is little litigation in the state and the placement plan is in the hands of a reorganized three-man board.

Kentucky's school integration front also is quiet in contrast to the racial troubles at Sturgis and Clay in 1956 and 1957. The state Department of Education report of 16,329 Negroes enrolled in mixed classes this fall compared with 11,492 last school year and only 313 in 1955.

Six of Tennessee's 154 school districts have started desegregation. There are 313 Negroes attending previously all-white schoolas out of 19,285 Negro children in the six districts. White children in the same district total 86,427. Nashille schools are in their fourth year of stair-step integration while Knoxville city schools desegregated for the first time.

North Carolina is in its fourth year of token integration with 84 Negro children in predominantly white schools in 10 school districts. Two high schools in Yancey County integrated under federal court orders, the first time this happened in the state.

Florida now has three integrated public schools, all in Dade County (Miami). Desegregation suits are pending in Pensacola, Tampa, Daytona Beach, West Palm Beach and Miami.

HILLARY EXPEDITION

Yeti Hunt Joined By Missionary

A Methodist missionary is off on a search for the Fabled "abominable snowman" of the Himalayas. The Chicago Natural History Museum has announced that Dr. Robert L. Fleming is a member of the expedition headed by Sir Edmund Hillary of New Zealand, conqueror of the Himalayas.

Dr. Fleming, a noted ornithologist as well as a veteran missionary, was one of four persons who opened the country of Nepal to Protestant missionary work in 1954. Since 1954 he has been associated with the United Christian Mission in Nepal. His American home is Ludington, Mich.

THREE-FOLD

The purpose of the Hillary expedition is three-fold, according to the Chicago Natural History Museum: To "sustain an impartial search for evidence to prove or disprove the existence of the Yeti, or 'abominable snowman'"; to pursue exploration, mountaineering, mapping and glaciology of the mountains east and west of Mt. Everest, and to carry out extensive research as to how the human body adapts to extreme altitudes. The party began its climb in September.

Dr. Fleming is along on the expedition as a field associate in the Chicago Museum's department of zoology. The Museum said of his participation:

"Dr. Fleming, who has lived in Nepal for the past seven years, brings to the expedition an extensive knowledge of the animal life of the region which will be of especial value in the search for evidence proving or disproving the existence of the abominable snowman. In the past, Dr. Fleming has made several trips from the lowlands of Nepal to far above timberline in the Himalayas in search of speciments for the Museum's collections. Now it is expected that the Museum's study collections and its exhibits of Asian birds and other animals will be greatly enriched by the addition of many specimens from the higher reaches of the Himalayas."

BIRD STUDY

It was a bird study and bird-collection expedition by Dr. Fleming for the Chicago Museum that led to what is now an extensive Protestant mission in Nepal. In 1949 Dr. Fleming was given permission to enter Nepal, heretofore a land where Protestants were not at work, to study the bird life and obtain specimens for the Chicago Museum. A partner on the expedition was Dr. Carl C. Taylor, a Presbyterian medical missionary who kept the party in good health and performed 57 operations on Nepalese patients. Before leaving Nepal, Dr. Fleming gave his Bible to one of the members of the ruling dynasty of the country.

In 1951 Dr. Fleming was again permitted to enter to study bird life. With him were his wife, Dr. Bethel Fleming and Dr. Carl Friedricks, both medical missionaries. A dispensary was set up in the town of Tansing and 1,500 patients were treated in six weeks. People begged the doctors to establish a hospital.

It was in 1954 before Dr. Friedricks, a Presbyterian missionary from Reading, Pa., was given permission to do this. In January of that year, however, Dr. Friedricks and the Flemings were granted permission to enter and establish medical mission work.

EXTENSIVE

From those beginnings has grown an extensive work with a hospital in Kathmandu, the capital, and medical centers in three other places. The program of the United Christian Mission (interdenominational and international) also includes a girls' school, literacy work and community development projects. A small church is in Kathmandu, where there is a public worship and where Indian Christians witness to Nepalese who come to talk with them.

Dr. Fleming was born in Ludington and was educated at Albion College (A.B.), Albion, Mich.; Drew University (M.A.), Madison, N. J., and the University of Chicago (Ph. D.). Before going to Nepal, he and Mrs. Fleming served for 25 years as missionaries in Mussoorie, India, where he taught in the Woodstock School and she headed the Landour Community Hospital.

The publication said approximately 183,104 Negroes are attending schools with white persons this session as compared with 181,020 reported in the spring. Included in the figure was an estimate of 13,000 for Kentucky. That state's Department of Education late set the total at 16,329 bringing the over-all figure for the region to 186,433.

The slow rise in the number of Negroes attending schools with white pupils is due in part, at least, to use of pupil placement plans in some states and to legal maneuvering in others.

This pattern of gradual integration on a limited basis is being accepted by some Southern white persons and protested by some Negro leaders. But the net result apparently is less friction and an improving over-all picture.

Other factors include Negro emphasis on such campaigns as the sit-ins to obtain equal rights at lunch counters and restaurants and the Supreme Court's refusal to permit indefinite delay in cases involving the cities of New Orleans and Houston and the state of Delaware.

An example of the changing atmosphere in the South is the case of a 6-year-old Negro girl, Delores Jean York, who enrolled in the first grade at the Dollarway School near Pine Bluff, Ark.

Dollarway was the only new school integrated this fall in Arkansas and she was the only Negro pupil to attend that school.

In the past the state has been beset by school integration troubles including demonstrations at Hoxie in 1955, the Little Rock crisis in 1957, school closings at Little Rock and demonstrations at Van Buren in 1958, and protest rallies and a march at Little Rock in 1959.

But no trouble was reported this fall at Dollarway despite earlier protests by community leaders. Citizens Council officials conferred with the school board before classes started and said that while they were opposed to integration they were urging no interference.

The attendance of the girl at Dollarway brought to 10 the number of school districts in Arkansas in which there is some degree of integration. Negroes enrolled in predominantly white schools now total about 100 compared to 85 last spring.

Pending litigation includes challenge of the Dollarway integration plan under which only one Negro was admitted and appeal of a court order appointing the Little Rock plan as fast enough.

The Little Rock ruling by U.S. District Court Judge John E. Miller said, in effect, that Negroes must file individual suits rather than class actions. The decision could slow school desegregation if upheld by higher courts.

The nation's largest segregated school system, Houston, Tex., bowed to federal court pressure and integrated the first grades in some schools, at least to a token extent.

Several other school systems in Texas desegregated prior to this fall and before the Attorney General's office ruled schools forced to integrate by federal court orders would not lose their state aid. An estimated 3,500 Negroes are in schools with white pupils at present.

Dallas is under federal court order to integrate next fall. Integration suits have been filed at Galveston, the Northeast Houston Independent School District (not the same as the Houston School District) and Beaumont.

In Virginia 191 Negroes are attending 30 previously all - white schools compared with 103 in 19 schools last year. Ten cities or counties have intergrated schools, about half this number for the first time. There is little litigation in the state and the placement plan is in the hands of a reorganized three-man board.

Kentucky's school integration front also is quiet in contrast to the racial troubles at Sturgis and Clay in 1956 and 1957. The state Department of Education report of 16,329 Negroes enrolled in mixed classes this fall compared with 11,492 last school year and only 313 in 1955.

Six of Tennessee's 154 school districts have started desegregation. There are 313 Negroes attending previously all-white schoolas out of 19,285 Negro children in the six districts. White children in the same district total 86,427. Nashille schools are in their fourth year of stair-step integration while Knoxville city schools desegregated for the first time.

North Carolina is in its fourth year of token integration with 84 Negro children in predominantly white schools in 10 school districts. Two high schools in Yancey County integrated under federal court orders, the first time this happened in the state.

Florida now has three integrated public schools, all in Dade County (Miami). Desegregation suits are pending in Pensacola, Tampa, Daytona Beach, West Palm Beach and Miami.

HILLARY EXPEDITION

Yeti Hunt Joined By Missionary

A Methodist missionary is off on a search for the Fabled "abominable snowman" of the Himalayas. The Chicago Natural History Museum has announced that Dr. Robert L. Fleming is a member of the expedition headed by Sir Edmund Hillary of New Zealand, conqueror of the Himalayas.

Dr. Fleming, a noted ornithologist as well as a veteran missionary, was one of four persons who opened the country of Nepal to Protestant missionary work in 1954. Since 1954 he has been associated with the United Christian Mission in Nepal. His American home is Ludington, Mich.

THREE-FOLD

The purpose of the Hillary expedition is three-fold. according to the Chicago Natural History Museum: To "sustain an impartial search for evidence to prove or disprove the existence of the Yeti, or 'abominable snowman'": to pursue exploration, mountaineering, mapping and glaciology of the mountains east and west of Mt. Everest, and to carry out extensive research as to how the human body adapts to extreme altitudes. The party began its climb in September.

Dr. Fleming is along on the expedition as a field associate in the Chicago Museum's department of zoology. The Museum said of his participation:

"Dr. Fleming, who has lived in Nepal for the past seven years, brings to the expedition an extensive knowledge of the animal life of the region which will be of especial value in the search for evidence proving or disproving the existence of the abominable snowman. In the past, Dr. Fleming has made several trips from the lowlands of Nepal to far above timberline in the Himalayas in search of speciments for the Museum's collections. Now it is expected that the Museum's study collections and its exhibits of Asian birds and other animals will be greatly enriched by the addition of many specimens from the higher reaches of the Himalayas."

BIRD STUDY

It was a bird study and bird-collection expedition by Dr. Fleming for the Chicago Museum that led to what is now an extensive Protestant mission in Nepal. In 1949 Dr. Fleming was given permission to enter Nepal, heretofore a land where Protestants were not at work, to study the bird life and obtain specimens for the Chicago Museum. A partner on the expedition was Dr. Carl C. Taylor, a Presbyterian medical missionary who kept the party in good health and performed 57 operations on Nepalese patients. Before leaving Nepal, Dr. Fleming gave his Bible to one of the members of the ruling dynasty of the country.

In 1951 Dr. Fleming was again permitted to enter to study bird life. With him were his wife, Dr. Bethel Fleming and Dr. Carl Friedricks, both medical missionaries. A dispensary was set up in the town of Tansing and 1,500 patients were treated in six weeks. People begged the doctors to establish a hospital.

It was in 1954 before Dr. Friedricks, a Presbyterian missionary from Reading, Pa., was given permission to do this. In January of that year, however, Dr. Friedricks and the Flemings were granted permission to enter and establish medical mission work.

EXTENSIVE

From those beginnings has grown an extensive work with a hospital in Kathmandu, the capital, and medical centers in three other places. The program of the United Christian Mission (interdenominational and international) also includes a girls' school, literacy work and community development projects. A small church is in Kathmandu, where there is a public worship and where Indian Christians witness to Nepalese who come to talk with them.

Dr. Fleming was born in Ludington and was educated at Albion College (A.B.), Albion, Mich.; Drew University (M.A.), Madison, N. J., and the University of Chicago (Ph. D.). Before going to Nepal, he and Mrs. Fleming served for 25 years as missionaries in Mussoorie, India, where he taught in the Woodstock School and she headed the Landour Community Hospital.

Trio Arrested In Theft Of Paper Racks

West Monroe police yesterday announced the arrest of three local youths late Friday for the theft of a number of Morning World newspaper racks over the past few weeks.

George S. Humphries, 17, 906 Crosley St., West Monroe, and two unidentified juveniles have been charged with felony theft.

Humphries is being held in city jail, charged with the theft of five of the racks. One of the unidentified youths is in the parish juvenile detention home and the other has been released in the custody of his parents.

About 20 racks have been stolen police said. Seven were taken from within the city limits and 13 from outside.

The youths told police they dumped 16 in Tony Bayou, three in Cheniere Lake at the dam and one off the Darbonne bridge.

Police recovered one from Tony Bayou. It was valued at $35.

Humphries and the others will probably be tried Monday.

Authorities said the case was solved with the help of two West Monroe citizens, and the three youths were arrested at their homes Friday.

They told police they waited until no one was around the racks, then they would drive up and throw them in the back of the car.

Youth Meet Underway In Monroe

Fog shrouded the plane flight of several ranking Salvation Army officials to Monroe for a two-state youth conference yesterday, but the messages they brought were aimed at patterning a brighter outlook for the 200 delegates from areas of Arkansas and Louisiana.

Among those on the flight from New Orleans were Commissioner and Mrs. William Davidson. He is territorial commander for 15 southern states, District of Columbia and Mexico, and operates out of Atlanta, Ga.

He and other Army officials were here for principal addresses at the two - day conference which will wind up this morning at the Frances Hotel.

Both the commissioner and his wife are natives of Ireland and received their education there and at the International Training College in London, England.

The commissioner spoke of the mission of his organization, which had its start in 1865 in London, as the result of the work of William and Catherine Booth.

"The Salvation Army provides facilities for physical, moral and spiritual development and seeks to develop the buddy idea. That is, we have responsibility for others," he explained.

Continuing, he said, "Our purpose is to inculcate Christian principles and have something to live for, someone to live with—that, of course, being Jesus Christ. We endeavor also, of course, to encourage the development of a Christian family where rule of love and rightenousness predominates. We believe religion is neither an opiate nor an option. It is an obligation."

Delegates to the youth conference are in the 14 to 30 year age group.

He explained, "Some of the young people are born into the homes of Salvation Army families, but the greater number are attracted to us by songs, music, games, moving up to speaking contests, and open air evangelism. Some of the young accompany older people on hospital visitations in order that their sympathies may be aroused and service becomes greater than self."

A further light on the mission of the Salvation Army was explained by Commissioner Davidson

"In days like the present, the Salvation Army believes a revelation will be more effective than a revolution, to discover an answer for the needs of the world."

The Army's work is now being carried on in 100 countries and colonies. Said the the commissioner, "We were expelled from Russia in the 1917 Kerensky revolution and from China during recent years."

Captain W. E. Grantham, commander of the local Salvation Army unit, said delegates attending the conference were a select group, with 16 of them being from the Monroe area.

"We feel in the Salvation Army that we are called for this type of work," explained the captain. "Workers must have a high school education, most are college trained, "We have two - year courses at Salvation Army colleges in New York, Atlanta, San Francisco and Chicago to provide training in religion, business and social welfare."

Captain Grantham gave this insight into the Army's objectives:

"We feel if man is to be rehabilitated it will be because he has met his God. We are firm believers that you can feed man day in and day out and he will never be rehabilitated until he recognizes God. When man does that he automatically assures his proper place in the community."

Among other Salvation Army leaders here for the conference are Brigadier and Mrs. William Jaynes, Atlanta, who are responsible for youth activities in 15 southern states, Mexico, and District of Columbia. Here from New Orleans are Brigadier and Mrs. Harry Ward, in charge of the Army's program in Louisiana and Arkansas, and Major and Mrs. Warren Fulton, who are responsible for youth work in the two - state area.

Among guests at the session were Lt. Col. Lillian Hansen, editor of the Salvation Army's weekly publication issued out of Atlanta, Ga., "Southern War Cry." It has circulation of more than 100,000 copies per week.

The session got underway yesterday morning at 9:30 a.m. Afternoon meeting started at 2 p.m. and a youth demonstration at 7:30 p.m. at the Frances Hotel capped the day's activities. The final session will get under way this morning at 9:30.

Migration Cuts Negro Voters In Dixie States

ATLANTA (UPI) — Out-migration has caused a slight decline in the number of southern Negroes who are eligible to vote in Tuesday's presidential election, U.S. Commerce Department figures disclosed Saturday.

Approximately one out of five persons in seven southeastern states eligible to vote are Negroes, by far the largest group of Negroes in this bracket in any region.

Almost 3,750,000 Negroes are of voting age in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee, the agency said.

Georgia, because of its 18-year-old voting privileges, has the largest number of Negroes of voting age with 613,000.

Other states, according to the federal agency's figures, are:

North Carolina 547,000, Alabama 506,000, Florida 477,000, Mississippi 423,000, South Carolina 379,000, Tennessee 298,000.

The report showed that, while Alabama, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee have lost voting-age Negroes in the past decade, Georgia and Florida show increases.

Losses included 10,000 for Alabama, 74,000 for Mississippi, 3,000 for North Carolina, 11,000 for South Carolina and 21,000 for Tennessee.

Florida picked up 11,000 Negroes in the voting age bracket and Georgia added 8,000. This gave the region a net loss of 1,000 voting age Negroes during the past 10 years.

LOUISIANA NEEDS NIXON because

NIXON OFFERS

OUR LAST HOPE FOR TIDELANDS MONEY

Our school teachers and our highway program and other state programs badly needed the $272 million of Tidelands money that was finally given to the Federal Government by the recent Supreme Court final action.

The Democrats have shown that they will not give future Tidelands money to us. President Truman vetoed the Tidelands Bill twice. Senator Kennedy voted against the Tidelands Bill.

In 1953, in spite of Kennedy's vote against it, President Eisenhower, with Mr. Nixon's approval, signed the bill into law. Nixon-Lodge will work for the eventual return of the Tidelands oil revenues to Louisiana. Kennedy has demonstrated by his vote in Congress that he is opposed to our rightful claim.

YOUR VOTE FOR NIXON-LODGE IS OUR LAST HOPE TO RETAIN FUTURE TIDELANDS MILLIONS FOR LOUISIANA

Congressmen, Jackson To Speak Monday

Congressman Otto E. Passman and Shelby M. Jackson, state superintendent of public education, will speak before the public in a DeMolay-sponsored program tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The speeches follow a banquet and will be held in Ouachita Parish High School gymnasium. C. D. Blaylock, Ouachita Chapter of the Order of DeMolay, said that there will be no charge for the 8 p.m. program.

Banquet tickets are available at the J. C. Penney and Belk-Gallant stores. Entertainment will be provided by the Ouachita choir, quartet and ensemble, with Mrs. Laudell Walters Thomas directing.

The banquet and public assembly program will conclude a month - long DeMolay "Parade of Industry" activity. One of the purposes of the 30 day drive has been to defray the costs of a summertime trip of chapter members to Washington.

Passman will arrange for the youths to observe numerous phases of the operation of the national government as part of the trip.

Congressmen, Jackson To Speak Monday

Congressman Otto E. Passman and Shelby M. Jackson, state superintendent of public education, will speak before the public in a DeMolay-sponsored program tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The speeches follow a banquet and will be held in Ouachita Parish High School gymnasium. C. D. Blaylock, Ouachita Chapter of the Order of DeMolay, said that there will be no charge for the 8 p.m. program.

Banquet tickets are available at the J. C. Penney and Belk-Gallant stores. Entertainment will be provided by the Ouachita choir, quartet and ensemble, with Mrs. Laudell Walters Thomas directing.

The banquet and public assembly program will conclude a month - long DeMolay "Parade of Industry" activity. One of the purposes of the 30 day drive has been to defray the costs of a summertime trip of chapter members to Washington.

Passman will arrange for the youths to observe numerous phases of the operation of the national government as part of the trip.

Trio Arrested In Theft Of Paper Racks

West Monroe police yesterday announced the arrest of three local youths late Friday for the theft of a number of Morning World newspaper racks over the past few weeks.

George S. Humphries, 17, 906 Crosley St., West Monroe, and two unidentified juveniles have been charged with felony theft.

Humphries is being held in city jail, charged with the theft of five of the racks. One of the unidentified youths is in the parish juvenile detention home and the other has been released in the custody of his parents.

About 20 racks have been stolen police said. Seven were taken from within the city limits and 13 from outside.

The youths told police they dumped 16 in Tony Bayou, three in Cheniere Lake at the dam and one off the Darbonne bridge.

Police recovered one from Tony Bayou. It was valued at $35.

Humphries and the others will probably be tried Monday.

Authorities said the case was solved with the help of two West Monroe citizens, and the three youths were arrested at their homes Friday.

They told police they waited until no one was around the racks, then they would drive up and throw them in the back of the car.

Youth Meet Underway In Monroe

Fog shrouded the plane flight of several ranking Salvation Army officials to Monroe for a two-state youth conference yesterday, but the messages they brought were aimed at patterning a brighter outlook for the 200 delegates from areas of Arkansas and Louisiana.

Among those on the flight from New Orleans were Commissioner and Mrs. William Davidson. He is territorial commander for 15 southern states, District of Columbia and Mexico, and operates out of Atlanta, Ga.

He and other Army officials were here for principal addresses at the two - day conference which will wind up this morning at the Frances Hotel.

Both the commissioner and his wife are natives of Ireland and received their education there and at the International Training College in London, England.

The commissioner spoke of the mission of his organization, which had its start in 1865 in London, as the result of the work of William and Catherine Booth.

"The Salvation Army provides facilities for physical, moral and spiritual development and seeks to develop the buddy idea. That is, we have responsibility for others," he explained.

Continuing, he said, "Our purpose is to inculcate Christian principles and have something to live for, someone to live with—that, of course, being Jesus Christ. We endeavor also, of course, to encourage the development of a Christian family where rule of love and righteousness predominates. We believe religion is neither an opiate nor an option. It is an obligation."

Delegates to the youth conference are in the 14 to 30 year age group.

He explained, "Some of the young people are born into the homes of Salvation Army families, but the greater number are attracted to us by songs, music, games, moving up to speaking contests, and open air evangelism. Some of the young accompany older people on hospital visitations in order that their sympathies may be aroused and service becomes greater than self."

A further light on the mission of the Salvation Army was explained by Commissioner Davidson

"In days like the present, the Salvation Army believes a revelation will be more effective than a revolution, to discover an answer for the needs of the world."

The Army's work is now being carried on in 100 countries and colonies. Said the the commissioner, "We were expelled from Russia in the 1917 Kerensky revolution and from China during recent years."

Captain W. E. Grantham, commander of the local Salvation Army unit, said delegates attending the conference were a select group, with 16 of them being from the Monroe area.

"We feel in the Salvation Army that we are called for this type of work," explained the captain. "Workers must have a high school education, most are college trained, "We have two - year courses at Salvation Army colleges in New York, Atlanta, San Francisco and Chicago to provide training in religion, business and social welfare."

Captain Grantham gave this insight into the Army's objectives:

"We feel if man is to be rehabilitated it will be because he has met his God. We are firm believers that you can feed man day in and day out and he will never be rehabilitated until he recognizes God. When man does that he automatically assures his proper place in the community."

Among other Salvation Army leaders here for the conference are Brigadier and Mrs. William Jaynes, Atlanta, who are responsible for youth activities in 15 southern states, Mexico, and District of Columbia. Here from New Orleans are Brigadier and Mrs. Harry Ward, in charge of the Army's program in Louisiana and Arkansas, and Major and Mrs. Warren Fulton, who are responsible for youth work in the two - state area.

Among guests at the session were Lt. Col. Lillian Hansen, editor of the Salvation Army's weekly publication issued out of Atlanta, Ga., "Southern War Cry." It has circulation of more than 100,000 copies per week.

The session got underway yesterday morning at 9:30 a.m. Afternoon meeting started at 2 p.m. and a youth demonstration at 7:30 p.m. at the Frances Hotel capped the day's activities. The final session will get under way this morning at 9:30.

Migration Cuts Negro Voters In Dixie States

ATLANTA (UPI) — Out-migration has caused a slight decline in the number of southern Negroes who are eligible to vote in Tuesday's presidential election, U.S. Commerce Department figures disclosed Saturday.

Approximately one out of five persons in seven southeastern states eligible to vote are Negroes, by far the largest group of Negroes in this bracket in any region.

Almost 3,750,000 Negroes are of voting age in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee, the agency said.

Georgia, because of its 18-year-old voting privileges, has the largest number of Negroes of voting age with 613,000.

Other states, according to the federal agency's figures, are:

North Carolina 547,000, Alabama 506,000, Florida 477,000, Mississippi 423,000, South Carolina 379,000, Tennessee 298,000.

The report showed that, while Alabama, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee have lost voting-age Negroes in the past decade, Georgia and Florida show increases.

Losses included 10,000 for Alabama, 74,000 for Mississippi, 3,000 for North Carolina, 11,000 for South Carolina and 21,000 for Tennessee.

Florida picked up 11,000 Negroes in the voting age bracket and Georgia added 8,000. This gave the region a net loss of 1,000 voting age Negroes during the past 10 years.

LOUISIANA NEEDS NIXON because

NIXON OFFERS

OUR LAST HOPE FOR TIDELANDS MONEY

Our school teachers and our highway program and other state programs badly needed the $272 million of Tidelands money that was finally given to the Federal Government by the recent Supreme Court final action.

The Democrats have shown that they will not give future Tidelands money to us. President Truman vetoed the Tidelands Bill twice. Senator Kennedy voted against the Tidelands Bill.

In 1953, in spite of Kennedy's vote against it, President Eisenhower, with Mr. Nixon's approval, signed the bill into law. Nixon-Lodge will work for the eventual return of the Tidelands oil revenues to Louisiana. Kennedy has demonstrated by his vote in Congress that he is opposed to our rightful claim.

YOUR VOTE FOR NIXON-LODGE IS OUR LAST HOPE TO RETAIN FUTURE TIDELANDS MILLIONS FOR LOUISIANA

600,000 In State May Go To Polls

George W. Reese Jr., Republican National Committeeman, has campaigned vigorously in contrast to his opponent, who has done little either in his own behalf or for the national ticket.

Only three of the state's eight Democratic representatives are unopposed. They are Rep. Otto E. Passman, fifth district; Rep. T. A. Thompson, Seventh District; and Rep. Harold B. McSween, Eighth District.

McSween received the nomination when former Gov. Earl K. Long, who had beaten him in a rough-and-tumble primary fight, died.

Favored to win two-year terms are Reps. F. Edward Hebert, First District; Hale Boggs, Second District; Edwin E. Willis, Third District; Overton Brooks, Fourth District; and James H. Morrison, Sixth Districts.

Their Republicans opponents are Norman W. Prendergast, First District; Elliot Ross Buckley, Second District; Floyd J. Duplantis, Third District; Fred C. McClanahan, Fourth District and Charles H. Dillemuth, Sixth District.

Among the major constitutional amendments are measures to tighten voter registration laws, to change the size and term length of Louisiana State University board members, to repeal four constitutional state boards and to finance the Toledo Bend Dam on the Sabine River on the Texas-Louisiana border.

All three of the state's parties predict victory in the presidential contest.

Frank B. Ellis, Democratic state campaign manager, expects Sen. Kennedy and his running mate, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, to pile up 448,000 votes, compared to 232,000 for the GOP and 120,000 for the States Rights party. Ellis' prediction 800,000 will vote is higher than most estimates.

Reese predicts Nixon and his running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, will lead the Democrats 275,000-250,000 with 75,000 for the States Rights party.

David C. Treen, States Rights chairman, sees the following breakdown: States Rights, 275,000; Democrats, 200,000; and Republicans, 175,000.

The varying forecasts are evidence that no party can take a national election for granted in this formerly one-party state, even though there are 1,136,102 registered Democrats and only 10,913 registered Republicans.

Besides the congressional candidates and the 10 GOP electors, there are 14 Republicans on the ballot in New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Shreveport. In other contests, Democrats chosen in primaries July 23 and Aug. 27 are running without opposition.

At the head of the list of amendments is the administration-backed measure to increase the size of the LSU board from 15 to 20, of whom 18 would be appointed by the governor, and to cut the lengths of terms from 14 to 9 years.

Proponents say the terms are too long now and the change would broaden the base of membership. Opponents say the change would give the governor too much power and would revive the instability that led to the scandals of the late 1930s.

Amendments 2, 3, 4 and 5 would repeal the constitutional boards of Wild Life and Fisheries, Highways, Institutions and Public Welfare. They would then be recreated as statutory boards. Similar amendments lost in 1956.

Amendment 8 would set up financing for the Toledo Bend project, which is to be jointly financed by Texas and Louisiana. Proponents say the dam and reservoir would revive economically hard-hit western Louisiana, while opponents cite the loss of timberlands and what they call questionable financing.

Amendment 9 would provide new and stricter qualifications for the right to vote. One of a series of "segregation" measures passed by the last Legislature, it defines six instances of bad character that would nullify voting rights.

Amendment 11 provides for the disbanding of any tax-supported facility, established on a segregated basis, if it is ordered integrated.

Amendment 17 would increase the size of the House from 101 to 105, gives rapidly growing East Baton Rouge and Jefferson parishes two additional representatives.

Amendment 27, which effects the Orleans Parish juvenile court, was suspended in a resolution passed by the Legislature Friday. However, the action did not take the proposal off the ballot and merely served to put the Legislature on record against the amendment, because of a mistake in drafting.

Other amendments would set up four new judicial districts, and establish four new port commissions.

Heart Attack Is Fatal For Ward Bond

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — Ward Bond, 55, husky, white-haired star of motion pictures and the television show "Wagon Train," collapsed in a motel bathroom Saturday and died of a heart attack.

Bond and his wife arrived Friday night by plane to attend Sundy's Dallas-Los Angeles professional football game. They were at a Dallas nightclub Friday night.

"It appears to have been natural causes," Justice of the Peace Lem Brotherton said, after looking at the body. "No autopsy is planned at this time."

Detective G. R. Boyce of the Dallas police homicide department agreed with Brotherton. They said Bond had been under treatment for a heart condition for several years and always carried nitroglycerine pills.

He said Bond, wearing his bathrobe, collapsed against the door and wedged it shut. Mrs. Bond, who was taking him a bottle of shaving lotion, managed to get the door open far enough to see that he was in trouble.

She called the hotel manager, who summoned an ambulance. Ambulance attendants removed the bathroom door, but by that time he was dead. They left the body where it was and waited for a justice of the peace to rule, as Texas law requires.

Brotherton and the Rev. Jerome Calcagne of Holy Trinity Catholic Church reached the motel together.

Gordon McLendon, a movie producer, radio station chain owner and rancher, said the Bonds were packing to move out of the motel to the McLendon ranch for the night.

McLendon flew in from Los Angeles with the Bonds Friday. He said Bond was in "fine fettle" and they played cards all the way in.

A graduate engineer from the University of Southern California, Bond broke into the acting business as a lark and as a way to pay his tuition.

Bond appeared in more than 100 horse operas since 1923, playing heavies and sidekicks with such ten-gallon heroes of the past as Buck Jones, Tim McCoy, Ken Maynard and Hoot Gibson.

He also appeared in dozens of other motion pictures. And up to 1956 it was always as a character actor.

T. (Bill) Billingsley

Best Opens Shell Home Office Here

The Best Shell Homes Company today announced the opening of a Monroe office to serve the shell home market throughout the northeast Louisiana area and surrounding territory.

T. (Bill) Billingsley, Best Company vice - president and manager of the Monroe office, said his company will offer "the most complete shell home service so far introduced to the Monroe shell home market.

"In our operations we stress quality materials, stronger construction methods, custom designing and a complete line of high quality materials necessary in the completion of a home," Billingsley said.

In addition to building the homes, Best also arranges financing, life insurance and one year's free fire insurance to every buyer.

In addition to Billingsley, four other members of the Best staff maintain operations for the company in Monroe at 2011 Louisville avenue.

Billingsley came to Monroe from Pine Bluff, Arkansas. He has purchased a home in Monroe at 1911 College Avenue, in the college area.

Best shell operations have been expanded to six states, including Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Missouri and Florida.

Billingsley pointed out that the Monroe headquarters represented the company's first operational center in Louisiana. "We've done some work in Louisiana before," Billingsley said, "but through our operational offices located in Arkansas."

According to first-hand reports, three quick bursts of machine gun fire killed both men instantly and set their jeep afire.

Officials said several other public safety division advisers who were at a hotel nearby noticed a column of smoke rising from the ambush spot. Two of the advisers got into a jeep and drove down the road to investigate.

The advisers stopped 50 yards from the burning vehicle and as they crept cautiously down the road toward the jeep a man jumped out from bushes in front of them.

from anywhere in the country" and can be expected to handle as many as 8,000 calls during the time the program is on the air, from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. est.

"But of course the Vice President wouldn't be able to answer that many questions," Stover said. He said it had not yet been determined who will select the questions for Nixon to answer or how the selection would be made.

Stover said he did not know whose idea the telethon was, but added "most of the ideas in this campaign have been the Vice President's."

Kennedy, joined in the final phase of his campaigning day in New York City by his running mate, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, addressed a huge rally in the New York Coliseum. The speech was nationally televised.

"I want above al else to be a president known—at the end of four years—as one who not only prevented war but won the peace—as one of whom history might say: He not only laid the foundations of peace in his time, but for generations to come as well," Kennedy said.

"My opponent promises if he is successful to go to Eastern Europe, to go perhaps to another summit, to go to a series of meetings around the world," he added. "If I am successful, I am going to Washington, D. C., and get this country to work."

Kennedy appeared at the coliseum rally after a strenuous day of campaigning in cold and rainy weather in the New York City area. He made at least 15 speeches during the day, and took part in a torchlight parade up Broadway from Times Square.

Nixon, bolstered by encouraging reports of his chances, hit hard for votes on a swing through California. He struck out repeatedly at Kennedy in his California speeches.

"A Kennedy administration would inescapably mean higher taxes, higher prices, and a return to objectionable government controls," he told one audience.

"I want above al else to be a president known—at the end of four years—as one who not only prevented war but won the peace—as one of whom history might say: He not only laid the foundations of peace in his time, but for generations to come as well," Kennedy said.

"My opponent promises if he is successful to go to Eastern Europe, to go perhaps to another summit, to go to a series of meetings around the world," he added. "if I am successful, I am going to Washington, D. C., and get this country to work."

Kennedy appeared at the coliseum rally after a strenuous day of campaigning in cold and rainy weather in the New York City area. He made at least 15 speeches during the day, and took part in a torchlight parade up Broadway from Times Square.

Nixon, bolstered by encouraging reports of his chances, hit hard for votes on a swing through California. He struck out repeatedly at Kennedy in his California speeches.

"A Kennedy administration would inescapably mean higher taxes, higher prices, and a return to objectionable government controls," he told one audience.

Best Opens Shell Home Office Here

T. (Bill) Billingsley

The Best Shell Homes Company today announced the opening of a Monroe office to serve the shell home market throughout the northeast Louisiana area and surrounding territory.

T. (Bill) Billingsley, Best Company vice - president and manager of the Monroe office, said his company will offer "the most complete shell home service so far introduced to the Monroe shell home market.

"In our operations we stress quality materials, stronger construction methods, custom designing and a complete line of high quality materials necessary in the completion of a home," Billingsley said.

In addition to building the homes, Best also arranges financing, life insurance and one year's free fire insurance to every buyer.

In addition to Billingsley, four other members of the Best staff maintain operations for the company in Monroe at 2011 Louisville avenue.

Billingsley came to Monroe from Pine Bluff, Arkansas. He has purchased a home in Monroe at 1911 College Avenue, in the college area.

Best shell operations have been expanded to six states, including Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Missouri and Florida.

Billingsley pointed out that the Monroe headquarters represented the company's first operational center in Louisiana. "We've done some work in Louisiana before," Billingsley said, "but through our operational offices located in Arkansas."

'Debate' On Plan Of Two Hopefuls

By BERNARD BRENNER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — What would Vice President Richard M. Nixon's farm program do for farmers and the general public? What would Sen. John F. Kennedy's program do?

Here is a "debate" on the possible effects of both programs and the flaws each side picks in the opposing party's policies. What follows is taken from campaign speeches, party statements, and interviews with farm campaign officials in both parties.

Nixon proposes an all-out effort to reduce federal farm surpluses while protecting farm income over a four-year period. This would include an expanded voluntary soil bank, stepped-up food donations at home and abroad, and temporarily-tightened controls on wheat production.

After the surplus is cut, Nixon believes prices will rise naturally. He would then plan elimination of federal planting controls and adoption of the lower-level price supports favored by Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson.

Kennedy also proposes a massive campaign to use present surpluses to help the needy at home and overseas. But his main tool for both preventing future surplus buildups and raising farm income would be "supply management" controls over farm marketings. These control programs, for use only if approved in advance by affected farmers, would be aimed at lifting the income of the average farmer to the same return he could get by using his capital and labor in non-farm industry.

Democrats say: Effective production control is necessary because we cannot have good prices with unlimited production. The Nixon program won't help farmers. Nixon's whole approach in the first stage is based on cutting down the farm production plant with no hint of raising farm prices. There might be a temporary upsurge in prices when surpluses are eliminated, but this would be followed by a collapse without controls. If we dropped all present government farm surpluses in the ocean tomorrow, farm prices would still be too low because production is outrunning demand.

Republicans say: Our program is based on lower farm prices than the Kennedy program. But over a period of time it would boost farm income because it is based in the long run on marketing in relative abundance. The Kennedy plan would raise farm income for those who stay on the farm, but small farmers would be forced out because they couldn't survive the controls involved. Those farmers who remain would give up virtually all freedom to make management decisions.

Democrats say: Retail food prices might go up slightly under our program, but the increase would be nothing like the "wild figure" of 25 per cent Nixon has used in speeches. Besides our farm policies will cut the government's spending on farm programs by at least $1 billion a year more than the government is now spending, largely because of the high cost of the Nixon soil bank plan.

Republicans say: The Kennedy farm program would force retail food prices up 25 per cent and this would push the overall cost-of-living index up at least 6 per cent. What's more, production restrictions under the Kennedy program would eliminate one million jobs on farms and another one million jobs in farm supply and processing industries.

LSE Enrollment Up To 13,918, All-Time High

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana State University enrollment has almost doubled during the past decade, with an all-time high of 13,918 students registered for the current fall semester, Registrar Albert C. Clary has announced.

The figure includes LSU's campuses in Alexander, New Orleans and Baton Rouge.

LSU enrollment in the fall of 1950 was 7,326, Clary said. Enrollment figures for the present semester also show an increase of more than 1,000 students over last year. Fall enrollment for the 1959-60 school year was 12,724.

Of the present enrollment total, 1,054, students are from 45 other states, including the newest state, Hawaii, home of one student. A total of 347 students from 51 other countries throughout the world are also enrolled at LSU.

Clary said 2,539 students are attending LSU in New Orleans and 322 are in the first year class in the University's newest branch, LSU at Alexandria. There are 460 registered in the LSU School of Medicine in New Orleans and 69 are enrolled in the department of nursing there.

Enrollment in the Graduate School, Law School, and School of Social Welfare totals 2,066. On the Baton Rouge campus 8,462 are registered in the University's undergraduate colleges and schools, including 483 in the University College, which offers courses in the regular daytime classes.

The largest number of students is enrolled in the College of Engineering, which has 1,124 students.

Largest enrollment increases in the present semester over last year's fall semester were in the College of Education and the Graduate School, each of which added more than 100 students to its rolls. Education enrollment increased from 831 to 936, while the Graduate School climbed from 1,632 to 1,765.

Since 1953, when LSU first asked registering students to record their marital status, the number of married students enrolled at the University has nearly doubled, climbing from a total of 1,581 in the 1953-54 school year to 2,252 for the current semester.

Show Producing Activity Boost To Weight Line

NEW YORK (AP) — Kermit Bloomgarden describes himself as a "compulsive eater" when in the throes of producing a new show.

"I try to keep my weight these days to 152, but I have an awful time during rehearsals," says the stocky man whose hit-string on Broadway includes "Most Happy Fella," "Look Homeward, Angel" and currently "Toys in the Attic."

Herter Appeals For Aid Of All On Relations

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter appealed Saturday night for all Americans living or traveling abroad to support U.S. diplomatic officers in building better relations with foreign peoples.

Herter said the task of preparing Americans for foreign experience is up to this country's educational and religious leaders and others who influence the way people think and act.

In an address prepared for a convocation at Assumption College where he went to receive an honorary degree, Herter said "more than a million and a half Americans now live and work in foreign lands.

"While this figure includes sizable military contingents, it comprises also a surprisingly large body of U.S. civilians. In the latter category private citizens outnumber government employes by a ratio of 6-1," he said.

"Since we are entered upon an era in which we are certainly going to be ever more deeply and extensively concerned with international relationships," Herter continued, "it is apparent that we must intesify the efforts we have been making to prepare our people for living in other lands — whether they be in government, in military service, in business, in missionary work, or have simply succumbed to wanderlust."

Herter declared that today's diplomat "must have the full support of each and every one of his fellow American citizens abroad."

IN THE UNITED STATES

Filipinos Genuinely Love Their Former Governors

EDITOR'S NOTE — Helped along by crisis in the Congo and Khrushchev tirades in the United Nations, colonialism has become a hot international issue. Unlike its Communist opponent in the cold war, the United States can point to an ex-colony. And if Uncle Sam is not riding high all over Asia, he can truthfully say that they love him in Manila.

By JIM BECKER

MANILA (AP) — To American eyes, the Philippines are almost too good to be true.

Americans, who the experts say want desperately to be loved around the world, are often disappointed in that quest. They are not disappointed in the Philippines, their only ex-colony, where the warmth and good feeling for them is almost astounding.

This was demonstrated again last summer when President Eisenhower made a three-day visit, hard on the heels of the U-2 business, the summit collapse, a general cooling of international relations, and during wild anti-American demonstrations in Japan that finally forced him to call off his trip to Tokyo.

In Manila, the President was met with a warm, smiling, emotional welcome that was for him, a "home-town boy" returned—but also for the American people.

Filipinos like Americans, and they like American ways. They like to feel that although they are on their own now, they are still part of the family.

In the Philippines, family relationships are very close, and the bosom of the family is a place to turn in times of trouble, to celebrate in times of joy, to mourn in times of sorrow. Above all, there is fierce family loyalty.

Americans often fail to understand this, and they hurt the Filipinos' feelings, sometimes, as a result.

They say they want the Philippines to "stand on their own feet," and similar cliches.

That's all right—although in any referendum there would be a lot of votes here to return to American control—but the Filipinos say you don't have to overdo it. A young man here strikes out on his own when he reaches maturity, but he never strays far from the family.

That's the kind of relationship the Philippines want with the United States.

They haven't had it for quite a few years, but they may get what they want, if only for selfish reasons.

For one, the Americans are becoming more aware of the general feeling in Asia that if the Philippines fall on their face, it will be a black eye for American-style democracy.

For another, the turmoil in Japan, and to a less extent on Okinawa, has started some serious thinking among American military men. They half fear that the day may come when the Philippines will be the last dependable ally left out here.

In this light, what shape are the Philippines in, 14 years after the American flag was pulled down, and the Philippine flag tugged up in its place?

Not too bad, but not too good, either.

The economy is sputtering along, making a little progress, which the population expansion eats up almost as fast as it is made. There is stark poverty in the cities.

There is prosperity, too, but it is confined in a small area.

There is much unemployment, and underemployment, among the 25 million Filipinos.

The farmers, the bulk of the population, are getting by, as they always have and always will, on the rich, tropical land. They haven't any money in the bank, but they never have had, and if they do get a little ahead, there is always the village fiesta, or a daughter's wedding, to eat it up.

But the cockfights are good, and the crops have been very good, and they don't owe very much to the Chinese money lender this year.

In Manila, things are a little worse economically. Hard alongside the air-conditioned limousines and the fancy garden parties are the barefoot urchins, the tin-roofed squatter shacks, and the ugly scars of the war, still here 15 years after the Japanese were driven out.

In contrast with the boom atmosphere of Tokyo and Hong Kong, there is a feeling of drift, of being stuck in neutral, or just inching forward in low gear.

The hand of graft and corruption lies heavy. Influence peddling and deals are the order of the day.

President Carlos P. Garcia, after keeping a pretty loose rein on this type of activity for the first two years of his term, has cracked down a bit recently.

Garcia is expected to run for re-election a year from now, and the political in-fighting is already under way. Politics is played for keeps here, and it is a year-round activity, the national pastime.

To the sophisticated eye, the Philippine political system doesn't work very well.

Congress is filled with errand boys for this or that faction, and the legislators brazenly vote themselves slices of the national income for "public works projects."

The two-party system doesn't really amount to much, since the parties don't stand for anything except getting elected—although both are pro-American—and most politicians have belonged to both at least once in their careers.

But by Asian standards, the system works very well.

Elections are sometimes marred by violence, and always by vote-buying and crude appeals to the electorate. But when the votes are counted—frequently accurately—the losers subside and let the winners take over. There is no thought of upsetting the results by force.

IN THE UNITED STATES

Filipinos Genuinely Love Their Former Governors

EDITOR'S NOTE — Helped along by crisis in the Congo and Khrushchev tirades in the United Nations, colonialism has become a hot international issue. Unlike its Communist opponent in the cold war, the United States can point to an ex-colony. And if Uncle Sam is not riding high all over Asia, he can truthfully say that they love him in Manila.

By JIM BECKER

MANILA (AP) — To American eyes, the Philippines are almost too good to be true.

Americans, who the experts say want desperatly to be loved around the world, are often disappointed in that quest. They are not disappointed in the Philippines, their only ex-colony, where the warmth and good feeling for them is almost astounding.

This was demonstrated again last summer when President Eisenhower made a three-day visit, hard on the heels of the U2 business, the summit collapse, a general cooling of international relations, and during wild anti-American demonstrations in Japan that finally forced him to call off his trip to Tokyo.

In Manila, the President was met with a warm, smiling, emotional welcome that was for him, a "home-town boy" returned—but also for the American people.

Filipinos like Americans, and they like American ways. They like to feel that although they are on their own now, they are still part of the family.

In the Philippines, family relationships are very close, and the bosom of the family is a place to turn in times of trouble, to celebrate in times of joy, to mourn in times of sorrow. Above all, there is fierce family loyalty.

Americans often fail to understand this, and they hurt the Filipinos feelings, sometimes, as a result.

They say they want the Philippines to "stand on their own feet," and similar cliches.

Thats all right—although in any referendum there would be a lot of votes here to return to American control—but the Filipinos say you don't have to overdo it. A young man here strikes out on his own when he reaches matunity, but he never strays far from the family.

That's the kind of relationship the Philippines want with the United States.

They haven't had it for quite a few years, but they may get what they want, if only for selfish reasons.

For one, the Americans are becoming more aware of the general feeling in Asia that if the Philippines fall on their face, it will be a black eye for American-style democracy.

For another, the turmoil in Japan, and to a less extent on Okinawa, has started some serious thinking among American military men. They half fear that the day may come when the Philippines will be the last dependable ally left out here.

In this light, what shape are the Philippines in, 14 years after the American flag was pulled down, and the Philippine flag tugged up in its place?

Not too bad, but not too good, either.

The economy is sputtering along, making a little progress, which the population expansion eats up almost as fast as it is made. There is stark poverty in the cities.

There is prosperity, too, but it is confined in a small area.

There is much unemployment, and underemployment, among the 25 million Filipinos.

The farmers, the bulk of the population, are getting by, as they always have and always will, on the rich, tropical land. They haven't any money in the bank, but they never have had, and if they do get a little ahead, there is always the village fiesta, or a daughter's wedding, to eat it up.

But the cockfights are good, and the crops have been very good, and they don't owe very much to the Chinese money lender this year.

In Manila, things are a little worse economically. Hard alongside the air-conditioned limousines and the fancy garden parties are the barefoot urchins, the tin-roofed squatter shacks, and the ugly scars of the war, still here 15 years after the Japanese were driven out.

In contrast with the boom atmosphere of Tokyo and Hong Kong, there is a feeling of drift, of being stuck in neutral, or just inching forward in low gear.

The hand of graft and corruption lies heavy. Influence peddling and deals are the order of the day.

President Carlos P. Garcia, after keeping a pretty loose rein on this type of activity for the first two years of his term, has cracked down a bit recently.

Garcia is expected to run for re-election a year from now, and the political in-fighting is already under way. Politics is played for keeps here, and it is a year-round activity, the national pastime.

To the sophisticated eye, the Philippine political system doesn't work very well.

Congress is filled with errand boys for this or that faction, and the legislators brazenly vote themselves slices of the national income for "public works projects."

The two-party system doesn't really amount to much, since the parties don't stand for anything except getting elected—although both are pro-American—and most politicians have belonged to both at least once in their careers.

But by Asian standards, the system works very well.

Elections are sometimes marred by violence, and always by vote-buying and crude appeals to the electorate. But when the votes are counted—frequently accurately—the losers subside and let the winners take over. There is no thought of upsetting the results by force.

WISE-LOOKING CAT, "Beau," wears horn - rimmed glasses but refused to leave his box for Cat Week International picture. (Staff photos by Bill Lentz)

MISS MONIQUE COATES, assisted by two of her 17 pet cats, works on ceramics hobby. Princess, a white Persian, carried on a quiet conversation with Don Juan, a Siamese.

NATIONAL OBSERVANCE

She Has A Real 'Cat Week' Life

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

When she calls "Here, Kitty, Kitty," 17 cats come running.

It's Cat Week International (just November is three), so Miss Monique Coates' home is cat week all year 'round.

Her cats have personality. "Beau" weighs 20 pounds, likes to wear bandages, dresses, has his teeth brushed, "eats" on a leash — and might as the other cats.

Beau recovered from a stroke, and now he's on a special diet — chicken meat, etc.

"Bella Donna is the only cat who can bamboozle him. He gets up on a chair and waits at her, but if she lifts back, he cries like a baby," laughed Miss Coates.

Bella Donna, who likes to look at herself in a mirror, was freed by Miss Coates' dog Tuff, three years ago. Miss Coates adopted her and Beau moved across the street to Mrs. Vera Presley (Miss Coates' sister).

Don Juan, a Siamese, and Princess, a pure-white Persian, are the only cats who live in Miss Coates' house. They've taken over the bathroom. "I have to go across to my sister's to take a bath," their owner commented.

All the other cats sleep in Miss Coates' garage, at 131 Reagan St., West Monroe.

Her fondness for felines started in 1955, when she acquired her first cat, Fluff.

Also known as the "flying Dutchman" for his speed, Fluff visited at Mrs. Presley's for breakfast each Saturday and Sunday.

Once the sister put Fluff onto the phone while she was talking with Miss Coates.

"I said, 'Kitty Fluff, come home'. His ears perked up, and he dashed out of the house and across the street to my home."

But Fluff, who usually looked before crossing the street, came to an untimely end when dogs chased him in front of a car.

Now Miss Coates buys cat food by the case for the cats who arrived since Fluff's time. The feeding bill is slightly more than $9 each week.

And she knows each one by name:

Bootsie, Callie, Yellow Boy Jr., Big Yellow Boy, Snowball, Miss Gray, Smokey, Mother Girl, Foxy Soxy, Donna Belle, Juberee, his mother Juber, Nigger Girl and Soxy.

Once Kitty Beau received a gift addressed to him through the mail. With it was a story from Egypt, which may explain the cats' fondness for Miss Coates and vice-versa. Miss Coates tells it:

"In the beginning, all cats were savage, but one of them made friends with a fox.

Unfortunately, the fox was trampeled on by a buffalo, so the cat became a great admirer of the buffalo until a lion lunched on his new - found friend.

The kitty had just decided to become a lion lover when along came an elephant.

The cat took one look at what the elephant did to his lion, and decided to stay with the pachyderm, until a two - legged hunter appeared and the elephant took off.

The feline became the friend of man.

One disillusioning day, he saw man cringe and bow and scrape before a woman.

"At last I have found the strongest living being in all the creation," smiled the cat.

And so the cat has been faithful to woman for all the centuries ever since and has never been disappointed."

Zufall Cites Some Facts To Sen. Kennedy

John Zufall, of Monroe, a veteran navy man in the Pacific area around the time of the Korean war, yesterday dug down in his old dusty fact - locker and came out with a 1951 copy of Stars and Stripes in which the featured headline quoted Defense Secretary George C. Marshall as saying the United States was "Nor Prepared For War."

Zufall ofered the old newspaper headline in answer to Sen. John F. Kennedy's allegation that the United States has recessed to a second rate power under the Eisenhower administration.

"If Mr. Kennedy will recall," Zufall said, "he will remember that in 1951 when Gen. Marshall made the headlined assertion on our weakness that we had a Democratic administration and had had for nearly 20 years.

"It seems to me that Sen. Kennedy would do well to think a little objectively instead shooting a scattereload of halftruths on every thing he has to say during his present campaign," Zufall declared.

"Although I am most vividly aware that the Democratic standard bearer and his running mate, Sen. Lyndon Johnson, have abandoned the truth in other fields of their campaigning."

Zufall said he, personally, had never gotten over his stern objection to President Truman's action in firing Gen. Douglas McArthur, "the most qualified man we have ever had in Far Eastern affairs. McArthur knew and understood the Oriental mind as no other man in our country," Zufall said.

Undoubtedly the Democratic standard bearers in the present campaign were too young or too thick - headed to realize that some of the most monumental blunders in the recent history of our nation's foreign policy were committed under Democratic administration.

"And I, for one, hope the American people don't fail to show the world next Tuesday that the day is past when Americans can be duped by half - truths and political lies by a successful candidate for the highest office in the land.

Computers May Name Election Winner Early

NEW YORK (AP) — The modern marvel of electronics is going to be put to an astonishing political test Tuesday — naming the winning presidential candidate even before the nation finishes voting.

If it succeeds you may know the outcome before you sit down to dinner, and possibly when as little as 1 per cent of the votes have been counted.

This staggering undertaking is going to be tried with those amazing new man - made "brains" — electronic computers — devices made up of about a half - acre of electron tubes, magnetic tapes, whirling dials and flashing lights.

Three big radio and television networks are betting vast sums that the computers will tell who has won the presidency far earlier than any time in history. Three major computer manufacturers are gambling big on it also.

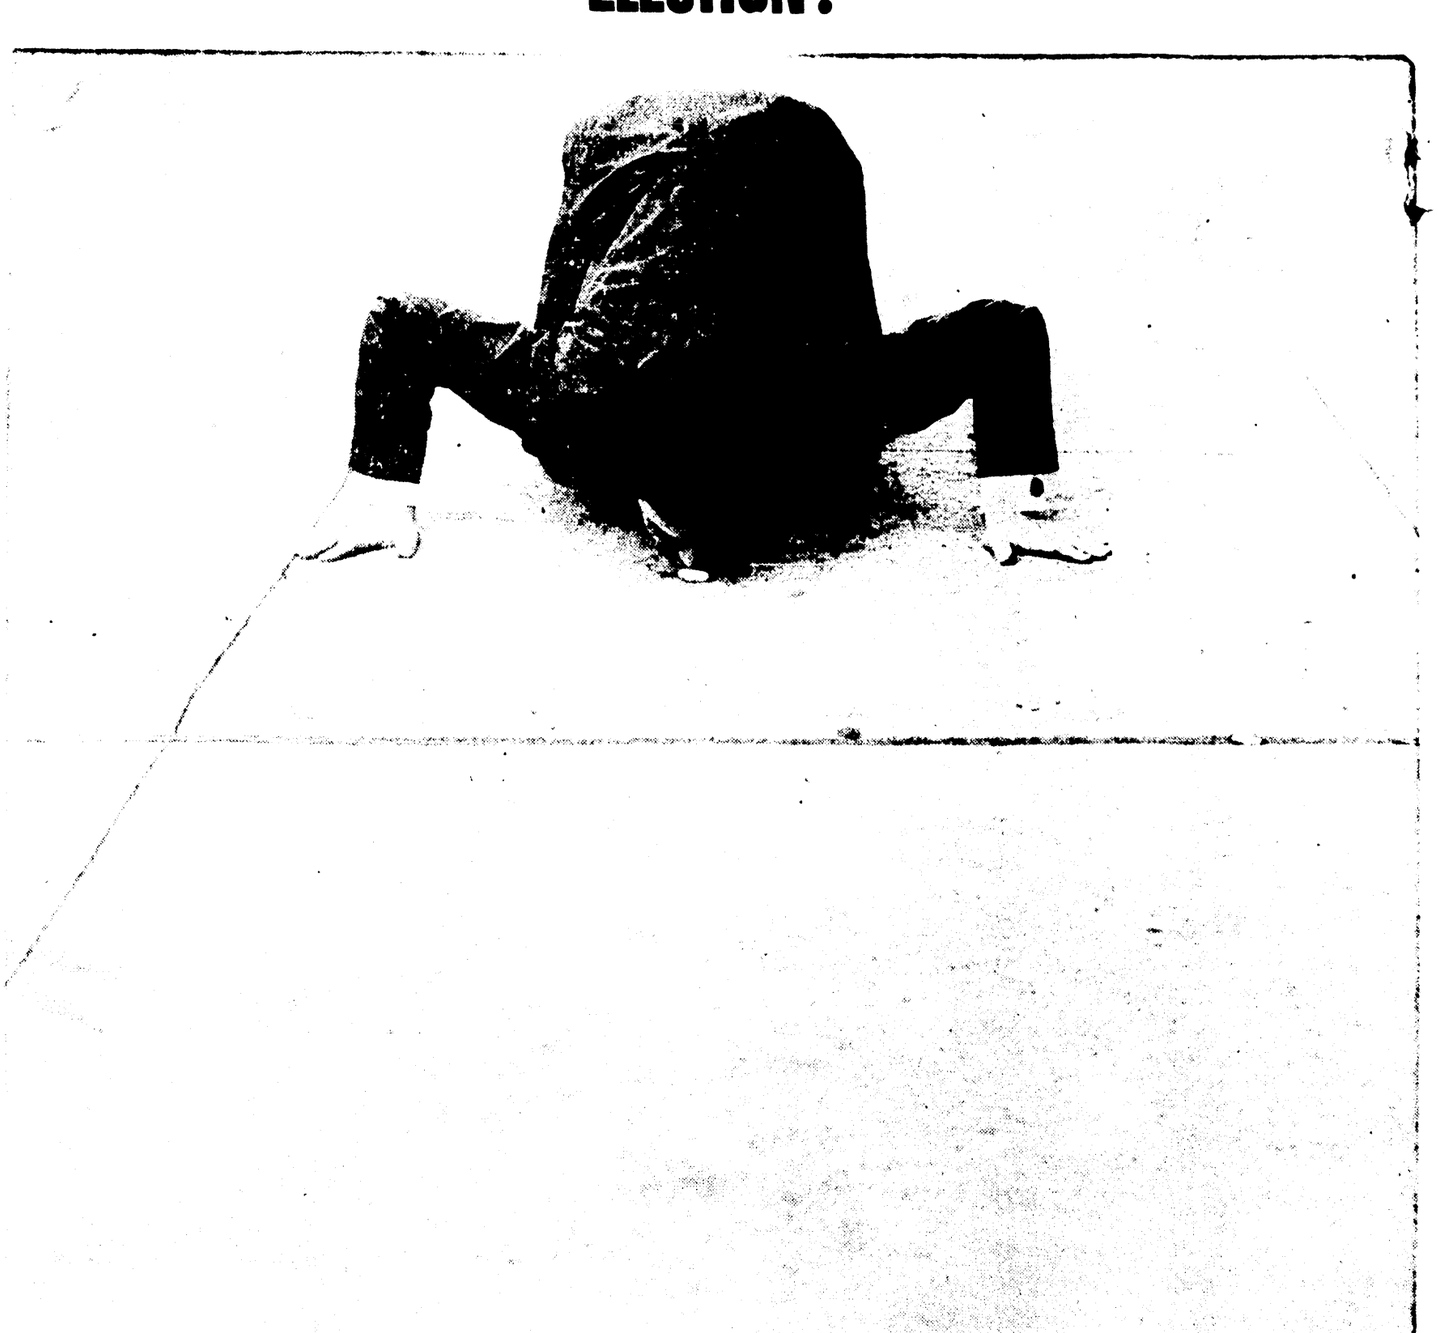
WHAT STARTS THINGS ROLLING RIGHT AFTER ELECTION?



The election returns, of course. But who totes up these results so you have them scant hours after the polls close? Not the government. (Government returns won't be certified for weeks.) The count is made by almost 10,000 daily and weekly newspapers working hand in hand with Associated Press and United Press International. On election night, tens of thousands of newsmen pick up vote totals at precinct level, feed them up the line to local, state and national headquarters. Computers translate the numbers into hard election facts: who won, who lost. (Generally, the press wire services handle state and national counts; your local newspapers, city and county contests.) Vote counting is only one key role newspapers play in a free election. Newspapers bring you coverage — in unmatched depth — of conventions and campaigns. Newspapers bring you candidates' words in a form you can go back to for checking and rechecking. On editorial pages, newspapers express opinions, explore issues, help you weigh platforms and promises—help you make a well-informed choice. At election time — and all the time — you can bet on newspapers. And never lose.

It's Cat Week International again, November 6 through 12. At Miss Monique Coates' house, it's cat week all year 'round.

The election returns, of course. But who totes up these results so you have them scant hours after the polls close? Not the government. (Government returns won't be certified for weeks.) The count is made by almost 10,000 daily and weekly newspapers working hand in hand with Associated Press and United Press International. On election night, tens of thousands of newsmen pick up vote totals at precinct level, feed them up the line to local, state and national headquarters. Computers translate the numbers into hard election facts: who won, who lost. (Generally, the press wire services handle state and national counts; your local newspapers, city and county contests.) Vote counting is only one key role newspapers play in a free election. Newspapers bring you coverage — in unmatched depth — of conventions and campaigns. Newspapers bring you candidates' words in a form you can go back to for checking and rechecking. On editorial pages, newspapers express opinions, explore issues, help you weigh platforms and promises—help you make a well-informed choice. At election time — and all the time — you can bet on newspapers. And never lose.

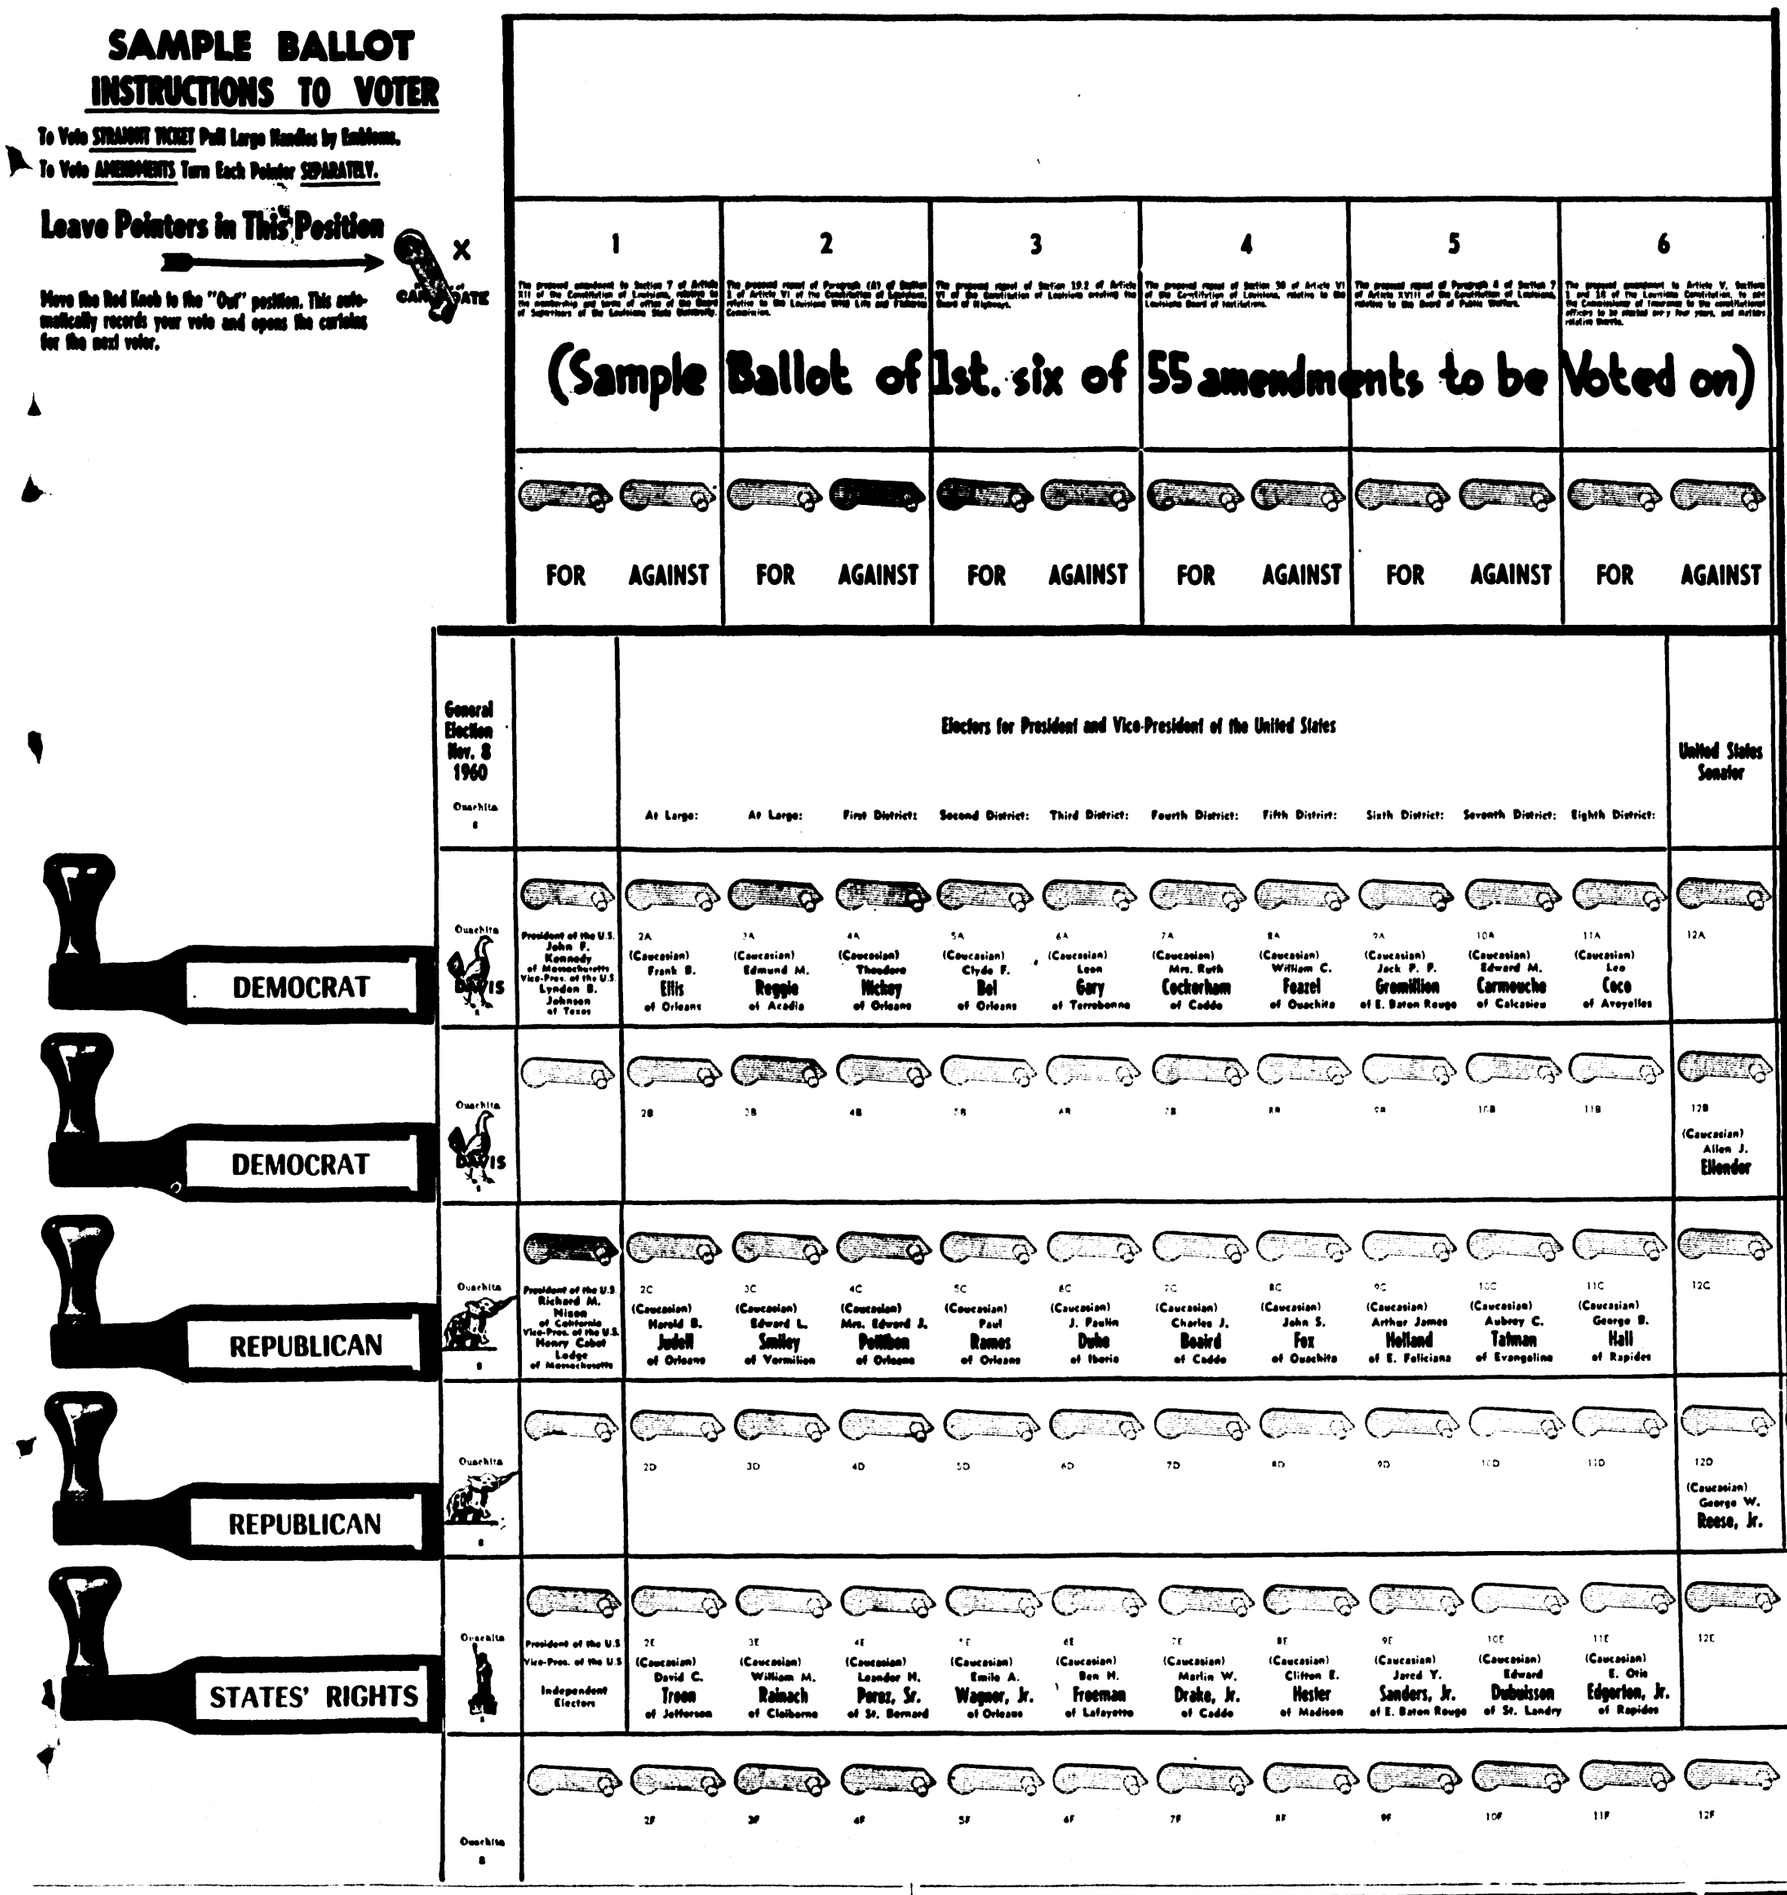
ONLY PART of the gigantic 55-amendment, national, state and local ballot for next Tuesday's general election is shown here. The first of the amendments are at the top of this sample ballot. Electors for president on the Republican, Democrat and States Rights tickets are below the amendments. Not shown are 49 amendment propositions and the names of local Democratic nominees who were named in the Democratic primaries last summer. To vote a straight ticket for the Republican Nixon-Lodge ticket, for the Democrat Kennedy-Johnson ticket or for independent electors on the States' Rights ballot, voters may pull the lever next to the proper column. A separate lever must be pulled to vote for United States Senator. Republican George W. Reese Jr. is opposing incumbant Sen. Allen J. Ellender for this post. Voting begins at 6 a.m. November 8 in Ouachita parish, and ends at 8 p.m. Parish officials strongly advise that each voter have a prepared list indicating whether he is for or against each amendment, so that he may have enough time to vote for each candidate and amendment. A three-minute limit will prevent voters from taking time to read the provisions of each amendment while in the voting booth.



Amendments We Suggest

Last Sunday the World and News-Star published our recommendations to voters on each of the 55 state constitutional amendments to be on the ballot Tuesday, along with our reasons in each instance. Police Checking Young Gunman

CHICAGO (UPI) — Fingerprints of a young Puerto Rican, who had a loaded pistol when seized as he trid to enter a giant rally here for Sen. John F. Kennedy Friday night, were sent to the FBI Saturday.

Police pressed their investigation of Jaime Cruz Alajandro, 23, and hoped to complete their case in time for an apperance in holiday court Sunday.

Alejandro was one of two persons seized at the crowded gate of the Chicago Stadium. The Rev. Israel Dabney, 61, a minister, was stopped as he tried to enter the giant arena with a .38-caliber revolver in a paper bag.

Students Show Handicrafts

Talent In Spotlight

By LYNN GARRETT
Staff Writer

An open house at Southside High School today from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. will give the general public an opportunity to view handicrafts produced by the students.

Southside, state training institute for boys, will have exhibits from the various classes on display in the Administration Building.

Boys ages 8-17 will be represented at the display, the first of its type at the school.

IMPORTANT PART

Officials pointed out that work of this type plays an important part in character development at the school. "In addition, most of the boys show a great deal of interest in this type of work," it was added.

Scheduled for exhibit are displays of painting, ceramics and weaving, from the classes of Mrs. Avis Phillips; woodworking, Olan Coffey, instructor; printing and photography, Ray Vineyard, instructor; crafts, Mrs. Jack Greene, instructor, and machine work, M. B. Lawrence, instructor.

J. W. Langston, instructor in auto mechanics, will not have an exhibit, but his classes are included in the activities division.

Under Mrs. Phillips' instruction, the youths learn various types of painting the several facets of ceramics, and weaving.

GUIDES

Coffey guides his classes in making many different types of items from wood, including lamp bases and cedar chests.

Vineyard and his classes do printing of letter heads and forms for the school, as well as school photography.

Mrs. Greene and her classes concentrate mainly on making items from scrap materials, such as egg shell, coffee grinds, rocks and gourds. The gourds were planted at the school by the youths.

Lawrence's classes will exhibit different types of machine work, including welding and sheet metal.

Everything made in these classes becomes the property of the boys, officials said.

ART TRAINING

Mrs. Phillips, a native of Monroe, is a graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College, and received her professional art training at Louisiana Tech. She has taught at Southside six years.

A graduate of Northwestern State College at Natchitoches, Coffey is an Ashland native. He taught two years in Louisiana public schools before joining Southside seven years ago.

A native of Hammond, Vineyard is a graduate of Northeast College and is in his second year of teaching at Southside.

Mrs. Greene attended Northwestern and graduated from Northeast. She taught for 10 years at the industrial school for girls at Pineville, and did one year of teaching in Gulfport, Miss. She has taught at Southside four years and is a native of Colfax.

Lawrence is a Northwestern graduate and taught in Louisiana public schools one year and Arkansas public schools one year before coming to Southside eight years ago. He is a Saline native.

A Monroe native, Langston is a graduate of Southwestern at Lafayette and has been at Southside six years.

A. L. "Red" Swanson is superintendent of the school.

On Fateful Election Day

Lincoln's Reaction Recalled

Editor's Note—The returns clattered over the telegraph Pittsburgh Lincoln. New York State Lincoln. And so it went across the north on the election day 100 years ago. Here's how Lincoln fretted out that fateful night.

By TOM HENSHAW
Associated Press Writer

Prophetically, the day began with the boom of cannon.

The dull roar, rolling across the open prairie and echoing among the trim white houses, signalled the dawn of Tuesday, Nov. 6, 1860, in Springfield, Ill.—Election day in Abe Lincoln's home town.

It was an unfamiliar sound, soon to become all too familiar. Due in large part to the events of this day, it would be a long time before the cannon were stilled.

Lincoln, his lanky frame sprawled and contorted in a great arm chair, entertained a constant stream of visitors and well-wishers in his headquarters, the governor's room of the State House.

ISSUES

The talk, of course, was largely politics.

There were the issues—or, more properly, the causes, for, in this election, they were bigger than issues—the containment or expansion of slavery; possibly the preservation or dissolution of the Union itself.

There were the candidates the Republican Lincoln, exponent of containment; the young (3) pro-slavery Democrat, John C. Breckinridge; Stephen A. Douglas, a fellow Illinoisan of the "popular sovereignty" Democrats; forlorn old John Bell of the peace-at-any-price Constitutional Union party.

Lincoln appeared relaxed and cheerful. Once, when the conversation turned from politics, he expounded in some detail on rail-splitting and even rose from his chair to demonstrate his technique to the delight of his supporters.

But, every now and then, he couldn't resist speculative glance through the window at the polling place in the Court House across Sixth Street, where citizens milled about and election workers hawked their candidates and tickets outside the door.

CROWDS THIN

By 3 p. m., the crowd had thinned and the candidate strolled across the street to the Court House. Modestly, he cut his name from the top of the ticket and handed it in at the voting table while the crowd cheered and tried to slap him on the back.

(Miles away, at another polling place in Warren County, Mississippi, a courtly man with the air of a plantation owner quietly cast his ballot and sat back to await the results. What future would the country face under Lincoln? Sen. Jefferson Davis of Mississippi thought he knew.)

All signs pointed to a Lincoln victory.

The only hope of the embattled Democrats and the futile Unionists appeared to be a deadlock in the Electoral College. If none of the candidates had a majority of the electoral vote the decision would be made in the House of Representatives, with each state having but one vote.

The first returns began to trickle into Springfield. Then, shortly after 7 p. m., a significant one: nearby Decatur, Ill., showed large Republican gains over 1856. The atmosphere in the governor's room relaxed. But not too much

(Some 250 miles north, in Galena, Ill., a $50-a-month clerk puttered around his family's leather store. He often brooded over his failures, as a soldier, farmer, real estate man. Perhaps now he thought of the election. But, then, Ulysses S. Grant rarely concerned himself with politics.)

TRAILED SLOWLY

Reports trailed slowly and irregularly into the Springfield State House. By 9 p. m., even Lincoln could stand the suspense no longer. With several cronies, he walked to the telegraph office, where superintendent Wilson read him the returns directly from wires.

A definite Lincoln trend began to develop. Illinois was his. So was Indiana. By 10 p. m., indications were strong that the Republicans had swept the West. But the West was not the country. Pivotal New York and Pennsylvania had yet to report.

(A festive crowd gathered in a Washington theater to watch famed actor Joe Jefferson perform. The actor himself stepped out of his role to read the returns to the audience. They showed a partial Democratic success in New York City. The audience cheered. Lincoln was hissed.)

The candidate sprawled on a sofa in the crowded Springfield telegraph office while machines clicked out the returns. Around 11 p. m., the politically powerful East began to show in strength. Pittsburgh: Lincoln. Philadelphia: Lincoln: And finally, from his man in Philadelphia:

"Hon. A. Lincoln: Pennsylvania 70,000 for you: New York safe. Glory enough. S. Cameron."

CHEERS

Cheers swept the crowded office and even the imperturable Lincoln was heard to remark that the result exceeded his expectations.

(Far to the south, in a Texas army camp, a tall graying colonel wondered if he was to lead the coming expedition into Comanche Indian country. He wondered about the election, too. It concerned him deeply. For Robert E. Lee was both a soldier and a Virginian.)

Shortly after midnight, Lincoln and his friends adjourned to Watson's saloon, taken over for the night by the Republican ladies of Springfield. There the tables staggered under "oceans of coffee and continents of food." A hundred women greeted him with cries of "How do you do, Mr. President?"

"Oh!" cried one woman. "I've shaken hands with Mr. Lincoln!"

"Have you," sneered another. "Well, I've done better than that, for I was at the head of the table when he came in and had a shake there and then around and took my place at the foot of the line and shook hands with him again."

Reports continued to flow from the telegraph office to the reception hall. New York was coming in now. New York City Democratic margin cut to only 27,000. Finally, from Simeon Draper "New York, 50,000 majority for Lincoln."

Lincoln was elected!

The hall rang with cheers. People danced and yelled and pummelled their neighbors and the Republican campaign song welled up.

RUMORS

(Rumors swept Washington. South Carolina had seized Fort Moultrie in Charleston harbor. Untrue. Federal officials in the South were resigning. Partly true. A federal judge and a port collector in South Carolina quit the following day.)

Lincoln went back to the telegraph office. Southern returns were coming in now. Here the Lincoln vote was virtually nonexistent. But that was expected. Breckinridge was running strong. But it was too late now.

Satisfied, the candidate, now president-elect, went home to bed.

(In Washington, a mob swept through the Republican Wigwam on Indiana Avenue, smashing furniture and banners. Nine were arrested and police girded themselves for a night of riot and disorder.)

Stephen A. Douglas waited for the returns in the office of his friend John Forsyth's Register in Mobile, Ala., where he had wound up his campaign more in a plea for union than in a search for votes.

APPARENT

The big votes of the Northeast had scarcely begun to click over the wires when it was apparent that Lincoln was elected. Douglas grew more and more disconsolate; not so much for his own defeat but for what Lincoln's election would mean to the country, in Douglas' view.

Forsyth read to him an editorial he planned for the next edition of the Register. It urged a state convention to decide Alabama's future course. Douglas argued against it but Forsyth was adamant. The editorial went to press.

As he walked back to his room at Battle House through the darkened streets of Mobile, perhaps Douglas saw with great clarity the tragic years that lay ahead for, his secretary noted he looked "more hopeless than I had ever before seen him."

Congress Gets Many Headaches Over Statues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress gulped at the colossal statue it had ordered.

There sat the father of his country, half-nude and togged out as a Roman senator in toga and sandals. His right hand was held aloft, finger pointing sternly to the sky. A broadsword rested on his knee.

That was in 1841, and Congress and the nation have been wrangling about memorials to presidents ever since.

Now the big debate is over a Theodore Roosevelt memorial. A three-ringed celestial sphere model blew up in the Senate last session after T. R.'s daughter, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, said it would desecrate the memory of anyone.

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, says of the ill-fated design: "When I look at this thing here, I do not relate it to Teddy Roosevelt riding up San Juan Hill. If they ever put that thing up, I would be looking for a launching pad somewhere around it."

Votes For The Third State Are Votes For Kennedy Socialism

The Louisiana "third slate" of candidates for presidential electors now has been revealed in its true colors by one of its own 10 members — as a movement that cannot possibly have any effect except to help surrender Louisiana to Kennedy and thus to help put him and his Democratic Party plans for socialism into the White House.

Last week at a fund raising dinner in New Orleans one of the "third slates "elector candidates— Ed Dubuisson of Lafayette stated boastfully — according to press association dispatches, that this slate without a candidate would get 150,000 votes in Lousiana. Mr. Dubuisson probably could not find a single person outside of his own immediate clique with a sufficiently flexible imagination to agree that the slate will poll that many votes. But let's suppose that he is right and that it does get 150,000 votes. What does that mean?

It means that the third slate will be absolutely last, behind both Kennedy and Nixon and that it will be cut out of the presidential political picture at exactly the moment the polls close in this state next Tuesday night.

So far as deadlocks, electoral college voting and House elections are concerned, those 10 electors will long since have been forgotten. They will have no part in any of it.

The normal turnout of voters for next Tuesday is expected to be at least 650,000, perhaps 700,000 or more.

If Mr. Dubuisson's highly stretched estimate of 150,000 votes came true, there still would be 500,000 to 550,000 votes for Kennedy and Nixon. It does not take long to figure that there is no possible division of this vote between Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Nixon that could leave the "third slaters" anywhere but at pitiful last.

Mr. Dubuisson, perhaps realizing that he had unintentionally let the cat out of the bag, later raised his estimate to 180,000. The same quick thinking brings the same result — absolutely last.

What this means is that every vote cast for this slate of 10 worthless electors without a candidate Tuesday will be a vote cast to help Kennedy win in Louisiana and thus to help him win the presidency. That is untrue — and has been from the start — whether this ticket of 10 worthless presidential electors gets one vote or many votes.

Every vote for these electors without a candidate potentially is a vote to undermine Nixon and help Kennedy. And if they could get a million votes the next President of the United States will be Richard M. Nixon or John F. Kennedy.

Helping Kennedy means supporting socialism at the federal level and hiking taxes if necessary to carry out the Democratic Party's socialistic aims.

It means voting for programs expected to increase the cost of food 25 per cent.

It means voting for federal control or operation as opposed to free enterprise.

It means voting for federal legislation to ban states from having or passing right to work laws.

Helping Kennedy also means voting to end the achievements of the Eisenhower-Nixon administration in ending the Korean war and keeping us out of war ever since; in restoring stablity to our economy, checking inflation and halting further lowering of the purchasing power of the household dollar.

A "third slate", Help-Kennedy Vote is, voting to put an inexperienced, flippant young man into the presidency — a man who three times in this campaign alone, has made brash statements on grave foreign problems that could have opened the way for cold war to become hot and bloody: on the U2, on Cuba and on Red China.

In appeals to the public, some members of this "third slate" have asked that "at least you give us credit for being sincere."

If they are to be given credit for being sincere, then the public has the right to ask the question: "Sincere about what?"

If they are "sincere" about wanting to help Kennedy, why don't they come out and say so?

If they are sincere about wanting to help Kennedy, why run at all — why not urge voters to vote for Kennedy?

If they don't want to help Kennedy, why are they on the ballot?

These 10 gentlemen on the "third slate" must know exactly what they are doing. They have been around Louisiana and its politics too long not to know that every vote they get would be a potential Nixon vote if they were not running.

They must know that the ONLY result of their presence on the ballot is to give Kennedy two shots at winning Louisiana to one for Nixon.

If THAT is what they're sincere about their failure to say so amounts to — morally — a political fraud on the people.

Reassuring Polaris Bases

Russian reaction to the basing of U.S. missile submarines represents in effect the first evidence in many years that the Soviet Union is taking a defensive position.

Radio Moscow has warned that the Polaris base in Scotland would be the target for "an inevitable retaliatory blow" if used for aggression.

Since 1950 however, the Russian position has been one of imposing the military threat while the United States and the western allies had to hold fast to defensive policies of retaliation and "war deterrants."

Now the United States and Britain are reluctant to assume the new role, even though it carries with it less doubt and insecurity. Russian threats of retaliation which have sounded loudly and clearly since the U-2 incident, were aimed specifically this time at the British Isles when the Polaris missile submarines moved into Scotland.

The British government has launched a public relations campaign in an effort to avert a public outcry against the new naval base and its nuclear armaments. This is a strange way to accept the "top position" in the cold war, but this is usually the way Anglo-Saxons play a psychological advantage.

Prime Minister MacMillan recognized in an address to the House of Commons the risk of objections. He added, however, "I hope the House will feel that this new arrangement does not add to the risks to which we are all inevitably exposed in this nuclear age."

Nearly 40 per cent of the population of Sweden, or about 2.75 million people, have been vaccinated against polio since 1957.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says total assets of the nation's farmers increased last year to a new record high of $203.6 billion.

Senate Races Interesting

Rank Next To Question Of Who Will Win Presidency:

Democrats Certain To Retain Majority

The doubt is not about which political party will organize the Senate. There are and will continue to be enough Senators bearing the Democratic label to prevail and parcel out its chairmanships. But it is when organization is completed and chairmanships assigned that the divagations begin to manifest themselves.

A Senate Party which can swerve from Hubert Humphrey, Wayne Morse and William Proxmire at one end to Richard B. Russell, John L. McClellan and Harry F. Byrd at the other is such as incongruous collection that it is inherently unable to show a solid front on any issue of principle.

So no knowledgeable person talks much about party labels in the Senate. The true division is called "liberal" and "conservative." Right now as was shown win the Presidency, most interest is being shown throughout the recently in the bob - tailed session of Congress following the national party conventions there is a durable coalition of conservative Democrats and Republicans who rule the Senate.

The conservative Democrats are nearly all from the South. Roughly they include 17 Senators from 11 Southern States except the two from Texas and the two from Tennessee. The Senators from the nine Southern States coalesce rather easily with Republicans on fiscal and similar matters. All of these Southerners are holdovers or have been renominated and will be re-elected.

Just about as accurate a summing up of the situation as will be found has been made by the National Committee for an Effective Congress, a leftish outfit of which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is a shining light. The NCEC made a facile "list in the last Congress the Senate numbered 44 members who voted on the "liberal" side most of the time and 52 "conservatives."

Fracases now going on in eleven States probably will decide whether the Senate is to remain Liberal or conservative. The best known of the conservatives is Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, the Senate G.O.P. dean. He is expected to be elected without great trouble.

In Massachusetts senior Senator Leverett Saltonstall must face a heavy Kennedy majority at the head of the ticket. The Kennedy majority probably will not equal the 423,000 plurality the Bay State gave its own Calvin Coolidge over John W. Davis in 1924, but it could reach 350,000.

But Massachusetts is a ticket-splitting State. There have been scandals in the administration of Democratic Governor Foster Furcolo and the Democratic party is riddled. So Saltonstall is pocked to defeat Springfield's youthful Mayor Thomas J. O'Connor, who is the Democratic candidate.

The sharply defined battle areas are in Colorado, Kansas and South Dakota, seats which are currently Republican - held, and in Michigan, Montana, Minnesota and Oregon, which the Democrats are defending.

Quite the most interesting race has developed in Minnesota where the gun, radical Hubert Humphrey, who if he wins and the Democratic Presidential ticket wins, may be a hot contestant for the Senate Democratic Leader post, is seeking reelection.

Humphrey at the outset strongly occupied the favorite's role for re-election as did Kennedy to carry the State. The latest Presidential poll now gives Nixon a 50 per cent to 47 per cent lead over Kennedy, with 3 per cent undecided, in this State which Kennedy once seemed slated to carry.

But the biggest surprise in Minnesota has been the polls showing the decline o. Humphrey. In the Minneapolis Tribune poll six weeks ago Humphrey led his Republican opponent, P. Kenneth Peterson, 59 to 39. Two weeks ago this was shaved to 53 to 43 and last week the margin was 49 to 47 for Humphrey.

In South Dakota Senator Karl Mundt, Republican, at one time hard - pressed by Representative George McGovern, seems to have opened up a winning margin. In Kansas the chance of upsetting Republican Senator Andrew F. Schoeppel may not have vanished, but it has greatly diminished.

Also the news is less favorable for the Democrats in Oregon, where Mrs. Maurine Neuberger is their candidate against Republican former Governor Elmo Smith. In some other States the races are wide-open and could be decided by the trend in Presidential voting. The liberals still hope to win enough seats to give them a majority over the Republican-Southern coalition, but their chances are less luminous than they were a month ago.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

SENATOR FROM ARIZONA

During the course of this campaign, which will be decided by the people of America next Tuesday, I have been deeply offended by the Democrat tactic which I would describe as Operation President might be expected to Downgrade America.

We have been lashed with scornful criticism. Our shortcomings have been held up before the world until an American, hearing his country described by the Democratic candidate for hang his head in shame.

In every society or governmental organization there is always room for improvement. Progress has been the watchword of America since the founding of the Republic I cannot believe the public interest has been served by those who exaggerate our defects and minimize our achievements.

To anyone who truly loves this land and its people, it must be bewildering to hear the responsible leaders of the Democrat Party castigate us for our efforts in the very fields of social organization where our achievements have outstripped the world.

We have been clubbed and beaten with detailed criticism of our educational system. Yet this is the only nation in the world where tax supported schools are available to every child through 12 grades, where state supported universities make higher education readily available. Our rate of illiteracy is lower than that of any other nation which ever existed on the face of this earth.

Listening to the Democrat orators it would seem that millions of Americans receive inadequate medical care and that medical care of any kind is beyond the reach of a large segment of our population. And yet there are more doctors and more hospitals and more clinics, public and private, available to American citizens than exist in any other country on this earth. Americans as a people spent more money to provide free medical care for those who cannot pay than is now being spent by any other society on this earth.

We have been told that our economy is lagging, that our industrial machine is out of gear.

This bitter condemnation is offered in a year when, for the first time, we will achieve a $500 billion gross product output. And the economic organization of free men which has made this achievement possible is now downgraded and we are told that only government management of our economic affairs can produce progress.

As a nation we have given away more than $100 billion to other countries since the end of World War II — and yet we are told that this is not enough, that because we are miserly and stingy and selfish the other nations of the world have no respect for us and our prestige is at a low ebb.

We are told the Russians have outstripped us scientifically and yet we have 12 objects in outer space to the Russians' two.

We are told that our military capacity is limited and our defenses weak. Yet the realities of the world situation indicate that Russia admits our strength.

We are told that our treatment of minorities has given the rest of the world, including Soviet Russia, the right to condemn us. Yet we fought a war to free the slaves and red communism has enslaved 500 million people since the end of World War II.

We are told that freedom no longer works, that if we are to defeat communism, we must follow their example and establish a super - federal state to guide and control our lives.

Views Of Our Readers

Shreveport, La.

To The Editor:

This is written in regard to amendment No. 8 on which voters throughout the state will vote on November 8.

It is interesting to note that the leading proponents of the proposed Toledo Bend Dam are various politicians throughout the state and a few businessmen and people living near the affected area who expect quick riches.

The President of the Louisiana League of Women Voters has written letters to leading newspapers throughout the state opposing the passage of Amendment No. 8. The Louisiana League of Women Voters is a completely non-partisan group. The following is an excerpt from this letter," . . .Amendment No. 8 would dedicate this entire surplus (the Confederate Veterans tax money), estimated to provide $35,000,000 during the coming 10 year period, to the State Department of Public Works for water projects. The Toledo Bend Dam would have priority and would be the recipient of a 'soft loan' of $20,000,000 to use, to quote from the Amendment, on 'additional water conservation and recreation facilities, and these further developments of the water resources of the state.' This $20,000,000 would be expended without any legislative direction or control, and should the Sabine River Authority repay the $15,000,000 loan, this amount, too, could be expended by the Department of Public Works for other water projects with no legislative control. . ."

Could it be that the above referred-to politicians are concerned over the passage of this Amendment for the reason of gaining unaccountable control of this "windfall" of $20,000,000?

If the state will have a $35,000,000 surplus in an undedicated tax fund why has it become necessary that state taxes be raised periodically so that in 1959, according to the October 17, 1960, issue of "U. S. News & World Report", Louisiana was the fourth highest state in the nation on state and local taxes paid per $1,000 personal income.

Proponents of the proposed dam cite as their main reason for building this project the attraction of industry to the area. They have not been able to name a single business that has committed itself to move into the area in the event the proposed dam is built. This general area already has several lakes - Wallace, Bistineau, Caddo, Saline and Black, to name only a few - to which no industry at all has come. If the Toledo Dam area will attract much industry it would seem that the other lakes, the ones named above, would have attracted some industry.

The Wall Street Journal has recently listed the Tennessee Valley area as one of the distress areas of the nation. This is the same area where many people were displaced a few years ago in order that industry might move in.

The people in your area have nothing to gain from this project. They may very well lose by paying even higher taxes if the proposed dam is built because no assurance has or can be given that the money will ever be paid back. Newspapers are the only way in which many people may learn the true facts about an issue. I would urge you to give consideration to opposing Amendment No. 8.

To The Editor:

The radical National Democratic Party is simply taking the South for granted. They think that we have ears that never listen, and minds that never learn, and that we do not have enough courage to dare vote against what they dish up to us. They wrote a cruel platform that was repudiated by all of the delegates from the south, yet they say you have got to swallow it whether you like it or not, and they expect you to vote for young Jack Kennedy, who declares that he is going to force all of its provisions down your throats if he is elected.

Young Jack Kennedy and his radical crowd have written the charter for a second - rate socialist party — they have taken the good name of "Democratic Party" away from us and put it on the front of their new party as a cover up, like a doctor puts a sugar coating on a bitter pill, to make you swallow it without knowing what you are getting. Those who say to you, "Be a loyal Democrat" are asking you to look only at the sugar coating on the bitter pill concealed inside. They have reduced the Glorious name "Democratic Party" to mean nothing more than a cheap sugar coating for something repugnant to everything you hold dear that they want you to take with your eyes shut.

They talk about loyalty to the party of our fathers and grandfathers. What a shameless blasphemy it is when they say that. For they know that our father and grandfathers never dreamed that the name of the Democratic Party would ever be reduced to its present low estate. And they know that our ancestors would have boxed the ears of these young radicals if they had dared to propose what is now written in the Socialist - Democrat platform that young Jack Kennedy likes so well.

You cannot tell what's in a man's head by the hat he wears.

You cannot judge a lady's disposition by her smile.

You cannot know the quality of the drink inside a bottle just by reading the name printed on the label.

I would guess that almost everyone listening here today drinks Coca Cola from time to time, because you like it, and its quality is always the same. Just suppose the manufacturers should begin putting something else inside those bottles with a taste you did not like, but kept on using the same label "Coca Cola." Would you continue to buy it and drink it just because you wanted to be loyal to the good old name "Coca Cola"? I just wish that the national leaders of the Democratic Party would be as loyal to the principles of the Democratic Party as the makers of Coca Cola have been to the quality of their wholesome drink. It would, indeed, be refreshing. But no! The radicals have put a poisonous dose in the party's bottle, and they say to you, "Here!! Drink it. It's got the same old name, hasn't it? Be loyal!"

ROBERT H. McGIMSEY

OPPOSES TOLEDO DAM

To The Editor:

I read with great interest your stand on the 55 Constitutional amendments in last Sunday's paper. Anyone is to be admired for taking a position on controversial matters even though I strongly disagree with your statement on Amendment No. 8.

Frankly, it was a personal shock to me on reading that your newspaper endorsed the Toledo Bend Dam Proposal under Amendment No. 8. You are recommending a proposal that would cost Ouachita Parish taxpayers $70,000 a year for the next 10 years.

The valid arguments against construction of Toledo Bend Dam are mountainous and overpowering. I haven't read one piece of information on the proponents side that adds up logically in favor of the dam.

In the first place, I would assume that you are not in favor of dedicated taxes for a state agency, yet you have endorsed a project which dedicates large amounts from the Confederate Veterans Pension Fund to the Department of Public Works — a total of 35 million dollars over a 10 - year period — and has no strings attached except that the money he used for water projects!

Until recently I was unable to understand the conflicts in the Toledo Bend Dam feasibility report of the Dallas consulting engineering firm. In the past it has not been demonstrated that the project was economically feasible, yet this firm came along and made it look like "all things to all men" — and one that would pay for itself, too! It has now come to my attention that the Dallas consultants were granted the engineering planning contract at a reported fee of five per cent of the total cost prior to their starting the feasibility survey. Can any report be impartial and unbiased when its authors stand to receive $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 if the dam is built?

And government - owned power! Is any project worth it?

The fact that the federal government has entered the power field has long been condemned. By supporting Toledo Bend, you are encouraging a new type of public encroachment - namely, putting a state government in the power business!

The evils of Amendment No. 8 are now being recognized around the State. In our own Twin Cities both the Monroe and the West Monroe Chambers of Commerce, made up of local business men and merchants, have gone on record in opposition to Toledo Bend Dam.

Without going too deeply into the Toledo Bend Proposal, let me point out some key flaws in the proponents' arguments.

1. They say it will bring industry to the depressed area of West Central Louisiana. As a person familiar with Louisiana and East Texas, I say that no other lake in Louisiana or Texas has done this.

2. They say it will uplift the economy of the area when no other lake in Louisiana and Texas has done this. The population trends of parishes with lakes show little difference from parishes without lakes.

Toledo Bend Dam Proposal just can't be economically justified!

Students Show Handicrafts

Talent In Spotlight

By LYNN GARRETT
Staff Writer

An open house at Southside High School today from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. will give the general public an opportunity to view handicrafts produced by the students.

Southside, state training institute for boys, will have exhibits from the various classes on display in the Administration Building.

Boys ages 8-17 will be represented at the display, the first of its type at the school.

IMPORTANT PART

Officials pointed out that work of this type plays an important part in character development at the school. "In addition, most of the boys show a great deal of interest in this type of work," it was added.

Scheduled for exhibit are displays of painting, ceramics and weaving, from the classes of Mrs. Avis Phillips; woodworking, Olan Coffey, instructor; printing and photography, Ray Vineyard, instructor; crafts, Mrs. Jack Greene, instructor, and machine work, M. B. Lawrence, instructor.

J. W. Langston, instructor in auto mechanics, will not have an exhibit, but his classes are included in the activities division.

Under Mrs. Phillips' instruction, the youths learn various types of painting the several facets of ceramics, and weaving.

GUIDES

Coffey guides his classes in making many different types of items from wood, including lamp bases and cedar chests.

Vineyard and his classes do printing of letter heads and forms for the school, as well as school photography.

Mrs. Greene and her classes concentrate mainly on making items from scrap materials, such as egg shell, coffee grinds, rocks and gourds. The gourds were planted at the school by the youths.

Lawrence's classes will exhibit different types of machine work, including welding and sheet metal.

Everything made in these classes becomes the property of the boys, officials said.

ART TRAINING

Mrs. Phillips, a native of Monroe, is a graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College, and received her professional art training at Louisiana Tech. She has taught at Southside six years.

A graduate of Northwestern State College at Natchitoches, Coffey is an Ashland native. He taught two years in Louisiana public schools before joining Southside seven years ago.

A native of Hammond, Vineyard is a graduate of Northeast College and is in his second year of teaching at Southside.

Mrs. Greene attended Northwestern and graduated from Northeast. She taught for 10 years at the industrial school for girls at Pineville, and did one year of teaching in Gulfport, Miss. She has taught at Southside four years and is a native of Colfax.

Lawrence is a Northwestern graduate and taught in Louisiana public schools one year and Arkansas public schools one year before coming to Southside eight years ago. He is a Saline native.

A Monroe native, Langston is a graduate of Southwestern at Lafayette and has been at Southside six years.

A. L. "Red" Swanson is superintendent of the school.

On Fateful Election Day

Lincoln's Reaction Recalled

Editor's Note—The returns clattered over the telegraph. Pittsburgh Lincoln. New York State Lincoln. And so it went across the north on the election day 100 years ago. Here's how Lincoln fretted out that fateful night.

By TOM HENSHAW
Associated Press Writer

Prophetically, the day began with the boom of cannon.

The dull roar, rolling across the open prairie and echoing among the trim white houses, signalled the dawn of Tuesday, Nov. 6, 1860, in Springfield, Ill.—Election day in Abe Lincoln's home town.

It was an unfamiliar sound, soon to become all too familiar. Due in large part to the events of this day, it would be a long time before the cannon were stilled.

Lincoln, his lanky frame sprawled and contorted in a great arm chair, entertained a constant stream of visitors and well-wishers in his headquarters, the governor's room of the State House.

ISSUES

The talk, of course, was largely politics.

There were the issues—or, more properly, the causes, for, in this election, they were bigger than issues—the containment or expansion of slavery; possibly the preservation or dissolution of the Union itself.

There were the candidates the Republican Lincoln, exponent of containment; the young (3) pro-slavery Democrat, John C. Breckinridge; Stephen A. Douglas, a fellow Illinoisan of the "popular sovereignty" Democrats; forlorn old John Bell of the peace-at-any-price Constitutional Union party.

Lincoln appeared relaxed and cheerful. Once, when the conversation turned from politics, he expounded in some detail on rail-splitting and even rose from his chair to demonstrate his technique to the delight of his supporters.

But, every now and then, he couldn't resist speculative glance through the window at the polling place in the Court House across Sixth Street, where citizens milled about and election workers hawked their candidates and tickets outside the door.

CROWDS THIN

By 3 p. m., the crowd had thinned and the candidate strolled across the street to the Court House. Modestly, he cut his name from the top of the ticket and handed it in at the voting table while the crowd cheered and tried to slap him on the back.

(Miles away, at another polling place in Warren County, Mississippi, a courtly man with the air of a plantation owner quietly cast his ballot and sat back to await the results. What future would the country face under Lincoln? Sen. Jefferson Davis of Mississippi thought he knew.)

All signs pointed to a Lincoln victory.

The only hope of the embattled Democrats and the futile Unionists appeared to be a deadlock in the Electoral College. If none of the candidates had a majority of the electoral vote the decision would be made in the House of Representatives, with each state having but one vote.

The first returns began to trickle into Springfield. Then, shortly after 7 p. m., a significant one: nearby Decatur, Ill., showed large Republican gains over 1856. The atmosphere in the governor's room relaxed. But not too much

(Some 250 miles north, in Galena, Ill., a $50-a-month clerk puttered around his family's leather store. He often brooded over his failures, as a soldier, farmer, real estate man. Perhaps now he thought of the election. But, then, Ulysses S. Grant rarely concerned himself with politics.)

TRAILED SLOWLY

Reports trailed slowly and irregularly into the Springfield State House. By 9 p. m., even Lincoln could stand the suspense no longer. With several cronies, he walked to the telegraph office, where superintendent Wilson read him the returns directly from wires.

A definite Lincoln trend began to develop. Illinois was his. So was Indiana. By 10 p. m., indications were strong that the Republicans had swept the West. But the West was not the country. Pivotal New York and Pennsylvania had yet to report.

(A festive crowd gathered in a Washington theater to watch famed actor Joe Jefferson perform. The actor himself stepped out of his role to read the returns to the audience. They showed a partial Democratic success in New York City. The audience cheered. Lincoln was hissed.)

The candidate sprawled on a sofa in the crowded Springfield telegraph office while machines clicked out the returns. Around 11 p. m., the politically powerful East began to show in strength. Pittsburgh: Lincoln. Philadelphia: Lincoln: And finally, from his man in Philadelphia:

"Hon. A. Lincoln: Pennsylvania 70,000 for you: New York safe. Glory enough. S. Cameron."

CHEERS

Cheers swept the crowded office and even the imperturable Lincoln was heard to remark that the result exceeded his expectations.

(Far to the south, in a Texas army camp, a tall graying colonel wondered if he was to lead the coming expedition into Comanche Indian country. He wondered about the election, too. It concerned him deeply. For Robert E. Lee was both a soldier and a Virginian.)

Shortly after midnight, Lincoln and his friends adjourned to Watson's saloon, taken over for the night by the Republican ladies of Springfield. There the tables staggered under "oceans of coffee and continents of food." A hundred women greeted him with cries of "How do you do, Mr. President?"

"Oh!" cried one woman. "I've shaken hands with Mr. Lincoln!"

"Have you," sneered another. "Well, I've done better than that, for I was at the head of the table when he came in and had a shake there and then around and took my place at the foot of the line and shook hands with him again."

Reports continued to flow from the telegraph office to the reception hall. New York was coming in now. New York City Democratic margin cut to only 27,000. Finally, from Simeon Draper "New York, 50,000 majority for Lincoln."

Lincoln was elected!

The hall rang with cheers. People danced and yelled and pummelled their neighbors and the Republican campaign song welled up.

RUMORS

(Rumors swept Washington. South Carolina had seized Fort Moultrie in Charleston harbor. Untrue. Federal officials in the South were resigning. Partly true. A federal judge and a port collector in South Carolina quit the following day.)

Lincoln went back to the telegraph office. Southern returns were coming in now. Here the Lincoln vote was virtually nonexistent. But that was expected. Breckinridge was running strong. But it was too late now.

Satisfied, the candidate, now president-elect, went home to bed.

(In Washington, a mob swept through the Republican Wigwam on Indiana Avenue, smashing furniture and banners. Nine were arrested and police girded themselves for a night of riot and disorder.)

Stephen A. Douglas waited for the returns in the office of his friend John Forsyth's Register in Mobile, Ala., where he had wound up his campaign more in a plea for union than in a search for votes.

APPARENT

The big votes of the Northeast had scarcely begun to click over the wires when it was apparent that Lincoln was elected. Douglas grew more and more disconsolate; not so much for his own defeat but for what Lincoln's election would mean to the country, in Douglas' view.

Forsyth read to him an editorial he planned for the next edition of the Register. It urged a state convention to decide Alabama's future course. Douglas argued against it but Forsyth was adamant. The editorial went to press.

As he walked back to his room at Battle House through the darkened streets of Mobile, perhaps Douglas saw with great clarity the tragic years that lay ahead for, his secretary noted he looked "more hopeless than I had ever before seen him."

Congress Gets Many Headaches Over Statues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress gulped at the colossal statue it had ordered.

There sat the father of his country, half-nude and togged out as a Roman senator in toga and sandals. His right hand was held aloft, finger pointing sternly to the sky. A broadsword rested on his knee.

That was in 1841, and Congress and the nation have been wrangling about memorials to presidents ever since.

Now the big debate is over a Theodore Roosevelt memorial. A three-ringed celestial sphere model blew up in the Senate last session after T. R.'s daughter, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, said it would desecrate the memory of anyone.

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, says of the ill-fated design: "When I look at this thing here, I do not relate it to Teddy Roosevelt riding up San Juan Hill. If they ever put that thing up, I would be looking for a launching pad somewhere around it."

2 Women Seek Senate, 32 Running For House

EDITOR'S NOTE—Besides the increasing number of women in politics who work for their parties and run for offices on the local and state levels, this fall there are 35 women campaigning to go to Washington. Thirty-two of them are candidates for the House of Representatives and three are running for two Senate seats.

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The odds are that the U.S. Senate soon will have two women instead of one among 100.

And, with 32 women running for House, the chances of feminine additions here are good.

Whatever happens Tuesday, Maine is sure to send a woman to the Senate again.

For the first time in history, that state has two women running against each other for a Senate seat.

Election pundits right now give the edge to Republican Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith, who has been the lone woman in the Senate since 1949. She's seeking a third term against Democratic Lucia Cormier, a Maine legislator.

With Maine sure to provide one woman, Oregon may add the name of Mrs. Maurine Neuberger to that once exclusive club.

Mrs. Neuberger, widow of the late Sen. Richard Neuberger, D-Ore., and a veteran of her own state legislature, worked closely with her husband and hopes to continue his "ideals and purposes."

She is given an edge by Oregon political observers to win against her Republican opponent, Elmo Smith, newspaper publisher and former governor of Oregon.

If early estimates are borne out in the voting, Mrs. Neuberger would give the Democrats a woman on their side of the aisle for the first time since Sen. Hattie Caraway of Arkansas left in 1945.

Face-to-face television appearances are figuring in the Maine and Oregon races as they are in the presidential battle between Sen. John F. Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

So far, the Maine battle between two former school teachers seems to be following the presidential issues. Mrs. Smith, who has been a member of the Appropriations and Armed Services Committees in the Senate, has been urging voters to "look at the record" and criticizing her opponent for "wild promises."

Miss Cormier, who runs a stationery and gift store and leads the Democratic minority in Maine's House of Representatives, is attacking the GOP record.

Though Maine politicos view Mrs. Smith as the favorite now, they give Miss Cormier an outside chance. It depends on gubernatorial and presidential vote. She could benefit from the coat-tail effects of an upsurge for the national Democratic ticket or on the popularity of her party's governor candidate, Frank M. Coffin.

On the House side:

Thirty-two women candidates emerged from the primary battlefields, including eight Democratic and six Republican incumbents. This was a little less than in 1958 when 38 women ran for House seats.

The 14 Congresswomen running for re-election all seem assured of their seats, according to reports, with one possible exception.

Facing the toughest fight and a possible setback is Mrs. Florence Dwyer, R-N. who has represented the industrial 6th district for two terms. Some of her fellow politicians say Mrs. Dwyer has never had an easy fight since she entered politics. Before her first Congressional victory, she served eight terms in the New Jersey Legislature.

She faces an opponent she's defeated before, Jack B. Dunn, 48, sales manager for a Jersey City food firm and an ardent supporter of Sen. John F. Kennedy. He served on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff in World War II and for the last 14 years has worked on the resettlement of European refugees.

Mrs. Dwyer, too, could see her political fortunes hang on how the presidential ticket goes.

Democrats in the know say there are four women's races where they might pick up a seat. Republicans don't seriously look for any new feminine faces on their side of the House.

The four Democratic ladies to watch:

1—Mrs. Julia Butler Hansen of Cathlamet, Wash., a member of the House of Representatives in her state since 1938 and first woman speaker pro tem, could win a seat in Washington's 3rd district. It's the first try for Congress for this mother of a teen-age son, who also manages two companies. Mrs. Hansen is seeking the seat of the late Republican Rep. Russell V. Mack. Her opponent, Dale M. Nordquist, is a Centralia, Wash., attorney with eight years in the state Senate. Some Republicans here concede the race "awfully tight."

2—Ex-Rep. Coya Knutson, D-Minn., is on the comeback trail after one term out of Congress. Her chances are rated good now that her husband, who staged a "Coya Come Home" campaign against her last time, is back in her corner. Mrs. Knutson is running against Odin Langin, who took her seat away in 1958. As an incumbent in Minnesota's 9th District, a predominantly farm area, Langin is given a slight edge, but the race is generally considered a tossup. Coya overcame her biggest hurdle by winning a primary in which party leaders tried to purge her. Now they're rallying to her cause.

Coya, 48, a former music teacher who often campaigns with an accordion, served in Congress from 1954 to 1958.

3—Republicans and Democrats disagree over the chances of Dorothy O'Brien, former public health nurse and manager of a 320-acre farm, who is seeking the seat of 78-year-old GOP incumbent Noah Mason in Illinois' 15th District. He turned to politics after a career as teacher, school principal and superintendent and has served 12 terms in Congress.

Republicans report Mason's victory is a cinch in a district now seen as safe for Nixon, too. But, Democrats say their Miss O'Brien in her early 40s, who lost to Mason by some 5,500 votes in 1958, can surely topple him this time.

4—In California, another repeater trying to oust an entrenched Republican is Mrs. Rudd Brown, granddaughter of William Jennings Bryan and daughter of the late Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen Rhode. Mrs. Brown, an attractive 39-year-old brunette came within less than 10,000 votes of upsetting incumbent Edgar W. Hiestand in 1958. The campaign in this 21st District is being concentrated on an airplane industrial area, where there have been plant layoffs. Mrs. Brown is trying for the labor vote by playing up Hiestand's vote against appropriations the Democrats say would have averted airplane industry layoffs. The district is rated a tossup.

An unexpected woman candidate on the Democratic side was Mrs. Mary Kennedy of Lynn, Mass., a state committeewoman who has worked in the motor vehicle registry. She was a latecomer candidate in the 6th district against Rep. William H. Bates, Harvard Business School graduate and a six-term Congressman.

It's one of the state's strongest Republican districts, but Democrats are saying: "With a name like that" how can Mrs. Kennedy miss.

Other women trying to break into Congress this year:

Illinois (24th Dist): Mrs. J. F. Schlafy Jr., 36, president of the Illinois Federation of Republican Women, a lecturer on government somewhat hopelessly challenging Democratic Rep. Charles Melvin Price, former newspaperman and Congressman since 1945.

Michigan (which with eight has the biggest slate of women running for Congress): Democrat Miss Mary Harden, former director of public school curriculum in Wayne, Mich., battles newcomer James Harvey, 37, lawyer and former mayor of Saginaw. He's given the edge in the 8th District, which usually goes Republican.

In the 14th District, Mrs. Lois Nair of Detroit, former school teacher long active in the Republican party, seems far outclassed in a five-way race with Rep. Louis C. Rabaut, Democratic Congressman for the past 12 terms.

In other Michigan districts, minor party candidates with little chance are Mary Mills, Socialist-Labor candidate in the 7th, Mildred Montgomery, Prohibition candidate, 10th, Lucy Larkin, Prohibition, 16th, Sadie Grass, Tax Cut ticket, 17th, and Phyllis G. Kile, Prohibition, 18th.

New Mexico also has a feminine line Prohibitionist entry, Helen M. Galloway, a candidate at large.

A Liberal candidate in a three-way race in New York's 33rd is Mrs. Winfred Harberson.

New Jersey gives only an outside chance to Mrs. Katharine Elkus White, Democratic state highway commissioner and former mayor of Red Bank, in her 3rd District race against James C. Auchincloss, Republican who has represented the district since 1943.

"The whole Republican party would have to go to pot before we'd lose that district," said one GOP national spokesman.

Pennsylvania's 27th District has a new feminine campaigner in Mrs. Margaret Lee Walgren, an intrepid Democrat and onetime psychology teacher. Republicans give her no chance at all against their present Congressman James G. Fulton, who returned from the Pacific combat area in 1945 to take his seat. Democrats won't write off Mrs. Walgren, though, especially if Kennedy draws out the Democratic vote in Alleghany County.

Another minor party entry—in Texas—is Dorothy Wyvell, 16th District, Constitutional party.

THE MUSIC WORLD

Boris Godunov Was Excellent

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI)—What a pity Modest Moussorgsky could not have been present when the Metropolitan Opera revived "Boris Godunov" at the beginning of its new season.

It was quite out of the question of course, since the 19th century Russian drunk has been dead for 79 years. But Boris is a his opera and for that reason he had an intensely personal interest in protecting it.

If he had been present he surely would have slipped out during the first act and called the cops. He could have claimed most reasonably that this wasn't his Boris but a plagiarism of his Boris.

To be sure, he was given full credit. The eminent contemporary Russian composer, Dmitri Shostakovich was credited only as the author of a new orchestration. But what an orchestration! It amounted to a new creation.

That sort of thing drove Moussorgsky to drink—not that he really needed to be driven in that direction. As a man, he was every inch a weakling. But as a creative genius his integrity was made of steel.

He used to tell Nicholas Rimsky Korsakoff and other conventional musicians of his day: Regardless of whether or not this piece of mine is ever performed, I won't change a note of it.

As a man his affliction was Vodka. As a genius it was originality. His appetitie for both was insatiable. The original Boris had no part for a prima donna. Not only was it with a heroine, it had no women in it apart from the choruses.

He was persuaded to put a minor heroine into it, and it is a lasting tribute to the race of prima donnas that the leading Russian prima donna of the day staked her career on getting Boris performed. There was nothing in it for her. She merely thought the drunk had a right to be original.

Everyone knows it is possible to be too original, even if you are a genius. No one in music would think of altering many notes of Mozart or Verdi or Puccini—"arranging" that is. But apart from his songs, Moussorgsky is rarely performed in his original ways.

TAMPERING OLD STUFF

This tampering with Boris is a very old controversy. Fifteen years after Moussorgsky's death (in 1881) Rimsky Korsakoff made the first "arrangement."

Damnation: Old Novel, New Light

THE DAMNATION OF THERON WARE. By Harold Frederic. Edited by Everett Carter. Belknap Press - Harvard. $4.50.

It was many years ago that I first read this novel, originally published in 1896 and now a worthy addition to the fine John Harvard Library edited by Howard Mumford Jones. In its day it was daring and popular; it appeared in England as "Illumination." It's no longer daring, nor likely to be popular. But it's on a subject of everlasting importance the moral significance of knowledge; and though you can find deeper, better, more scintillating and faster - moving novels, this is a welcome change of ficitional pace and something definitely to keep in mind.

The Reverend Mr. Ware is a handsome young Methodist with the gift of gab. He'd hoped his bishop would assign him to a wealthy parish, but instead as his pretty wife Alice laments, "we're poked off to that miserable Octavius." It's an upstate New York town where the trustees are hard-shell old - timers who expect sermons on hellfire, brimstone and damnation. So the young minister runs into "evil" influences A broad - minded priest, a doctor who embodies the questing scientific spirit, a pair of fund - raising mountebanks, and beautiful Ceilia, free - thinking and free-acting. Nothing bred in him can stand up against these temptations, so he "falls," falls even into the gutter, and finally resigns the ministry, returns to his forgiving wife and changes to a business career.

It seems to me now like a novel in which innocence is too much like ignorance, the scientific spirit too niggling, sex — however much it shocked 1890 readers—too tepid and the church too hidebound. But for those times and ours, the problems were real, and for those times, the terms were; and as in every book out of the past, you read not only for the contribution to your present and presumably enlightened mood, but also for the understanding it gives of the age of your forebears — even if it does no more than remind you, fascinatingly, that New York once had an elegant Murray Hill Hotel, and cable cars and hackmen; that churchmen used to object to running trolley cars on Sunday; that you got a drink of water in the train out of a tin cup on a chain; and that a doctor's visit cost $2—and they complained even about that.

MARCH OF SCIENCE

Seek Communion With 'Worlds'

Editor's note — Those stars in the sky may be more than just winking and blinking at us. Possibly the blinks are light rays from inhabited planets flashing signals earthward. Scientists are cocking sensitive radio ears to space to see if they can get the message.

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Writer

Scientists in this country and elsewhere are cautiously hatching ideas for getting in touch with other worlds.

They are motivated by the belief that in the universe there are 100 million planets something like our own and that many of them are populated by beings much smarter than Earthlings.

In our little speck of the universe, the galaxy called the Milky Way, they think there are thousands of such worlds. Some of these are believed to be older than the Earth and technologically far ahead of us.

It is quite likely, the scientists say, that some of these worlds are reaching out toward each other with their facilities for communication. The Earth may be one of the communication targets. Radio signals from highly developed civilizations may be flashing past us right now.

It is considered probable that some of these other worlds have aimed satellites toward their likely-looking neighbors, possibly including us.

This could mean that a cosmic communication satellite is circling our sun, waiting for us to give it the go-ahead with a message.

Instead of radio signals or satellites some of these other worlds could be broadcasting heat waves. Still others might have a kind of super-light ray, brighter than the sun, which they could switch off and on. This could produce a visual message for some other world clever enough to read it.

The possibility of a cosmic satellite in our front yard has been raised by Prof. Ronald N. Bracewell, radio astronomy expert at Stanford University.

Prof. Bracewell offered his idea in the British scientific magazine Nature. He did this while other scientists in this country were making their first systematic effort to detect radio messages from other worlds.

For six hours daily over a one-month period scientists at the National Radio Astronomy Laboratory at Green Bank, W. Va., turned a big radio ear toward two solar systems something like our own.

This was a test run for the Green Bank instrument and the scientists expected nothing. They got nothing. But the attempt set off a flurry of suggestions from other scientists.

Prof. Bracewell reasoned that some other worlds already have communicated with each other, possibly by some means unknown to us.

For the present, one way of our getting into the act, he says, is to start interrogating the region of the sun with radio impulses. If a cosmic radio satellite is anywhere around, and if we hit its wave length, then it may send something back to us on that frequency.

Crusade For Wisdom Good Interesting

THE SQUEEZE: Cities Without Space. By Edward Higbee; foreword by Fairfield Osborn. Morrow. $5.95.

America, Osborn warns, is becoming in many ways less "habitable," not so good a living place for leisure, work, health or happiness. Higbee explains that we misuse space. The city, he says, is the most characteristic creation of a society; "our cities show what we are." Around them stretches suburbia. Then there are recreation areas perhaps as distant as the shore. What we do with all these, says Higbee, and with the associated circulation systems, is bad and gets worse.

There were temple cities, and cathedral cities; we have work cities. At bottom they no longer collect enough money to solve their problems, and they desperately need state and federal help. But the main point is, what to do with money if they get it, and Higbee's general indignant conclusion seems to be: Anything but what they do with it now.

He deplores the too little park space; the failure to buy up cheap for future use adjacnt fields and pastures bound to be developed and become expensive; the subsidy of highways as against the taxing of railroads handling so many more passengers; the indiscriminate parking on streets that are public property; the demolition of slums to make way for, eventually, more slums; the ill-planned suburbs.

Some figures shock you: Land costs for a piece of road 20 years ago could have been $20,000 but are now $30 million; new building in ancient Rome sets aside three to four times as much recreation space as new building in modern New York; the Maine-to-Texas coast is 3,700 miles long, but only 240 miles belong to the public and not all of that is for general use. He approves Chicago — his telling examples are taken from all over the country;- ridicules New York's Robert Moses for his $83 million cross-town elevated highway; regrets that planning in general is entrusted to highway engineers; wishes Lincoln Center for the Creative Arts faced Central Park insted of being buried back in a onetime slum area.

Space is the key to every aspect of a community's life, he says, and he proposes ways for its wise use.

If you ride or walk, own your home or rent, live in town or suburb, and if you wish you didn't, this crusading book tells you how to get out from under.

Unraveling Complexity In This One

EZRA POUND. By Charles Norman. Macmillan. $6.95.

The most contrary creative figure alive today, Pound gave help and guidance of an inestimable value to the contemporary poet, but he also gave the cause of the poet as a member of our society a wicked, damaging body-blow.

Norman testifies eloquently to this Pound conundrum in the most detailed study yet made of the Idaho youth who went into exile in London, Paris, Venice and Rapallo, played a part impossible to exaggerate in the development of many writers, for instance T. S. Eliot, produced some of the finest poetry of our time, and wound up in a Washington asylum accused of treason and adjudged insane.

This is a great and also tragic story. Here are the stars in our poetic and artistic firmament — Frost, Amy Lowell, Yeats, William Carlos Williams, Joyce, Stein, Cummings, Marianne Moore, Gaudier - Brzeska, Ford Madox Ford. Here too are not only the friendships but the disillusion, the let-down, the betrayal, and those bewildering vitiations of the spirit of poetry by the poet himself — the commitment to radical economic theory, the anti-Semitism and finally the wartime attacks on Roosevelt and the United States. Norman charitably lays this aberration to Pound's "concern for people, for the ordinary man struggling against economic odds."

There can't be any other modern writer with so complex a character, involved so completely in the total contemporary literary life, and so hard to capture in a single biography. Norman has assembled countless facts, and the essential portrait begins to emerge.

Recalling The Conflict Of Civil War

The word is out among book publishers that the centennial years of the Civil War are nigh. Fall lists are offering a new wave of publications recalling the 1861-65 conflict. Here are three representatives of September prints.

HORSEMEN BLUE AND GRAY. Pictures selected by Hirst Dillon Mihollen, text by James Ralph Johnson and Alfred Hoyt Bill. Oxford. $10.

The pounding of hoofbeats and the clash of sabres —lost sounds in modern war— echo through this handsome chronicle of the calvary's role in the Civil War. The pictures are stirring, from the vivid battle sketches to the excellent gallery of troopers and their commanders. The text is told largely in the words of participants, thereby achieving a sense of freshness apart from the usual dry recitals in books of this type. Both pictures and text bespeak thorough and careful research, resulting in a book with a flair for rare nuggets of information, one that makes exciting reading.

BUCKTAILED WILDCATS. By Edwin A. Glover, Yoseloff. $5.95.

The hazardous procedures of early Civil War recruiting brought into being many regiments which had a character all their own. One of the most individualistic was the Pennsylvania Bucktails, hardy lumbermen from north central Pennsylvania who decorated their hats with the tails of buck deer. They were a belligerent, hard fighting outfit, thrust to the forefront of practically every battle in which they took part. Few individuals emerge from the mass of regimental ranks but the story is interestingly told and merits consideration as a characteristic picture of the Civil War volunteer.

MY FATHER, GENERAL LEE. By Rorbert E. Lee Jr. New introduction by Philip Van Doren Stern. Doubleday. $5.95.

To those who picture Robert E. Lee as wholly austere, aloof and unbending, his letters to his family are a revelation. They show warmth and affection, a sense of humor that is surprising. These letters were woven into an appealing and intimate narrative by his son and published in 1904, to immediately take place as a valued source book on Lee. Now they are republished, with a sympathetic introduction by Philip Van Doren Stern, and a gallery of Lee portraits. It is a book requisite for complete understanding of the great Confederate captain.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

The problem of filming ballet was dealt with on a grand scale in the movie version of Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake" seen at a local movie theatre Thursday.

Nine color cameras located throughout Moscow's Bolshoi Theatre did the work of recording the Russian classic. Ballet in Russian dates from the courts of the czars and has held on as a tradition into the present era. The filming of this work, with stars Maya Plisetskaya and Nickolai Fadeyechev as prima ballerina and leading male dancer respectively, is an achievement which outreaches today's political turmoil.

LIGHTER

"Rejoice, Dear Hearts," was the attitude of Brother Dave Gardner who appeared at Louisiana Tech last Wednesday. Gardner, who uses the Andy Griffith-Tennessee Ernie approach to humor, proved to be entertaining if not entirely original.

Comedy with a southern exposure apparently has taken its place along side the Irish, English, Yiddish and Germanic accented presentations.

Various exposures to another subject call for a clarification of the lines in Little Theatre's "Seven Year Itch." It seems that the leading lady's script referred to a picture in the magazine "U. S. Camera," in which she posed with "driftwood, sand and me," for three bare textures. Don't be disappointed if you grab a copy of this photography magazine and find absolutely no bare facts between the covers. The contents of those we viewed and reviewed here after the tip from the play proved to be advertisements, technical articles on photo development and examples of interest-getting pictures in color and black and white,

MANTOVANI

The man with the singing strings in his orchestra lived up to the reputation an entertainer who had received a citation from the Queen of England. Mantovani, whose orchestral arrangements recall the background haze of the Moulin Rouge movie of Toulouse Lautrec's day, is the opposite number from Chris Barber's dixieland jazz presented on the Northeast series a couple of week's back.

Both Barber and Mantovani are British musicians — very proper and completely thorough — and appeal to utterly different emotions and audiences. Right now, the scales tip in favor of Mantovani for the most appealing entertainment witnessed thus far in the season.

COMING

The Northeast Louisiana Shrine Club is sponsoring a performance of "The Moon is Blue," slated for 8 p.m. Friday at Neville Auditorium. The sophisticated comedy is a Hugh Herbert production with an all-pro cast. Tickets are available from any member of the Shrine club. Stars will be Marcy Harrington and Henry Wideman.

A forthcoming offering on the Northeast State Concerts bill will be the musical comedy "Fiorello," slated for December 2. The production has been drawing capacity crowds at the Shubert Theatre in Chicago, but will pull up stakes and go on the road for a mid-winter tour.

Also come reports from the musical comedy scene that "Bye Bye Birdie" is still playing to standing room only crowds in New York and a road show version is being organized. This is good news for several Louisiana and Texas natives who have irons — and other precious metals — in this particular fire. With the musical playing since last April 14, it looks like "Birdie" may be the goose that laid the golden egg — in the economic sense, of course.

The TOP TEN

1. SAVE THE LAST DANCE FOR ME, Drifters.
2. I WANT TO BE WANTED, Brenda Lee.
3. CHAIN GANG, Sam Cooke.
4. DEVIL OR ANGEL, Bobby Vee.
5. MY HEART HAS A MIND OF ITS OWN, Connie Francis.
6. LET'S THINK ABOUT LIVING, Bob Luman.
7. GEORGIA ON MY MIND, Ray Charles.
8. DON'T BE CRUEL, Bill Black's Combo.
9. YOU TALK TOO MUCH, Joe Jones.
10. KIDDIO, Brook Benton.

Assignment Assassination Is Top Book

SEVEN MEN AT DAYBREAK. By Alan Burgess. Dutton $3.95.

In Prague, in the suburb of Holesovice, there is a sharp bend in the highway where trolleys stop for passengers and auots are obliged to cut their speed sharply on a clear spring day, May 27, 1942, Hitler's terrifying right arm, protector of Czechoslovakia, S. S. General Reinhard Heydrich, was alone in his green Mercedes with his driver and bodyguard Klein when they slowed at this spot. Two Czechs, Jan Kubis and Josef Gabchick, waited with a Sten gun and grenades. The grenades did the job, and Heydrich died June 4. For this single assassination, the Germans wiped out the town of Lidice and executed hundreds of other people with a barbaric brutality that shocked the Allied world.

The story of the pair of Czechs sent out from England on this fateful assignment, and of some of their comrades parachuted to Czech territory, is told here in stirring detail.

When the two principals landed, one suffered a foot injury that laid him, and them, up for days. They found contacts hard to establish. They were delayed by the fears of the core of the incipient resistance forces that too early a blow would end their entire underground. They used up time in an incident at Pilsen, and they fell in love idyllically. At the final rendezvous, after a couple of Czechs lost their courage before the threats of unendurable reprisals, there were five other men to give the figure seven of the title.

This is a story of raw bravery hard to match in the hero-studded history of World War II. It's all the more touching, too, for the amateurishness of these espionage novices. In fiction spies never make a slip; here suits bore the marks of London tailors, the saboteurs left their revolvers about, and forgot a telltale necktie; they neglected to bury a parachute that would give them away.

Musical About Israel Of Today Is On Schedule

NEW YORK (AP) — A romantic musical about present-day Israel is on Broadway's producing prospectus for next season. It would be the first with such locale.

Tentatively titled "Ruth," the project has been written by Don Appell, libretto, and Jerry Herman, score and lyrics. For authentic atmosphere, the pair wrote "Ruth" in Israel last spring.

The story concerns the romance of two middle-aged Americans who meet during a visit to the young nation.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS,
Ouachita Parish Librarian

On November 1 the number of books in the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library was 65,499. This is three times the number in the book collection years ago, but the library still needs many more books to fill the numerous and varied requests for reading material. There are now five libraries in the Ouachita Parish Library system and the books are widely scattered. New books are added almost every day and this week there are many new ones from which readers may make their selections.

In the field of fiction the new titles are most interesting. "Adrienne" by Barbara Levy has it's setting in pre-Revolutionary France. It is a romantic novel in the best tradition and will appeal to all who like this sort of story. "Where the High Winds Blow" by David Walker has it's setting in the frozen wilderness of Canada's Northwest Province. It is the story of Simon Skafe, the two women in his life and of the material empire which he founded. "The Soldier" by Richard Powell has it's locale on a small island in the Pacific during World War II. It is the story of a General who had lost interest in life and how he found it and returned to take up his place in the chain of humanity. "Many A Voyage" is the title of the latest book by Loula Grace Erdman. It is a book which will appeal especially to women. A slightly old-fashioned nostalgic novel is "The Nightingale" by Agnes Sligh Turnbull. It's time is the turn of the century and the setting is a small Pennsylvania town. This is the book for those who like a good clean story.

A powerful novel, translated from the Greek is "The Last Temptation of Christ" by Nikos Kazantzakis. It is a book whose impact will be enormous and it is certain to be discussed. Martha Albrand is an expert in the field of international intrigue and espoinage. Her latest book is called "Meet Me Tonight" and is thrilling from the first to the last word. A mystery story by Rex Stout is always eagerly received. His latest one is "Too Many Clients". George Herman Coxe also has a new mystery. It's title is "Last Commandment. Both of these are good stories of their kind.

The field of non-fiction ranges over a wide variety of subjects. "American Culture and Catholic Schools" is the title of a book by Emmett McLoughlin. The library had a number of requests for this book and it is certain to be widely read. Cynthia Maus has compiled a number of beautiful books on the subject of religion and fine arts. Her latest one is called "The Church and the Fine Arts". It is well written and beautifully illustrated. "Our Merchant Marine Academy" by Irving Crump will be especially interesting to boys who want to know more about this Government school. The book is well-written and factual.

"A Handbook of Christian Feasts and Customs by Francis Weiser is a treasure house of information and will be widely used. "1001 Questions Answered About the New Science" is the title of a book by David Oakes Woodbury. This will help many readers understand the world in which we live. "Brighter Than a Thousand Suns" by Robert Jungk is the history of the atomic scientists and how their work affected their lives. Another valuable book in the field of science is "Introduction to Historical geology" by Raymond Cecil Moore. This should be especially valuable to college students.

People in this area are dilligent gardners and will be interested in the new book by Mary B. Stewart called "The Southern Gardener." It contains much valuable information, suited to our own locality. Many requests come to the library for books about training dogs. The latest one is called "Dog Obedience Training". The author is Milo Pearsall, who has had a great deal of experience in this field. A book which every woman should read is "Management in the Home; Happier Living Through Saving Time and energy". The author is Lillian E. Gilbreth, who is one of the outstanding figures in the science of motion study and time saving. In this volume she has applied her energies to the home and many women will bless her for it. "Skin Diver" by Elgin Ciampi is a book which many young men will find absorbing reading.

"Toys In the Attic" is a new play by Lillian Hellman and the public readers of the community will be very happy to read it. "The Best American Short Stories of 1960" by Martha Foley is the yearly collection which is always welcomed by the devotees of the short story. Copies of this book are available in three of the Parish Libraries.

Books about the first World War are not easy to find and we are happy that we have a new complete history of this conflict. It is called "The Great War" and was written by Cyril B. Falls. Biographies are always popular and there are three new ones of interest. "The Public Years" is the third in a series of autobiographies of Bernard Baruch, one of the great men of today. "Upon My Lips A Song" is the title of Kate Smith's story and many will want to read it. Constantine Callinicos has written an account of the life of Mario Lanza, called "The Mario Lanza Story. It is certain to be widely read. Have you visited the new Anna Meyer Branch of the Ouachita Parish Public Library? It is now open for service at 418 Jackson Street. No matter which library you regularly use, go in there for a visit.

Votes For The Third State Are Votes For Kennedy Socialism

The Louisiana "third slate" of candidates for presidential electors now has been revealed in its true colors by one of its own 10 members — as a movement that cannot possibly have any effect except to help surrender Louisiana to Kennedy and thus to help put him and his Democratic Party plans for socialism into the White House.

Last week at a fund raising dinner in New Orleans one of the "third slates "elector candidates— Ed Dubuisson of Lafayette stated boastfully — according to press association dispatches, that this slate without a candidate would get 150,000 votes in Lousiana. Mr. Dubuisson probably could not find a single person outside of his own immediate clique with a sufficiently flexible imagination to agree that the slate will poll that many votes. But let's suppose that he is right and that it does get 150,000 votes. What does that mean?

It means that the third slate will be absolutely last, behind both Kennedy and Nixon and that it will be cut out of the presidential political picture at exactly the moment the polls close in this state next Tuesday night.

So far as deadlocks, electoral college voting and House elections are concerned, these 10 electors will long since have been forgotten. They will have no part in any of it.

The normal turnout of voters for next Tuesday is expected to be at least 650,000, perhaps 700,000 or more.

If Mr. Dubuisson's highly stretched estimate of 150,000 votes came true, there still would be 500,000 to 550,000 votes for Kennedy and Nixon. It does not take long to figure that there is no possible division of this vote between Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Nixon that could leave the "third slaters" anywhere but a pitiful last.

Mr. Dubuisson, perhaps realizing that he had unintentionally let the cat out of the bag, later raised his estimate to 180,000. The same quick figuring brings the same result — absolutely last.

What this means is that every vote cast for this slate of 10 would-be electors without a candidate Tuesday will be a vote cast to help Kennedy win in Louisiana and thus to help him win the presidency. That is untrue — and has been from the start — whether this ticket of 10 would-be presidential electors gets one vote or many votes.

Every vote for these electors without a candidate potentially is a vote to undermine Nixon and help Kennedy. And if they could get a million votes the next President of the United States will be Richard M. Nixon or John F. Kennedy.

Helping Kennedy means supporting socialism at the federal level and hiking taxes if necessary to carry out the Democratic Party's socialistic aims.

It means voting for programs expected to increase the cost of food 25 per cent.

It means voting for federal control or operation as opposed to free enterprise.

It means voting for federal legislation to ban states from having or passing right to work laws.

Helping Kennedy also means voting to end the achievements of the Eisenhower-Nixon administration in ending the Korean war and keeping us out of war ever since; in restoring stablity to our economy, checking inflation and halting further lowering of the purcashing power of the household dollar.

A "third slate", Help-Kennedy Vote is, voting to put an inexperienced, flippant young man into the presidency — a man who three times in this campaign alone, has made brash statements on grave foreign problems that could have opened the way for cold war to become hot and bloody; on the U2, on Cuba and on Red China.

In appeals to the public, some members of this "third slate" have asked that "at least you give us credit for being sincere."

If they are to be given credit for being sincere, then the public has the right to ask the quèstion: "Sincere about what?"

If they are "sincere" about wanting to help Kennedy, why don't they come out and say so?

If they are sincere about wanting to help Kennedy, why run at all — why not urge voters to vote for Kennedy?

If they don't want to help Kennedy, why are they on the ballot?

These 10 gentlemen on the "third slate" must know exactly what they are doing. They have been around Louisiana and its politics too long not to know that every vote they get would be a potential Nixon vote if they were not running.

They must know that the ONLY result of their presence on the ballot is to give Kennedy two shots at winning Louisiana to one for Nixon.

If THAT is what they're sincere about their failure to say so amounts to — morally — a political fraud on the people.

Reassuring Polaris Bases

Russian reaction to the basing of U.S. missile submarines represents in effect the first evidence in many years that the Soviet Union is taking a defensive position.

Radio Moscow has warned that the Polaris base in Scotland would be the target for "an inevitable retaliatory blow" if used for aggression.

Since 1950 however, the Russian position has been one of imposing the military threat while the United States and the western allies had to hold fast to defensive policies of retaliation and "war deterrants."

Now the United States and Britain are reluctant to assume the new role, even though it carries with it less doubt and insecurity. Russian threats of retaliation which have sounded loudly and clearly since the U-2 incident, were aimed specifically this time at the British Isles when the Polaris missile submarines moved into Scotland.

The British government has launched a public relations campaign in an effort to avert a public outcry against the new naval base and its nuclear armaments. This is a strange way to accept the "top position" in the cold war, but this is usually the way Anglo-Saxons play a psychological advantage.

Prime Minister MacMillan recognized in an address to the House of Commons the risk of objections. He added, however, "I hope the House will feel that this new arrangement does not add to the risks to which we are all inevitably exposed in this nuclear age."

Nearly 40 per cent of the population of Sweden, or about 2.75 million people, have been vaccinated against polio since 1957.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says total assets of the nation's farmers increased last year to a new record high of $203.6 billion.

Senate Races Interesting

Rank Next To Question Of Who Will Win Presidency:

Democrats Certain To Retain Majority

The doubt is not about which political party will organize the Senate. There are and will continue to be enough Senators bearing the Democratic label to prevail and parcel out its chairmanships. But it is when organization is completed and chairmanships assigned that the divagations begin to manifest themselves.

A Senate Party which can swerve from Hubert Humphrey, Wayne Morse and William Proxmire at one end to Richard B. Russell, John L. McClellan and Harry F. Byrd at the other is such as incongruous collection that it is inherently unable to show a solid front on any issue of principle.

So no knowledgeable person talks much about party labels in the Senate. The true division is called "liberal" and "conservative." Right now as was shown win the Presidency, most interest is being shown throughout the recently in the bob - tailed session of Congress following the national party conventions there is a durable coalition of conservative Democrats and Republicans who rule the Senate.

The conservative Democrats are nearly all from the South. Roughly they include 11 Senators fror 11 Southern States except the two from Texas and the two from Tennessee. The Senators from the nine Southern States coalesce rather easily with Republicans on fiscal and similar matters. All of these Southerners are holdovers or have been renominated and will be re-elected.

Just about as accurate a summing up of the situation as will be found has been made by the National Committee for an Effective Congress, a leftish outfit of which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is a shining light. The NCEC made a finding that in the last Congress the Senate numbered 48 members who voted on the "liberal" side most of the time and 52 "conservatives."

Fracases now going on in eleven States probably will decide whether the Senate is to remain liberal or conservative. The best known of the conservatives is Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, the Senate G.O.P. dean. He is expected to be elected without great trouble.

In Massachusetts senior Senator Leverett Saltonstall must face a heavy Kennedy majority at the head of the ticket. The Kennedy majority probably will not equal the 423,000 plurality the Bay State gave its own Calvin Coolidge over John W. Davis in 1924, but it could reach 350,000.

But Massachusetts is a ticket-splitting State. There have been scandals in the administration of Democratic Governor Foster Furcolo and the Democratic party is fued - ridden. So Saltonstall is picked to defeat Springfield's youthful Mayor, Thomas J. O'Connor, who is the Democratic candidate.

The sharply defined battle areas are in Colorado, Kansas and South Dakota, seats which are currently Republican - held, and in Michigan, Montana, Minnesota and Oregon, which the Democrats are defending.

Quite the most interesting race has developed in Minnesota where the glib, radical Hubert Humphrey, who if he wins and the Democratic Presidential ticket wins, may be a hot contestant for the Senate Democratic Leader post, is seeking reelection.

Humphrey at the outset strongly occupied the favorite's role for re-election as did Kennedy to carry the State. The latest Presidential poll now gives Nixon a 50 per cent to 47 per cent lead over Kennedy, with 3 per cent undecided, in this State which Kennedy once seemed slated to carry.

But the biggest surprise in Minnesota has been the polls showing the decline of Humphrey. In the Minneapolis Tribune poll six weeks ago Humphrey led his Republican opponent, P. Kenneth Peterson, 59 to 39. Two weeks ago this was shaved to 53 to 43 and last week the margin was 49 to 47 for Humphrey.

In South Dakota Senator Karl Mundt, Republican, at one time hard - pressed by Representative George McGovern, seems to have opened up a winning margin. In Kansas the chance of upsetting Republican Senator Andrew F. Schoeppel may not have vanished, but it has greatly diminished.

Also the news is less favorable for the Democrats in Oregon, where Mrs. Maurine Neuberger is their candidate against Republican former Governor Elmo Smith. In some other States the races are wide-open and could be decided by the trend in Presidential voting. The liberals still hope to win enough seats to give them a majority over the Republican-Southern coalition, but their chances are less luminous than they were a month ago.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

SENATOR FROM ARIZONA

During the course of this campaign, which will be decided by the people of America next Tuesday, I have been deeply offended by the Democrat tactic which I would describe as Operation President might be expected to Downgrade America.

We have been lashed with scornful criticism. Our shortcomings have been held up before the world until an American, hearing his country described by the Democratic candidate for hang his head in shame.

In every society or governmental organization there is always room for improvement. Progress has been the watchword of America since the founding of the Republic I cannot believe the public interest has been served by those who exaggerate our defects and minimize our achievements.

To anyone who truly loves this land and its people, it must be bewildering to hear the responsible leaders of the Democrat Party castigate us for our efforts in the very fields of social organization where our achievements have outstripped the world.

We have been clubbed and beaten with detailed criticism of our educational system. Yet this is the only nation in the world where tax supported schools are available to every child through 12 grades, where state supported universities make higher education readily available. Our rate of illiteracy is lower than that of any other nation which ever existed on the face of this earth.

Listening to the Democrat orators it would seem that millions of Americans receive inadequate medical care and that medical care of any kind is beyond the reach of a large segment of our population. And yet there are more doctors and more hospitals and more clinics, public and private, available to American citizens than exist in any other country on this earth. Americans as a people spent more money to provide free medical care for those who cannot pay than is now being spent by any other society on this earth.

We have been told that our economy is lagging, that our industrial machine is out of gear.

This bitter condemnation is offered in a year when, for the first time, we will achieve a $500 billion gross product output. And the economic organization of free men which has made this achievement possible is now downgraded and we are told that only government management of our economic affairs can produce progress.

As a nation we have given away more than $100 billion to other countries since the end of World War II — and yet we are told that this is not enough, that because we are miserly and stingy and selfish the other nations of the world have no respect for us and our prestige is at a low ebb.

We are told the Russians have outstripped us scientifically and yet we have 12 objects in outer space to the Russians' two.

We are told that our military capacity is limited and our defenses weak. Yet the realities of the world situation indicate that Russia admits our strength.

We are told that our treatment of minorities has given the rest of the world, including Soviet Russia, the right to condemn us. Yet we fought a war to free the slaves and red communism has enslaved 500 million people since the end of World War II.

We are told that freedom no longer works, that if we are to defeat communism, we must follow their example and establish a super - federal state to guide and control our lives.

Views Of Our Readers

Shreveport, La.

To The Editor:

This is written in regard to amendment No. 8 on which voters throughout the state will vote on November 8.

It is interesting to note that the leading proponents of the proposed Toledo Bend Dam are various politicians throughout the state and a few businessmen and people living near the affected area who expect quick riches.

The President of the Louisiana League of Women Voters has written letters to leading newspapers throughout the state opposing the passage of Amendment No. 8. The Louisiana League of Women Voters is a completely non-partisan group. The following is an excerpt from this letter," . . .Amendment No. 8 would dedicate this entire surplus (the Confederate Veterans tax money), estimated to provide $35,000,000 during the coming 10 year period, to the State Department of Public Works for water projects. The Toledo Bend Dam would have priority and would be the recipient of a 'soft loan' of $20,000,000 to use, to quote from the Amendment, on 'additional water conservation and recreation facilities, and these further developments of the water resources of the state.' This $20,000,000 would be expended without any legislative direction or control, and should the Sabine River Authority repay the $15,000,000 loan, this amount, too, could be expended by the Department of Public Works for other water projects with no legislative control. . ."

Could it be that the above referred-to politicians are concerned over the passage of this Amendment for the reason of gaining unaccountable control of this "windfall" of $20,000,000?

If the state will have a $35,000,000 surplus in an undedicated tax fund why has it become necessary that state taxes be raised periodically so that in 1959, according to the October 17, 1960, issue of "U. S. News & World Report", Louisiana was the fourth highest state in the nation on state and local taxes paid per $1,000 personal income.

Proponents of the proposed dam cite as their main reason for building this project the attraction of industry to the area. They have not been able to name a single business that has commited itself to move into the area in the event the proposed dam is built. This general area already has several lakes - Wallace, Bistineau, Caddo, Saline and Black, to name only a few - to which no industry at all has come. If the Toledo Dam area will attract much industry it would seem that the other lakes, the ones named above, would have attracted some industry.

The Wall Street Journal has recently listed the Tennessee Valley area as one of the distress areas of the nation. This is the same area where many people were displaced a few years ago in order that industry might move in.

The people in your area have nothing to gain from this project. They may very well lose by paying even higher taxes if the proposed dam is built because no assurance has or can be given that the money will ever be paid back. Newspapers are the only way in which many people may learn the true facts about an issue. I would urge you to give consideration to opposing Amendment No. 8.

To The Editor:

The radical National Democratic Party is simply taking the South for granted. They think that we have ears that never listen, and minds that never learn, and that we do not have enough courage to dare vote against what they dish up to us. They wrote a cruel platform that was repudiated by all of the delegates from the south, yet they say you have got to swallow it whether you like it or not, and they expect you to vote for young Jack Kennedy, who declares that he is going to force all of its provisions down your throats if he is elected.

Young Jack Kennedy and his radical crowd have written the charter for a second - rate socialist party — they have taken the good name of "Democratic Party" away from us and put it on the front of their new party as a sugar coating on a bitter pill, to make you swallow it without knowing what you are getting. Those who say to you, "Be a loyal Democrat" are asking you to look only at the sugar coating on the bitter pill concealed inside. They have reduced the Glorious name "Democratic Party" to mean nothing more than a cheap sugar coating for something repugnant to everything you hold dear that they want you to take with your eyes shut.

They talk about loyalty to the party of our fathers and grandfathers. What a shameless blasphemy it is when they say that. For they know that our father and grandfathers never dreamed that the name of the Democratic Party would ever be reduced to its present low estate. And they know that our ancestors would have boxed the ears of these young radicals if they had dared to propose what is now written in the Socialist - Democrat platform that young Jack Kennedy likes so well.

You cannot tell what's in a man's head by the hat he wears.

You cannot judge a lady's disposition by her smile.

You cannot know the quality of the drink inside a bottle just by reading the name printed on the label.

I would guess that almost everyone listening here today drinks Coca Cola from time to time, because you like it, and its quality is always the same. Just suppose the manufacturers should begin putting something else inside those bottles with a taste you did not like, but kept on using the same label "Coca Cola." Would you continue to buy it and drink it just because you wanted to be loyal to the good old name "Coca Cola"? I just wish that the national leaders of the Democratic Party would be as loyal to the principles of the Democratic Party as the makers of Coca Cola have been to the quality of their wholesome drink. It would, indeed, be refreshing. But no! The radicals have put a poisonous dose in the party's bottle, and they say to you, "Here!! Drink it. It's got the same old name, hasn't it? Be loyal!"

ROBERT H. McGIMSEY

OPPOSES TOLEDO DAM

To The Editor:

I read with great interest your stand on the 55 Constitutional amendments in last Sunday's paper. Anyone is to be admired for taking a position on controversial matters even though I strongly disagree with your statement on Amendment No. 8.

Frankly, it was a personal shock to me on reading that your newspaper endorsed the Toledo Bend Dam Proposal under Amendment No. 8. You are recommending a proposal that would cost Ouachita Parish taxpayers $78,000 a year for the next 10 years.

The valid arguments against construction of Toledo Bend Dam are mountainous and overpowering. I haven't read one piece of information on the proponents side that adds up logically in favor of the dam.

In the first place, I would assume that you are not in favor of dedicated taxes for a state agency, yet you have endorsed a project which dedicates large amounts from the Confederate Veterans Pension Fund to the Department of Public Works — a total of 35 million dollars over a 10 - year period — and has no strings attached except that the money he used for water projects!

Until recently I was unable to understand the conflicts in the Toledo Bend Dam feasibility report of the Dallas consulting engineering firm. In the past it has not been demonstrated that the project was economically feasible, yet this firm came along and made it look like "all things to all men" — and one that would pay for itself, too! It has now come to my attention that the Dallas consultants were granted the engineering planning contract at a reported fee of five per cent of the total cost prior to their starting the feasibility survey. Can any report be impartial and unbiased when its authors stand to receive $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 if the dam is built?

And government - owned power! Is any project worth it?

The fact that the federal government has entered the power field has long been condemned. By supporting Toledo Bend, you are encouraging a new type of public encroachment - namely, putting a state government in the power business!

The evils of Amendment No. 8 are now being recognized around the State. In our own Twin Cities both the Monroe and the West Monroe Chambers of Commerce, made up of local business men and merchants, have gone on record in opposition to Toledo Bend Dam.

Without going too deeply into the Toledo Bend Proposal, let me point out some key flaws in the proponents' arguments.

1. They say it will bring industry to the depressed area of West Central Louisiana. As a person familiar with Louisiana and East Texas, I say that no other lake in Louisiana or Texas has done this.

2. They say it will uplift the economy of the area when no other lake in Louisiana and Texas has done this. The population trends of parishes with lakes show little difference from parishes without lakes.

Toledo Bend Dam Proposal just can't be economically justified!

Louisville Construction Co., build brick veneer residence, six rooms, two baths, 2319 Bienville Dr., 1746 square feet, $13,000.

Greater Monroe Homes, construct brick veneer residence, nine rooms, three baths, 2330 Cadillac, 2603 square feet, $20,000.

Wednesday, November 2:

Raymond Boullt, add carport to frame building, 1609 Florida St., $350.

Mrs. Elizabeth Manhein, add to frame residence by extending kitchen and porch at 600 Bres Ave., $500.

John Black, alter frame living room at 1403 Griffin St., $200.

Ralph Meeks, construct brick veneer residence, six rooms, one and one - half baths, 2607 Ft. Miro, 1212 square feet, $13,000.

Thursday, November 3:

Robert Johnson, construct frame shoe shine stand, one room, 1414 DeSiard St., 144 square feet, $50.

United Bilt Homes, move frame residence from 1811 Louisville Ave, to Collinston, 22x40x15 feet high, $2000.

Usrey Lumber and Supply Co., build brick veneer residence, five rooms, two baths, 1001 Auburn, 1236 square feet, $13,500.

Beatrice Archie, add carport and den to brick residence, 700 Rogers St., 216 square feet for den and storage, $2000.

Oil Debates Find Place In Campaign

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Never before in history have oil controversies figured so prominently in a presidential election campaign.

Tidelands ownership was an issue in 1952 but the dispute was relatively minor compared to the current debate over oil's depletion tax allowance.

The complicated depletion tax allowance has dominated the oil problems in the current campaign. Other issues have included oil imports and proposals for a national fuels policy study and for amendments to the natural gas act.

Despite the prominence of the industrys problems, however, many oilmen, particularly in Texas, have watched the campaign from the sidelines.

SUPPORT

Both Sen. John Kennedy and Vice President Richard Nixon have drawn support from many oilmen but others have preferred inactivity.

The inactivity has been prompted by a belief an oil operator could lose regardless of which direction he might turn.

The situation centers around the tow allowance controversy and the unique position of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the Democratic vice presidential nominee and Senate majority leader from Texas.

Also involved is another Texan, House Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Oilmen are attracted by the Republican platform's pledge for a reasonable depletion allowance. The Democratic platform places inequitable depletion allowances among the conspicuous tax loopholes that should be plugged.

ALLOWANCE

Nixon has endorsed oil's full 27½ per cent allowance. Kennedy has cast three Senate votes for a graduated reduction.

But an oilman's vote for Nixon would be a vote against Johnson, who for 25 years has been one of the most vigorous backers of the full allowance.

Rayburn has shared Johnson's role as the leader in the fight against those in Congress who would reduce the allowance. Rayburn has indicated repudiation of Johnson in the current campaign would amount to repudiation of such support to the oil industry and gas industry.

Rayburn has been looked upon as oil's trump card in the fight to retain the full 27½ per cent. Rayburn probably could block a House attack. There has been a feeling this may eventually become necessary in view of the rather impressive gains the Senate opposition has made the past nine years.

Neithre party platform makes reference to oil or gas while commenting on depletion allowances. Assumptions that the references have the oil industry in mind are based on the fact that four Senate efforts to cut the 27½ per cent have been made since 1951.

Johnson has disagreed with the assumptions. He has said he does not consider oil's allowance a tax loophole and that there is nothing in the Democratic platform suggesting a reduction in the 27½ per cent allowance.

Renewed attacks are anticipated in the Senate regardless of the outcome of Tuesday's presidential election.

Johnson's position is unique in that his name also appears on Tuesday's Texas ballots as the Democratic nominee for another six-year term in the Senate.

NEW YORK (AP) — Business sentiment seesawed last week under the weight of election campaign stresses and divergent views on the economic outlook.

The stock market apparently felt it had digested enough possibilities of the election's outcome a nd mounted a moderate rally.

It found encouragement in announcement of private and government spending plans but also took notice of some rather dim views of what is ahead.

PLANS

General Motors Chairman Frederic G. Donner disclosed plans to spend $1.25 billion in the United States and abroad for new plants, machinery, equipment and tooling in 1961. This would be $50 million above this year's outlay. About $1 billion would be spent in the United States.

Donner predicted passenger car sales would reach 7 million in 1961. Sales this year are expected to run between 6.6 and 6.8 million

The government added $55 million to the amount to be spent this fiscal year on developing the B70 supersonic bomber. This makes $265 million available for the program between now and June 30.

Corporate earnings for the first nine months of this year exceeded last year by about 2 per cent, and profits for the fourth quarter may come close to the 1959 period, a survey showed. However, the third and fourth quarters last year were dulled by steel and copper strikes.

SURVEY

A survey of manufacturers showed they look for increased orders, billings and profits in the first half of 1961. And the machine tool industry said the balance of this year may be the best for new orders in a long time.

On the other hand, the First National City Bank of New York said it found that economic trends have shifted from a sidewise movement to a moderate downturn.

A majority of the nation's leading economists, responding to an inquiry from F. W. Dodge Cor., a construction and marketing statistical agency, said they foresee a mild recession between now and the end of 1961.

A decline in freight loadings of the rail and truck industries reflected a slowing business trend.

Steel and automobile production dipped. Steel output dropped to an estimated 51.7 per cent of capacity from last week's 54.2 Some steel executives said they couldn't see any significant improvement for the rest of the year.

Auto production tapered off for the first time since the companies started turning out 1961 models. Last week's output was estimated at 145,000 cars, compared with 150,106 the previous week.

OCTOBER

In October, 617,816 cars rolled off assembly lines. This was 110,000 more than in October 1959.

Chrysler Corp., American Motos Corp. and the Chevrolet and Cadillac divisions of General Motors Corp. reported sales were higher in October than a year ago.

The Treasury reported that the outflow of gold from the United States passed the billion-dollar mark with a loss of $45 million in the last week. That left the United States with $18,417,000,000 of gold. However, the rush to buy gold on the London market subsided.

In an unprecedented move, the New York Stock Exchange announced it would dip into its treasury for $690,000 to reimburse investors who suffered losses in the receivership of the Boston brokerage firm, Du Pont Homsey & Co. The firm's managing partner, Anton Homsey, was expelled from the Exchanges and faces charges of irregularities.

Livestock Market Summary Given For Past Week

CHICAGO (AP) — (USDA) — Following is a summary of the hog, cattle and sheep markets for the week:

Hogs — Compared Friday last week — barrows and gilts 50-75 higher. Mixed lots No. 1 and 2 and No. 1, 2 and 3 190-260 lb barrows and gilts closed at 17.50-17.75. Several shipments mostly 17.50, load No. 3 320 lbs 16.75. Sows 50-75 higher. Mixed grades No. 1, 2 and 3 and No. 2 and 3 300-400 lbs 14.75-16.50. Mixed No. 2 and 3 and No. 3 400-550 lbs 13.75-15.25.

Cattle — slaughter steers 1050 lbs down largely 25 lower, 1050-1300 lbs 25-75 lower, 1300-1600 lbs 50-1.00 lower. Slaughter heifers mostly steady. Cows 50-1.00 lower, bulls steady. Vealers steady. Many lots choice 1300-1100 lb steer yearlings largely 25.25-25.75 at the close with few high choice 1000 lb yearlings 26.00. Loadlots mixed good and choice steers generally 900-1250 lbs 23.75-but largely 23.75 - 24.50 late with some around 1300 lbs down to 23.50. Bulk good steers 23.00-24.00 late with some mixed standard and good 21.25-22.50 and utility and standard 19.50-21.50. Loadlots mixed choice and prime slaughter heifers 24.50-24.75, bulk choice heifers 23.50-24.25 with many loads high choice at 24.25, mixed good and choice 23.25-23.50.

Styling Said Good

DETROIT (UPI)—An industrial designer who two years ago blamed poor design for a drop in American car sales says the styling of the 1961 models is good enough to boost sales.

Designer Carl Sundberg of Sundberg-Ferar Inc., an industrial design firm which has many former automobile designers on its staff although it doesn't do automotive design work, congratulated the designers of the 1961 models.

PRICE CUTTING HITS

Chemical Company Profits Show Drop

NEW YORK (AP)—Price cutting and sales competition have bitten into the profits of the chemical companies. But this seems only to have sharpened their drive to outpace one another in turning cheap and plentiful raw materials into profitable synthetics—either new or cheaper ones.

The prospective harvest to be reaped from new man-made materials continues to lure members of other industries into the field.

The battles start in the laboratory where more than $400 million a year is being poured into research. Then they spill into the marketplace. Some who watch the industry closely feel the current profit squeeze may be just the catalyst to turn today's increasing competition into showdowns—with a number of casualties a good probability.

REPORTS

Inroads of price cutting and slower business into chemical profit margins shown in first reports of July-August-September earnings. They average 13 per cent lower than in the summer of 1959 and 20 per cent down from the April-May-June quarter of 1960. The industry's reports for the first nine months of this year trail the year-ago figures by 7 per cent, although a number of other industries topped their 1959 showings.

Entry of other industries into the chemical business has gained momentum in recent years, undeterred by the average capital investment of $27,000 for each chemical worker, which is larger than in many other lines of endeavor.

The parade has included meat packers, whisky distillers, soap makers, photographic equipment producers, oil companies, metal processors.

Examples of the competitive struggle within the chemical industry: 1. There were two chemical companies producing polyethylene immediately after World War II. Today 17 do. 2. Ten years ago the American farmer had five major suppliers of anhydrous ammonia. Today 30 companies compete in meeting his fertilizer needs. Similar examples can be found in paints, synthetic fibers and plastics.

DISCOVERS

One chemical discovery that caught on fast and opened a wide market for itself while competing fiercely with other synthetics and natural materials is the relatively newcomer isocyonate. This man-made molecule uses natural gas or salt as a starting point and then combines with other ingredients to produce urethane.

From this can be fashioned rocket fuels, featherweight foam mattresses, insulated ski and sailing clothes, or wear resistant applications for roller skating rinks.

One sideline to the keen competition to develop and exploit urethane is a three-way battle now joined between urethane, latex rubber and the long established metal spring for the mattress and furniture cushioning.

The chemical industry sports many other intramural contests.

But with new cost-cutting and marketing programs — plus some luck from the research laboratories' future findings—the industry hopes to take off by the end of next year on a new growth cycle. It aims at matching the record of the last 25 years when its average growth rate was 7 per cent a year —well above that for manufacturing as a whole.

The chemists hope that in the new cycle profit margins will be restored to boot.

'GET PEOPLE INTERESTED IN CARS AGAIN'

Auto Industry Awaits Election Climax

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry is going to be mighty glad when Wednesday comes.

"Once the election is over maybe we can get people interested in cars again," said one executive of a major car manufacturer. "Right now everything's politics."

The automakers have been particularly jittery over campaign charges and countercharges as to whether the nation faces a recession or is on the verge of greater prosperity.

WHAT HAPPENS

It is said that when the nation's economy sneezes, Detroit catches pneumonia. If a recession comes, car sales drop sharply; production is curtailed; layoffs occur.

Auto production slowdowns hurt not only Detroit because in an average year the industry buys about 20 per cent of all steel sold in the United States; about 64 per cent of all rubber; 70 per cent of all plate glass; 44 per cent of all lead. It is the leading purchaser of thousands of other items.

The automakers have been cautiously optimistic. Generally they predict sales between 6 and 6.5 million domestic cars, or about the same as this year.

New model production has reflected caution, too. The industry went into the 1961 model year with record inventories of unsold 1960 models. Despite near-record sales in October, stocks climbed this week to about one million cars.

Original schedules which called for 1.9 million cars to be built in the October-December quarter have been pared to about 1.5 million. Many observers believe actual assemblies will fall considerably below this figure.

PRODUCTION

Production and inventory have figured in the political arguments. The United Auto Workers Union, staunch supporter of the Democrats, charged the manufacturers with boosting production artificially high in the pre-election weeks to make the Republican administration look good. The UAW maintained this would force large scale layoffs immediately after election day.

The charges were hotly denied by the auto companies. They said production in the early weeks of a new model always is high in order to provide all dealers with a stock of new cars. A General Motors vice president said he sees little likelihood of major layoffs after the election.

Chrysler caused a stir by announcing layoffs of some 5,000 workers even before 1961 models went on sale. But the corporation said this was because it had added a number of strictly temporary employes with the aim of giving its dealers adequate stocks at introduction time for the first time in years.

GROW

The production and inventory arguments grew in part from a decision by the manufacturers to introduce new models in late September and early October.

In 1956, the last presidential election year, most new models did not go on sale until early November. At that time car inventories had fallen below 300,000; factories were talking boldly of new sales records; dealers reported waiting lists of up to eight weeks despite price increases of more than $100 on almost every car.

This time in the face of record stocks nobody is talking records; prices have held unchanged for the past two years and waiting lists are a rarity.

Many economists have picked mid-November as the earliest possible date to assess future sales prospects. Some industry men feel even this is too soon.

New Record For Year Set In Monroe Oil District

By RICHARD GREENE
Oil Editor

A new record for the year was set in the 14-parish Monroe district of the State Department of Conservation last week with the completion of 16 new oil and gas wells. This is the third week in the last month that has shown such a flourish in drilling activities for the district.

Duncan S. Cook, district manager who prepares the weekly report, also listed 20 new locations of possible well producers and one well that was re - completed in Concordia Parish.

There are 20 rigs reported active in the fields and 12 holes that were declared dry and abandoned.

These are the new completions:

CATAHOULA

Tew Lake Field — H. A. Harper's H. A. Harper J. A. Webb no. 1 in sec. 35-9-6⅞E, completed to flow 49 barrels through a 9-64 in. choke from perforations at 4303-07 ft., gravity 37.

Wallace Lake Field — McGoldrick, Watson Drilling Co. and R. H. Alagood's N. G. Nasif Unit no. 1 in sec. 14-8-6E, completed to flow 84 barrels through a 7-64 in. choke from perforations at 4410-11 ft., tubing pressure 440 lbs., casing pressure 200 lbs., gas oil ratio 300:1, gravity 44.

CONCORDIA

Roseland Field — Germany - Gulmon's Sharp no. 6 in sec. 22-4-9E, completed to flow 103 barrels through a 6-64 in. choke from perforations at 7001-05 ft., tubing pressure 1100 lbs., gas oil ratio 750:1, gravity 47.6

Ross Bayou Field — T. F. Hodge - Norman Oil and Gas - A. T. Feague et al's F. M. Thomas no. 1 in sec. 29-7-7E, completed to flow 83 barrels through a 6-64 in. choke from perforations at 5016-18 ft., tubing pressure 375 lbs., casing pressure 350 lbs., gravity 42.9.

LA SALLE

Little Creek Field — Harter Oil Co.'s Harter Ten Delta no. 15 in sec. 14-9-1E, completed to pump 10 barrels from perforations at 1519-21 ft.

Harter Oil Co.'s Harter Ten Delta no. 17 in sec. 14-9-1E, completed to pump 10 barrels from perforations at 1505-10 ft.

Olla Field — Ark Fuel Oil Corp.'s Trem. Lbr. Co. A-35 in sec. 29-10-2E, completed to flow 112 barrels through a 18-64 in. choke from perforations at 2305-09 ft., gravity 29.

Tullos Urania Field — Harter Oil Co.'s Harter State no. 2 in sec. 14-9-1E, completed to pump 10 barrels from perforations at 1516-20 ft.

OUACHITA

Calhoun Field — Sinclair Oil and Gas Co.'s G. F. Butler Unit no. 2, Triple Completion, in sec. 29-18-1E, completed first in Naughn sand at 9644-26 and 9655-52 ft. to flow 209 barrels through a 12-64 in. choke, gravity 50.5.

Second in Bodcaw sand at 9527-30 ft. to flow 1700 MCF through a 12-64 in. choke.

Third in Cadeville sand at 9266-98 ft. to flow 1700 MCF through a 9-64 in. choke, gravity 51.5.

UNION

Monroe Field — La Gas Prod Co.'s Olin Gas Trans Corp. no. 41 in sec. 22-22-3E, completed to flow 497 MCF, rock pressure 670 lbs.

La Gas Prod Co.'s B. L. Repond no. 2 in sec. 10-22-3E, completed to flow 510 MCF, rock pressure 995 lbs.

Olin Gas Trans Corp.'s Fee Gas no. 461 in sec. 12-20-2E, completed to flow 300 MCF, rock pressure 1025 lbs.

Olin Gas Trans Corp.'s Fee Gas no. 462 in sec. 13-22-3E, completed to flow 300 MCF, rock pressure 465 lbs.

The Pure Oil Co.'s Olin "B" no. 1 in sec. 1-22-1W, completed to pump 9 barrels from perforations at 2136-44 ft., gravity 36.4.

Following are the new locations:

CATAHOULA

Wildcat Field—Petroleum Inc.-Crow Drilling and Producing Co.'s Wright-Catahoula Corp. no. 1, located 330 ft. north and west of the SE corner of the SW¼-SW¼ of sec. 8-8-7E.

CONCORDIA

North Bayou Cocodrie Field — Pan American Petroleum Corp.'s Yakey no. 1, located 520 ft. north of the south line and 520 ft. west of the east line of the SW¼-NE¼ of sec. 42-4-8E.

Milestone Forks Field — E. C. Wentworth et al — Jefferson et al unit no. 1, location: from the corner come to sections 52, 53 and 54, go south 36 degrees 15 ft. east for 2860 ft. thence north 53 degrees 45 ft. east for 330 ft. to location in sec. 53-8-10E.

Omega Field — John Franks et al's Middleton - Watson no. 2 in sec. 18-7-7E, located 330 ft. north of the south line and 330 ft. east of the west line of the SE¼-SW¼.

Wildcat Well Being Tested In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Humble Oil and Refining Co. has set production casing to 10,528 feet in an important wildcat oil well in Yazoo County and the industry is awaiting outcome of tests.

The well is the Thompson No. 1 about four miles north of Bentonia. Operators will evaluate the commercial worth of oil sand found in the Hosston formation at 10,304 feet and at 10,470 feet.

The well in section 3, 9 north, 1 west was drilled to 15,020 feet to test the Smackover lime, which was not encountered.

The Humble well is about eight miles southeast of the Ginant Tinsley oil field, which was the first commercial field to be found in the state.

In Pike County, three important wildcat tests are underway. Carroll and Campbell are below 10,000 feet in their Brumfield No. 1, sec. 26-2n-9e, about 12 miles east of Magnolia. Chartor Oil Co. is below 7,000 feet in its Dunaway No. 1, sec. 12-3n-9e, four miles south of the Little Creek field. R. E. Williams is below 2,100 feet in the May Lace No. 1, sec. 1-4n-7e, about one mile north of Dixie Station.

In Amite County, Erickson and Daniel are below 11,500 feet in their Gauthan-O'Connor No. 1, a wildcat in sec. 6-3n-3e, 10 miles northwest of Liberty, and Bateman Drilling Co. is below 6,000 feet in its wildcat, the Koppers Corp No. 1, sec. 32-4n-5e, about five miles southwest of the new Smithdale oil field.

In Copiah County, Gulf Oil is below 3,075 feet in its Gatesville unit No. 1, sec. 24-2n-1w, located six miles east of Crystal Springs. The venture is to go to 14,500 feet.

In Issaquena County, Gulf is below 10,490 feet in its deep wildcat, the Eagle Bend No. 1, sec. 8-18n-3e, a scheduled 16,500 foot venture.

In the new deep Knoxo gas field in Walthall County, Humble has completed its Fernwood Lumber Co. No. 1, sec. 7-2n-12e, as a dry gas well. The well flowed 6,875,000 cubic feet of gas from the Paluxy zone at 12,559-579 feet.

In Jefferson Davis County, Texaco - Seaboard Inc. has set conductor pipe at its deep wildcat, the Newman Lumber Co. No. 1, sec. 1-5n-19w, located eight miles southwest of Bassfield. The venture is to go to 14,000 feet and is located on the flank of the Oakvale salt dome.

Field drilling during the past week saw four new oilers completed.

At McComb in Pike County, Sun Oil finaled its Page No. 2, sec. 5-3n-7e, flowing 168 barrels per day from 10,955-64 feet. Also at McComb, Sun completed its Lmampton Walace No. G-1, sec. 22-3n-7e, flowing 196 barrels daily from 10,940-52 feet.

In the Bryan field of Jones County, Sigler, Caldwell and DeKay completed their Gattlin No. 1 sec. 26-10n-10w, pumping 344 barrels per day from 10,798-804 feet. Humble completed its Bryan oil unit No. 4, sec. 23-10n-10w as a triple completion. A sand at 10 233-40 feet flowed 783 barrels daily, a zone at 10,791-801 feet tested 216 barrels and a zone at 11,532-82 feet flowed 198 barrels per day.

Training Course

Tillar H. Harper, local representative of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., has returned from New York City where he participated in a special advanced training course relating to estate planning and business life insurance underwriting.

Mr. Harper, who lives at 114 Slack, recently was appointed to the position of Metropolitan Insurance Consultant, in which capacity he will continue his insurance sales and service activities from the Metropolitan's Monroe office. The office is under the direction of Manager Maurice J. Loker.

New Store Opened

Everett Carlson has opened his Westinghouse Appliance store at 200 Trenton in West Monroe. Carlson will join with Ballard's, Monroe dealer, in promoting Westinghouse appliances in this area.

Formal opening of the new store will be held at later date, Carlson said.

Season's High On N. Y. Exchange

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures all hit seasonal highs on the New York Cotton Exchange this week.

Gains ranged from 80 cents to the $1.70 a bale advance posted for the July, 1961 delivery.

The upward swing, following a downward drift a week ago, was influenced by expectations that the government crop forecast due next Tuesday night indicate a smaller harvest than predicted as of Oct. 1.

The forthcoming crop report will reflect conditions as of Nov.1.

Other factors buoying prices included continued reports of unfavorable weather in the cotton belt, favorable export prospects and increased trade buying credited to a brisk demand for spot cotton.

2 Women Seek Senate, 32 Running For House

EDITOR'S NOTE—Besides the increasing number of women in politics who work for their parties and run for offices on the local and state levels, this fall there are 35 women campaigning to go to Washington. Thirty-two of them are candidates for the House of Representatives and three are running for two Senate seats.

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The odds are that the U.S. Senate soon will have two women instead of one among 100.

And, with 32 women running for House, the chances of feminine additions here are good.

Whatever happens Tuesday, Maine is sure to send a woman to the Senate again.

For the first time in history, that state has two women running against each other for a Senate seat.

Election pundits right now give the edge to Republican Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith, who has been the lone woman in the Senate since 1949. She's seeking a third term against Democratic Lucia Cormier, a Maine legislator.

With Maine sure to provide one woman, Oregon may add the name of Mrs. Maurine Neuberger to that once exclusive club.

Mrs. Neuberger, widow of the late Sen. Richard Neuberger, D-Ore., and a veteran of her own state legislature, worked closely with her husband and hopes to continue his "ideals and purposes."

She is given an edge by Oregon political observers to win against her Republican opponent, Elmo Smith, newspaper publisher and former governor of Oregon.

If early estimates are borne out in the voting, Mrs. Neuberger would give the Democrats a woman on their side of the aisle for the first time since Sen. Hattie Caraway of Arkansas left in 1945.

Face-to-face television appearances are figuring in the Maine and Oregon races as they are in the presidential battle between Sen. John F. Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

So far, the Maine battle between two former school teachers seems to be following the presidential issues. Mrs. Smith, who has been a member of the Appropriations and Armed Services Committees in the Senate, has been urging voters to "look at the record" and criticizing her opponent for "wild promises."

Miss Cormier, who runs a stationery and gift store and leads the Democratic minority in Maine's House of Representatives, is attacking the GOP record.

Though Maine politicos view Mrs. Smith as the favorite now, they give Miss Cormier an outside chance. It depends on gubernatorial and presidential vote. She could benefit from the coat-tail effects of an upsurge for the national Democratic ticket or on the popularity of her party's governor candidate, Frank M. Coffin.

On the House side:

Thirty-two women candidates emerged from the primary battlefields, including eight Democratic and six Republican incumbents. This was a little less than in 1958 when 38 women ran for House seats.

The 14 Congresswomen running for re-election all seem assured of their seats, according to reports, with one possible exception.

Facing the toughest fight and a possible setback is Mrs. Florence Dwyer, R-N, who has represented the industrial 6th district for two terms. Some of her fellow politicians say Mrs. Dwyer has never had an easy fight since she entered politics. Before her first Congressional victory, she served eight terms in the New Jersey Legislature.

She faces an opponent she's defeated before, Jack B. Dunn, 48, sales manager for a Jersey City food firm and an ardent supporter of Sen. John F. Kennedy. He served on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff in World War II and for the last 14 years has worked on the resettlement of European refugees.

Mrs. Dwyer, too, could see her political fortunes hang on how the presidential ticket goes.

Democrats in the know say there are four women's races where they might pick up a seat. Republicans don't seriously look for any new feminine faces on their side of the House.

The four Democratic ladies to watch:

1—Mrs. Julia Butler Hansen of Cathlamet, Wash., a member of the House of Representatives in her state since 1938 and first woman speaker pro tem, could win a seat in Washington's 3rd district. It's the first try for Congress for this mother of a teen-age son, who also manages two companies. Mrs. Hansen is seeking the seat of the late Republican Rep. Russell V. Mack. Her opponent, Dale M. Nordquist, is a Centralia, Wash., attorney with eight years in the state Senate. Some Republicans here concede the race "awfully tight."

2—Ex-Rep. Coya Knutson, D-Minn., is on the comeback trail after one term out of Congress. Her chances are rated good now that her husband, who staged a "Coya Come Home" campaign against her last time, is back in her corner. Mrs. Knutson is running against Odin Langin, who took her seat away in 1958. As an incumbent in Minnesota's 9th District, a predominantly farm area, Langin is given a slight edge, but the race is generally considered a tossup. Coya overcame her biggest hurdle by winning a primary in which party leaders tried to purge her. Now they're rallying to her cause.

Coya, 48, a former music teacher who often campaigns with an accordion, served in Congress from 1954 to 1958.

3—Republicans and Democrats disagree over the chances of Dorothy O'Brien, former public health nurse and manager of a 320-acre farm, who is seeking the seat of 78-year-old GOP incumbent Noah Mason in Illinois' 15th District. He turned to politics after a career as teacher, school principal and superintendent and has served 12 terms in Congress.

Republicans report Mason's victory is a cinch in a district now seen as safe for Nixon, too. But, Democrats say their Miss O'Brien in her early 40s, who lost to Mason by some 5,500 votes in 1958, can surely topple him this time.

4—In California, another repeater trying to oust an entrenched Republican is Mrs. Rudd Brown, granddaughter of William Jennings Bryan and daughter of the late Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen Rhode. Mrs. Brown, an attractive 39-year-old brunette came within less than 10,000 votes of upsetting incumbent Edgar W. Hiestand in 1958. The campaign in this 21st District is being concentrated on an airplane industrial area, where there have been plant layoffs. Mrs. Brown is trying for the labor vote by playing up Hiestand's vote against appropriations the Democrats say would have averted airplane industry layoffs. The district is rated a tossup.

An unexpected woman candidate on the Democratic side was Mrs. Mary Kennedy of Lynn, Mass., a state committeewoman who has worked in the motor vehicle registry. She was a late-comer candidate in the 6th district against Rep. William H. Bates, Harvard Business School graduate and a six-term Congressman.

It's one of the state's strongest Republican districts, but Democrats are saying: "With a name like that" how can Mrs. Kennedy miss.

Other women trying to break into Congress this year:

Illinois (24th Dist): Mrs. J. F. Schlafy Jr., 36, president of the Illinois Federation of Republican Women, a lecturer on government somewhat hopelessly challenging Democratic Rep. Charles Melvin Price, former newspaperman and Congressman since 1945.

Michigan (which with eight has the biggest slate of women running for Congress): Democrat Miss Mary Harden, former director of public school curriculum in Wayne, Mich., battles newcomer James Harvey, 37, lawyer and former mayor of Saginaw. He's given the edge in the 8th District, which usually goes Republican.

In the 14th District, Mrs. Lois Nair of Detroit, former school teacher long active in the Republican party, seems far outclassed in a five-way race with Rep. Louis C. Rabaut, Democratic Congressman for the past 12 terms.

In other Michigan districts, minor party candidates with little chance are Mary Mills, Socialist-Labor candidate in the 7th, Mildred Montgomery, Prohibition candidate, 10th, Lucy Larkin, Prohibition, 16th, Sadie Grass, Tax Cut ticket, 17th, and Phyllis G. Kile, Prohibition, 18th.

New Mexico also has a feminine line Prohibitionist entry, Helen M. Galloway, a candidate at large.

A Liberal candidate in a three-way race in New York's 33rd is Mrs. Winfred Harberson.

New Jersey gives only an outside chance to Mrs. Katharine Elkus White, Democratic state highway commissioner and former mayor of Red Bank, in her 3rd District race against James C. Auchincloss, Republican who has represented the district since 1943.

"The whole Republican party would have to go to pot before we'd lose that district," said one GOP national spokesman.

Pennsylvania's 27th District has a new feminine campaigner in Mrs. Margaret Lee Walgren, an intrepid Democrat and onetime psychology teacher. Republicans give her no chance at all against their present Congressman James G. Fulton, who returned from the Pacific combat area in 1945 to take his seat. Democrats won't write off Mrs. Walgren, though, especially if Kennedy draws out the Democratic vote in Alleghany County.

Another minor party entry—in Texas—is Dorothy Wyvell, 16th District, Constitutional party.

THE MUSIC WORLD

Boris Godunov Was Excellent

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI) — What a pity Modest Moussorgsky could not have been present when the Metropolitan Opera revived "Boris Godunov" at the beginning of its new season.

It was quite out of the question of course, since the 19th century Russian drunk has been dead for 79 years. But Boris is his opera and for that reason he had an intensely personal interest in protecting it.

If he had been present he surely would have slipped out during the first act and called the cops. He could have claimed most reasonably that this wasn't his Boris but a plagiarism of his Boris.

To be sure, he was given full credit. The eminent contemporary Russian composer, Dmitri Shostakovich was credited only as the author of a new orchestration. But what an orchestration! It amounted to a new creation.

That sort of thing drove Moussorgsky to drink—not that he really needed to be driven in that direction. As a man, he was every inch a weakling. But as a creative genius his integrity was made of steel.

He used to tell Nicholas Rimsky Korsakoff and other conventional musicians of his day: Regardless of whether or not this piece of mine is ever performed, I won't change a note of it.

As a man his affliction was Vodka. As a genius it was originality. His appetitie for both was insatiable. The original Boris had no part for a prima donna. Not only was it with a heroine, it had no women in it apart from the choruses.

He was persuaded to put a minor heroine into it, and it is a lasting tribute to the race of prima donnas that the leading Russian prima donna of the day staked her career on getting Boris performed. There was nothing in it for her. She merely thought the drunk had a right to be original.

Everyone knows it is possible to be too original, even if you are a genius. No one in music would think of altering many notes of Mozart or Verdi or Puccini—"arranging" that is. But apart from his songs, Moussorgsky is rarely performed in his original ways.

TAMPERING OLD STUFF

This tampering with Boris is a very old controversy. Fifteen years after Moussorgsky's death (in 1881) Rimsky Korsakoff made the first "arrangement."

Damnation; Old Novel, New Light

THE DAMNATION OF THERON WARE. By Harold Frederic. Edited by Everett Carter. Belknap Press - Harvard. $4.50.

It was many years ago that I first read this novel, originally published in 1896 and now a worthy addition to the fine John Harvard Library edited by Howard Mumford Jones. In its day it was daring and popular; it appeared in England as "Illumination." It's no longer daring, nor likely to be popular. But it's on a subject of everlasting importance the moral significance of knowledge; and though you can find deeper, better, more scintillating and faster - moving novels, this is a welcome change of ficitional pace and something definitely to keep in mind.

The Reverend Mr. Ware is a handsome young Methodist with the gift of gab. He'd hoped his bishop would assign him to a wealthy parish, but instead as his pretty wife Alice laments, "we're poked off to that miserable Octavius." It's an upstate New York town where the trustees are hard-shell old - timers who expect sermons on hellfire, brimstone and damnation. So the young minister runs into "evil" influences A broad - minded priest, a doctor who embodies the questing scientific spirit, a pair of fund - raising mountebanks, and beautiful Ceilia, free - thinking and free-acting. Nothing bred in him can stand up against these temptations, so he "falls," falls even into the gutter, and finally resigns the ministry, returns to his forgiving wife and changes to a business career.

It seems to me now like a novel in which innocence is too much like ignorance, the scientific spirit too niggling, sex — however much it shocked 1890 readers—too tepid and the church too hidebound. But for those times and ours, the problems were real, and for those times, the terms were; and as in every book out of the past, you read not only for the contribution to your present and presumably enlightened mood, but also for the understanding it gives of the age of your forebears — even if it does no more than remind you, fascinatingly, that New York once had an elegant Murray Hill Hotel, and cable cars and hackmen; that churchmen used to object to running trolley cars on Sunday; that you got a drink of water in the train out of a tin cup on a chain; and that a doctor's visit cost $2—and they complained even about that.

Crusade For Wisdom Good Interesting

THE SQUEEZE: Cities Without Space. By Edward Higbee; foreword by Fairfield Osborn. Morrow. $5.95.

America, Osborn warns, is becoming in many ways less "habitable," not so good a living place for leisure, work, health or happiness. Higbee explains that we misuse space. The city, he says, is the most characteristic creation of a society; "our cities show what we are." Around them stretches suburbia. Then there are recreation areas perhaps as distant as the shore. What we do with all these, says Higbee, and with the associated circulation systems, is bad and gets worse.

There were temple cities, and cathedral cities; we have work cities. At bottom they no longer collect enough money to solve their problems, and they desperately need state and federal help. But the main point is, what to do with money if they get it, and Higbee's general indignant conclusion seems to be: Anything but what they do with it now.

He deplores the too little park space; the failure to buy up cheap for future use adjacnt fields and pastures bound to be developed and become expensive; the subsidy of highways as against the taxing of railroads handling so many more passengers; the indiscriminate parking on streets that are public property; the demolition of slums to make way for, eventually, more slums; the ill-planned suburbs.

Some figures shock you: Land costs for a piece of road 20 years ago could have been $20,000 but are now $30 million; new building in ancient Rome sets aside three to four times as much recreation space as new building in modern New York; the Maine-to-Texas coast is 3,700 miles long, but only 240 miles belong to the public and not all of that is for general use. He approves Chicago — his telling examples are taken from all over the country;- ridicules New York's Robert Moses for his $83 million cross-town elevated highway; regrets that planning in general is entrusted to highway engineers; wishes Lincoln Center for the Creative Arts faced Central Park insted of being buried back in a onetime slum area.

Space is the key to every aspect of a community's life, he says, and he proposes ways for its wise use.

If you ride or walk, own your home or rent, live in town or suburb, and if you wish you didn't, this crusading book tells you how to get out from under.

MARCH OF SCIENCE

Seek Communion With 'Worlds'

Editor's note — Those stars in the sky may be more than just winking and blinking at us. Possibly the blinks are light rays from inhabited planets flashing signals earthward. Scientists are cocking sensitive radio ears to space to see if they can get the message.

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Writer

Scientists in this country and elsewhere are cautiously hatching ideas for getting in touch with other worlds.

They are motivated by the belief that in the universe there are 100 million planets something like our own and that many of them are populated by beings much smarter than Earthlings.

In our little speck of the universe, the galaxy called the Milky Way, they think there are thousands of such worlds. Some of these are believed to be older than the Earth and technologically far ahead of us.

It is quite likely, the scientists say, that some of these worlds are reaching out toward each other with their facilities for communication. The Earth may be one of the communication targets. Radio signals from highly developed civilizations may be flashing past us right now.

It is considered probable that some of these other worlds have aimed satellites toward their likely-looking neighbors, possibly including us.

This could mean that a cosmic communication satellite is circling our sun, waiting for us to give it the go-ahead with a message.

Instead of radio signals or satellites some of these other worlds could be broadcasting heat waves. Still others might have a kind of super-light ray, brighter than the sun, which they could switch off and on. This could produce a visual message for some other world clever enough to read it.

The possibility of a cosmic satellite in our front yard has been raised by Prof. Ronald N. Bracewell, radio astronomy expert at Stanford University.

Prof. Bracewell offered his idea in the British scientific magazine Nature. He did this while other scientists in this country were making their first systematic effort to detect radio messages from other worlds.

For six hours daily over a one-month period scientis's at the National Radio Astronomy Laboratory at Green Bank, W. Va., turned a big radio ear toward two solar systems something like our own.

This was a test run for the Green Bank instrument and the scientists expected nothing. They got nothing. But the attempt set off a flurry of suggestions from other scientists.

Prof. Bracewell reasoned that some other worlds already have communicated with each other, possibly by some means unknown to us.

For the present, one way of our getting into the act, he says, is to start interrogating the region of the sun with radio impulses. If a cosmic radio satellite is anywhere around, and if we hit its wave length, then it may send something back to us on that frequency.

Unraveling Complexity In This One

EZRA POUND. By Charles Norman. Macmillan. $6.95.

The most contrary creative figure alive today, Pound gave help and guidance of an inestimable value to the contemporary poet, but he also gave the cause of the poet as a member of our society a wicked, damaging body-blow.

Norman testifies eloquently to this Pound conundrum in the most detailed study yet made of the Idaho youth who went into exile in London, Paris, Venice and Rapallo, played a part impossible to exaggerate in the development of many writers, for instance T. S. Eliot, produced some of the finest poetry of our time, and wound up in a Washington asylum accused of treason and adjudged insane.

This is a great and also tragic story. Here are the stars in our poetic and artistic firmament — Frost, Amy Lowell, Yeats, William Carlos Williams, Joyce, Stein, Cummings, Marianne Moore, Gaudier - Brzeska, Ford Madox Ford. Here too are not only the friendships but the disillusion, the let-down, the betrayal, and those bewildering vitiations of the spirit of poetry by the poet himself — the commitment to radical economic theory, the anti-Semitism and finally the wartime attacks on Roosevelt and the United States. Norman charitably lays this aberration to Pound's "concern for people, for the ordinary man struggling against economic odds."

There can't be any other modern writer with so complex a character, involved so completely in the total contemporary literary life, and so hard to capture in a single biography. Norman has assembled countless facts, and the essential portrait begins to emerge.

Recalling The Conflict Of Civil War

The word is out among book publishers that the centennial years of the Civil War are nigh. Fall lists are offering a new wave of publications recalling the 1861-65 conflict. Here are three representatives of September prints.

HORSEMEN BLUE AND GRAY. Pictures selected by Hirst Dillon Milhollen, text by James Ralph Johnson and Alfred Hoyt Bill. Oxford. $10.

The pounding of hoofbeats and the clash of sabres —lost sounds in modern war— echo through this handsome chronicle of the calvary's role in the Civil War. The pictures are stirring, from the vivid battle sketches to the excellent gallery of troopers and their commanders. The text is told largely in the words of participants, thereby achieving a sense of freshness apart from the usual dry recitals in books of this type. Both pictures and text bespeak thorough and careful research, resulting in a book with a flair for rare nuggets of information, one that makes exciting reading.

BUCKTAILED WILDCATS. By Edwin A. Glover, Yoseloff. $5.95.

The hazardous procedures of early Civil War recruiting brought into being many regiments which had a character all their own. One of the most individualistic was the Pennsylvania Bucktails, hardy lumbermen from north central Pennsylvania who decorated their hats with the tails of buck deer. They were a belligerent, hard fighting outfit, thrust to the forefront of practically every battle in which they took part. Few individuals emerge from the mass of regimental ranks but the story is interestingly told and merits consideration as a characteristic picture of the Civil War volunteer.

MY FATHER, GENERAL LEE. By Rorbert E. Lee Jr. New introduction by Philip Van Doren Stern. Doubleday. $5.95.

To those who picture Robert E. Lee as wholly austere, aloof and unbending, his letters to his family are a revelation. They show warmth and affection, a sense of humor that is surprising. These letters were woven into an appealing and intimate narrative by his son and published in 1904, to immediately take place as a valued source book on Lee. Now they are republished, with a sympathetic introduction by Philip Van Doren Stern, and a gallery of Lee portraits. It is a book requisite for complete understanding of the great Confederate captain.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

The problem of filming ballet was dealt with on a grand scale in the movie version of Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake" seen at a local movie theatre Thursday.

Nine color cameras located throughout Moscow's Bolshoi Theatre did the work of recording the Russian classic. Ballet in Russian dates from the courts of the czars and has held on as a tradition into the present era. The filming of this work, with stars Maya Plisetskaya and Nickolai Fadeyechev as prima ballerina and leading male dancer respectively, is an achievement which outreaches today's political turmoil.

LIGHTER

"Rejoice, Dear Hearts," was the attitude of Brother Dave Gardner who appeared at Louisiana Tech last Wednesday. Gardner, who uses the Andy Griffith-Tennessee Ernie approach to humor, proved to be entertaining if not entirely original.

Comedy with a southern exposure apparently has taken its place along side the Irish, English, Yiddish and Germanic accented presentations.

Various exposures to another subject call for a clarification of the lines in Little Theatre's "Seven Year Itch." It seems that the leading lady's script referred to a picture in the magazine "U. S. Camera," in which she posed with "driftwood, sand and me," for three bare textures. Don't be disappointed if you grab a copy of this photography magazine and find absolutely no bare facts between the covers. The contents of those we viewed and reviewed here after the tip from the play proved to be advertisements, technical articles on photo development and examples of interest-getting pictures in color and black and white,

MANTOVANI

The man with the singing strings in his orchestra lived up to the reputation an entertainer who had received a citation from the Queen of England. Mantovani, whose orchestral arrangements recall the background haze of the Moulin Rouge movie of Toulouse Lautrec's day, is the opposite number from Chris Barber's dixieland jazz presented on the Northeast series a couple of week's back.

Both Barber and Mantovani are British musicians — very proper and completely thorough — and appeal to utterly different emotions and audiences. Right now, the scales tip in favor of Mantovani for the most appealing entertainment witnessed thus far in the season.

COMING

The Northeast Louisiana Shrine Club is sponsoring a performance of "The Moon is Blue," slated for 8 p.m. Friday at Neville Auditorium. The sophisticated comedy is a Hugh Herbert production with an all-pro cast. Tickets are available from any member of the Shrine club. Stars will be Marcy Harrington and Henry Wideman.

A forthcoming offering on the Northeast State Concerts bill will be the musical comedy "Fiorello," slated for December 2. The production has been drawing capacity crowds at the Shubert Theatre in Chicago, but will pull up stakes and go on the road for a mid-winter tour.

Also come reports from the musical comedy scene that "Bye Bye Birdie" is still playing to standing room only crowds in New York and a road show version is being organized. This is good news for several Louisiana and Texas natives who have irons — and other precious metals — in this particular fire. With the musical playing since last April 14, it looks like "Birdie" may be the goose that laid the golden egg — in the economic sense, of course.

1. SAVE THE LAST DANCE FOR ME, Drifters.
2. I WANT TO BE WANTED, Brenda Lee.
3. CHAIN GANG, Sam Cooke.
4. DEVIL OR ANGEL, Bobby Vee.
5. MY HEART HAS A MIND OF ITS OWN, Connie Francis.
6. LET'S THINK ABOUT LIVING, Bob Luman.
7. GEORGIA ON MY MIND, Ray Charles.
. DON'T BE CRUEL, Bill Black's Combo.
. YOU TALK TOO MUCH, Joe Jones.
10. KIDDIO, Brook Benton.

Assignment Assassination Is Top Book

SEVEN MEN AT DAYBREAK. By Alan Burgess. Dutton $3.95.

In Prague, in the suburb of Holesovice, there is a sharp bend in the highway where trolleys stop for passengers and auots are obliged to cut their speed sharply on a clear spring day, May 27, 1942, Hitler's terrifying right arm, protector of Czechoslovakia, S. S. General Reinhard Heydrich, was alone in his green Mercedes with his driver and bodyguard Klein when they slowed at this spot. Two Czechs, Jan Kubis and Josef Gabchick, waited with a Sten gun and grenades. The grenades did the job, and Heydrich died June 4. For this single assassination, the Germans wiped out the town of Lidice and executed hundreds of other people with a barbaric brutality that shocked the Allied world.

The story of the pair of Czechs sent out from England on this fateful assignment, and of some of their comrades parachuted to Czech territory, is told here in stirring detail.

When the two principals landed, one suffered a foot injury that laid him, and them, up for days. They found contacts hard to establish. They were delayed by the fears of the core of the incipient resistance forces that too early a blow would end their entire underground. They used up time in an incident at Pilsen, and they fell in love idyllically. At the final rendezvous, after a couple of Czechs lost their courage before the threats of unendurable reprisals, there were five other men to give the figure seven of the title.

This is a story of raw bravery hard to match in the hero-studded history of World War II. It's all the more touching, too, for the amateurishness of these espionage novices. In fiction spies never make a slip; here suits bore the marks of London tailors, the saboteurs left their revolvers about, and forgot a telltale necktie; they neglected to bury a parachute that would give them away.

Musical About Israel Of Today Is On Schedule

NEW YORK (AP) — A romantic musical about present-day Israel is on Broadway's producing prospectus for next season. It would be the first with such locale.

Tentatively titled "Ruth," the project has been written by Don Appell, libretto, and Jerry Herman, score and lyrics. For authentic atmosphere, the pair wrote "Ruth" in Israel last spring.

The story concerns the romance of two middle-aged Americans who meet during a visit to the young nation.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS,
Ouachita Parish Librarian

On November 1 the number of books in the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library was 65,499. This is three times the number in the book collection years ago, but the library still needs many more books to fill the numerous and varied requests for reading material. There are now five libraries in the Ouachita Parish Library system and the books are widely scattered. New books are added almost every day and this week there are many new ones from which readers may make their selections.

In the field of fiction the new titles are most interesting. "Adrienne" by Barbara Levy has it's setting in pre-Revolutionary France. It is a romantic novel in the best tradition and will appeal to all who like this sort of story. "Where the High Winds Blow" by David Walker has it's setting in the frozen wilderness of Canada's Northwest Province. It is the story of Simon Skafe, the two women in his life and of the material empire which he founded. "The Soldier" by Richard Powell has it's locale on a small island in the Pacific during World War II. It is the story of a General who had lost interest in life and how he found it and returned to take up his place in the chain of humanity. "Many A Voyage" is the title of the latest book by Loula Grace Erdman. It is a book which will appeal especially to women. A slightly old-fashioned nostalgic novel is "The Nightingale" by Agnes Sligh Turnbull. It's time is the turn of the century and the setting is a small Pennsylvania town. This is the book for those who like a good clean story.

A powerful novel, translated from the Greek is "The Last Temptation of Christ" by Nikos Kazantzakis. It is a book whose impact will be enormous and it is certain to be discussed. Martha Albrand is an expert in the field of international intrigue and espoinage. Her latest book is called "Meet Me Tonight" and is thrilling from the first to the last word. A mystery story by Rex Stout is always eagerly received. His latest one is "Too Many Clients". George Herman Coxe also has a new mystery. It's title is "Last Commandment. Both of these are good stories of their kind.

The field of non-fiction ranges over a wide variety of subjects. "American Culture and Catholic Schools" is the title of a book by Emmett McLoughlin. The library had a number of requests for this book and it is certain to be widely read. Cynthia Maus has compiled a number of beautiful books on the subject of religion and fine arts. Her latest one is called "The Church and the Fine Arts". It is well written and beautifully illustrated. "Our Merchant Marine Academy" by Irving Crump will be especially interesting to boys who want to know more about this Government school. The book is well-written and factual.

"A Handbook of Christian Feasts and Customs by Francis Weiser is a treasure house of information and will be widely used. "1001 Questions Answered About the New Science" is the title of a book by David Oakes Woodbury. This will help many readers understand the world in which we live. "Brighter Than a Thousand Suns" by Robert Jungk is the history of the atomic scientists and how their work affected their lives. Another valuable book in the field of science is "Introduction to Historical geology" by Raymond Cecil Moore. This should be especially valuable to college students.

People in this area are dilligent gardners and will be interested in the new book by Mary B. Stewart called "The Southern Gardener." It contains much valuable information, suited to our own locality. Many requests come to the library for books about training dogs. The latest one is called "Dog Obedience Training". The author is Milo Pearsall, who has had a great deal of experience in this field. A book which every woman should read is "Management in the Home; Happier Living Through Saving Time and energy". The author is Lillian E. Gilbreth, who is one of the outstanding figures in the science of motion study and time saving. In this volume she has applied her energies to the home and many women will bless her for it. "Skin Diver" by Elgin Ciampi is a book which many young men will find absorbing reading.

"Toys In the Attic" is a new play by Lillian Hellman and the play readers of the community will be very happy to read it. "The Best American Short Stories of 1960" by Martha Foley is the yearly collection which is always welcomed by the devotees of the short story. Copies of this book are available in three of the Parish Libraries.

Books about the first World War are not easy to find and we are happy that we have a new complete history of this conflict. It is called "The Great War" and was written by Cyril B. Falls. Biographies are always popular and there are three new ones of interest. "The Public Years" is the third in a series of autobiographies of Bernard Baruch, one of the great men of today. "Upon My Lips A Song" is the title of Kate Smith's story and many will want to read it. Constantine Callinicos has written an account of the life of Mario Lanza, called "The Mario Lanza Story. It is certain to be widely read. Have you visited the new Anna Meyer Branch of the Ouachita Parish Public Library? It is now open for service at 418 Jackson Street. No matter which library you regularly use, go in there for a visit.

BUT IS IMPORTANT

Builders' Lingo Sounds Strange

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Batts" don't necessarily live in belfrys; a "leaseback" isn't a member of the football squad and a "bonnet" isn't an old-fashioned hat.

The language of builders and real estate men and experts in allied fields may sound like sanskrit to the uninitiated, but it behooves the home buyer or home owner to familiarize himself with at least some of the simpler terms.

Batts are rectangular sections of rock wool enveloped in heavy-duty paper or aluminum foil for use in insulating. Leaseback is a transaction in which an owner sells his land ownership but retains control of a property by leasing it back from the buyer. A bonnet, in the heating trade, is the sheet metal box above the furnace from which warm air supply ducts radiate to various rooms.

For those contemplating home purchase, West Gatewood of Allied Chemical Company's Barrett Building Materials Division explains the following:

Amortization: That part of the payment to the mortgage holder which reduced the principal part of a mortgage loan while increasing the owner's equity.

Closing: Consummation of a real estate transaction when title of property passes from seller to buyer.

Equity: The difference between the purchase price of property and the outstanding mortgage or other liens; the owner's cash interest above and beyond the mortgage.

Mortgage: A loan secured by the real estate upon which the loan is placed.

Refinancing: Extension, renewing, modification or consolidation of a mortgage obligation, altering the amount of the principal, interest or amortization rates; often used by homeowners who want to remodel or repair their homes.

Self - liquidating mortgage: A mortgage in which the payments on the principal and interest expire at the same time.

Barrett's Sheldon Cady, a building authority, explains:

Damp proofing: Application of water resistant pitch or asphalt base coating to the outside foundation wall to prevent moisture penetration.

Dry wall: Wallboard covering of the interior part of the framing to form wall surface.

Framing: Wooden supports, such as studs, joists, sills and lintels that make up the frame work of a house or its parts such as doors and windows.

Furring: Strips of wood or metal applied to walls, ceilings or roofs to provide even surfaces for installation of wall board, acoustical tile or shingles.

Joist: Horizontal beam used to support ceilings or floors.

Lintel: Horizontal beam over doorway or window.

Sheathing: Fiberboard or gypsum which covers the exterior frame of a house.

Siding: Exterior finish of a house, generally wood, brick, stone, aluminum, asphalt or asbestos shingling.

Sills: Large horizontal beams upon which rest the studs of the framework.

Stud: Vertical support — usually a piece of wood, two by four inches thick.

Calvin D. Macracken, president of Jet-Heet, Inc., clears up some of the confusing terms in heating and air conditioning:

BTU: British thermal unit, a measure of heat — roughly the amount of heat generated by the complete burning of a paper match; from 50,000 to 200,000 BTU's hourly required to heat average house in coldest weather.

Combustion efficiency: Measure of what percent of total heat available in fuel is delivered into the house while burner is operating.

Standby loss: Heat thrown up chimney due to natural draft when burner is not operating.

Ton of air conditioning: 12,000 BTU's of cooling per hour (amount of cooling of one ton of ice in 24 hours) takes about three tons to cool average house.

HAS EVERYTHING ELSE

Castro Needs Only Opponent For War

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro has everything he needs today for a war—except an opponent.

After months of invasion warnings, the absence of any enemy force is beginning to embarrass him.

While some here are starting to disbelieve Castro, others say Cuba's war preparations are simply a cover for spreading Castro's revolution into other Latin-American nations.

His regime has far more men under arms than did both sides together at the height of the Cuban revolution that upset President Fulgencio Batista almost two years ago. This island nation is almost sinking under the weight of new weapons—many of them imports from behind the Iron Curtain.

Some diplomats here predict Castro's export of revolutionary propaganda to other Latin-American lands by diplomatic pouch, relief parcels, trained experts and ordinary mail may be followed soon by shipments of Communist made arms—and perhaps even the men to fire them.

These sources say Castro's main effort — for which the invasion warnings provide the smokescreen — is anti-Americanism. His immediate goal, they add, is to isolate the United States from the rest of Latin America by fostering and supporting Castro-type regimes in Panama, Honduras, Venzuela and Puerto Rico.

Oil Debates Find Place In Campaign

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Never before in history have oil controversies figured so prominently in a presidential election campaign.

Tidelands ownership was an issue in 1952 but the dispute was relatively minor compared to the current debate over oil's depletion tax allowance.

The complicated depletion tax allowance has dominated the oil problems in the current campaign. Other issues have included oil imports and proposals for a national fuels policy study and for amendments to the natural gas act.

Despite the prominence of the industrys problems, however, many oilmen, particularly in Texas, have watched the campaign from the sidelines.

SUPPORT

Both Sen. John Kennedy and Vice President Richard Nixon have drawn support from many oilmen but others have preferred inactivity.

The inactivity has been prompted by a belief an oil operator could lose regardless of which direction he might turn.

The situation centers around the tow allowance controversy and the unique position of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the Democratic vice presidential nominee and Senate majority leader from Texas.

Also involved is another Texan, House Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Oilmen are attracted by the Republican platform's pledge for a reasonable depletion allowance. The Democratic platform places inequitable depletion allowances among the conspicuous tax loopholes that should be plugged.

ALLOWANCE

Nixon has endorsed oil's full 27½ per cent allowance. Kennedy has cast three Senate votes for a graduated reduction.

But an oilman's vote for Nixon would be a vote against Johnson, who for 25 years has been one of the most vigorous backers of the full allowance.

Rayburn has shared Johnson's role as the leader in the fight against those in Congress who would reduce the allowance. Rayburn has indicated repudiation of Johnson in the current campaign would amount to repudiation of such support to the oil industry and gas industry.

Rayburn has been looked upon as oil's trump card in the fight to retain the full 27½ per cent. Rayburn probably could block a House attack. There has been a feeling this may eventually become necessary in view of the rather impressive gains the Senate opposition has made the past nine years.

Neithre party platform makes reference to oil or gas while commenting on depletion allowances. Assumptions that the references have the oil industry in mind are based on the fact that four Senate efforts to cut the 27½ per cent have been made since 1951.

Johnson has disagreed with the assumptions. He has said he does not consider oil's allowance a tax loophole and that there is nothing in the Democratic platform suggesting a reduction in the 27½ per cent allowance.

Renewed attacks are anticipated in the Senate regardless of the outcome of Tuesday's presidential election.

Johnson's position is unique in that his name also appears on Tuesday's Texas ballots as the Democratic nominee for another six-year term in the Senate.

Styling Said Good

DETROIT (UPI)—An industrial designer who two years ago blamed poor design for a drop in American car sales says the styling of the 1961 models is good enough to boost sales.

Designer Carl Sundberg of Sundberg-Ferar Inc., an industrial design firm which has many former automobile designers on its staff although it doesn't do automotive design work, congratulated the designers of the 1961 models.

NEW YORK (AP) — Business sentiment seesawed last week under the weight of election campaign stresses and divergent views on the economic outlook.

The stock market apparently felt it had digested enough possibilities of the election's outcome a nd mounted a moderate rally.

It found encouragement in announcement of private and government spending plans but also took notice of some rather dim views of what is ahead.

PLANS

General Motors Chairman Frederic G. Donner disclosed plans to spend $1.25 billion in the United States and abroad for new plants, machinery, equipment and tooling in 1961. This would be $50 million above this year's outlay. About $1 billion would be spent in the United States.

Donner predicted passenger car sales would reach 7 million in 1961. Sales this year are expected to run between 6.6 and 6.8 million

The government added $55 million to the amount to be spent this fiscal year on developing the B70 supersonic bomber. This makes $265 million available for the program between now and June 30.

Corporate earnings for the first nine months of this year exceeded last year by about 2 per cent, and profits for the fourth quarter may come close to the 1959 period, a survey showed. However, the third and fourth quarters last year were dulled by steel and copper strikes.

SURVEY

A survey of manufacturers showed they look for increased orders, billings and profits in the first half of 1961. And the machine tool industry said the balance of this year may be the best for new orders in a long time.

On the other hand, the First National City Bank of New York said it found that economic trends have shifted from a sidewise movement to a moderate downturn.

A majority of the nation's leading economists, responding to an inquiry from F. W. Dodge Cor., a construction and marketing statistical agency, said they foresee a mild recession between now and the end of 1961.

A decline in freight loadings of the rail and truck industries reflected a slowing business trend.

Steel and automobile production dipped. Steel output dropped to an estimated 51.7 per cent of capacity from last week's 54.2 Some steel executives said they couldn't see any significant improvement for the rest of the year.

Auto production tapered off for the first time since the companies started turning out 1961 models. Last week's output was estimated at 145,000 cars, compared with 150,106 the previous week.

OCTOBER

In October, 617,816 cars rolled off assembly lines. This was 110,000 more than in October 1959.

Chrysler Corp., American Motos Corp. and the Chevrolet and Cadillac divisions of General Motors Corp. reported sales were higher in October than a year ago.

The Treasury reported that the outflow of gold from the United States passed the billion-dollar mark with a loss of $45 million in the last week. That left the United States with $18,417,000,000 of gold. However, the rush to buy gold on the London market subsided.

In an unprecedented move, the New York Stock Exchange announced it would dip into its treasury for $690,000 to reimburse investors who suffered losses in the receivership of the Boston brokerage firm, Du Pont Homsey & Co. The firm's managing partner, Anton Homsey, was expelled from the Exchanges and faces charges of irregularities.

PRICE CUTTING HITS

Chemical Company Profits Show Drop

NEW YORK (AP)—Price cutting and sales competition have bitten into the profits of the chemical companies. But this seems only to have sharpened their drive to outpace one another in turning cheap and plentiful raw materials into profitable synthetics—either new or cheaper ones.

The prospective harvest to be reaped from new man-made materials continues to lure members of other industries into the field.

The battles start in the laboratory where more than $400 million a year is being poured into research. Then they spill into the marketplace. Some who watch the industry closely feel the current profit squeeze may be just the catalyst to turn today's increasing competition into showdowns—with a number of casualties a good probability.

REPORTS

Inroads of price cutting and slower business into chemical profit margins shown in first reports of July-August-September earnings. They average 13 per cent lower than in the summer of 1959 and 20 per cent down from the April-May-June quarter of 1960. The industry's reports for the first nine months of this year trail the year-ago figures by 7 per cent, although a number of other industries topped their 1959 showings.

Entry of other industries into the chemical business has gained momentum in recent years, undeterred by the average capital investment of $27,000 for each chemical worker, which is larger than in many other lines of endeavor.

The parade has included meat packers, whisky distillers, soap makers, photographic equipment producers, oil companies, metal processors.

Examples of the competitive struggle within the chemical industry: 1. There were two chemical companies producing polyethylene immediately after World War II. Today 17 do. 2. Ten years ago the American farmer had five major suppliers of anhydrous ammonia. Today 30 companies compete in meeting his fertilizer needs. Similar examples can be found in paints, synthetic fibers and plastics.

DISCOVERS

One chemical discovery that caught on fast and opened a wide market for itself while competing fiercely with other synthetics and natural materials is the relatively newcomer isocyonate. This man-made molecule uses natural gas or salt as a starting point and then combines with other ingredients to produce urethane.

From this can be fashioned rocket fuels, featherweight foam mattresses, insulated ski and sailing clothes, or wear resistant applications for roller skating rinks.

One sideline to the keen competition to develop and exploit urethane is a three-way battle now joined between urethane, latex rubber and the long established metal spring for the mattress and furniture cushioning

The chemical industry sports many other intramural contests.

But with new cost-cutting and marketing programs — plus some luck from the research laboratories' future findings—the industry hopes to take off by the end of next year on a new growth cycle. It aims at matching the record of the last 25 years when its average growth rate was 7 per cent a year —well above that for manufacturing as a whole.

The chemists hope that in the new cycle profit margins will be restored to boot.

'GET PEOPLE INTERESTED IN CARS AGAIN'

Auto Industry Awaits Election Climax

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry is going to be mighty glad when Wednesday comes.

"Once the election is over maybe we can get people interested in cars again," said one executive of a major car manufacturer. "Right now everything's politics."

The automakers have been particularly jittery over campaign charges and countercharges as to whether the nation faces a recession or is on the verge of greater prosperity.

WHAT HAPPENS

It is said that when the nation's economy sneezes, Detroit catches pneumonia. If a recession comes, car sales drop sharply; production is curtailed; layoffs occur.

Auto production slowdowns hurt not only Detroit because in an average year the industry buys about 20 per cent of all steel sold in the United States; about 64 per cent of all rubber; 70 per cent of all plate glass; 44 per cent of all lead. It is the leading purchaser of thousands of other items.

The automakers have been cautiously optimistic. Generally they predict sales between 6 and 6.5 million domestic cars, or about the same as this year.

New model production has reflected caution, too. The industry went into the 1961 model year with record inventories of unsold 1960 models. Despite near-record sales in October, stocks climbed this week to about one million cars.

Original schedules which called for 1.9 million cars to be built in the October-December quarter have been pared to about 1.5 million. Many observers believe actual assemblies will fall considerably below this figure.

PRODUCTION

Production and inventory have figured in the political arguments. The United Auto Workers Union, staunch supporter of the Democrats, charged the manufacturers with boosting production artificially high in the pre-election weeks to make the Republican administration look good. The UAW maintained this would force large scale layoffs immediately after election day.

The charges were hotly denied by the auto companies. They said production in the early weeks of a new model always is high in order to provide all dealers with a stock of new cars. A General Motors vice president said he sees little likelihood of major layoffs after the election.

Chrysler caused a stir by announcing layoffs of some 5,000 workers even before 1961 models went on sale. But the corporation said this was because it had added a number of strictly temporary employes with the aim of giving its dealers adequate stocks at introduction time for the first time in years.

GROW

The production and inventory arguments grew in part from a decision by the manufacturers to introduce new models in late September and early October.

In 1956, the last presidential election year, most new models did not go on sale until early November. At that time car inventories had fallen below 300,000: factories were talking boldly of new sales records; dealers reported waiting lists of up to eight weeks despite price increases of more than $100 on almost every car.

This time in the face of record stocks nobody is talking records; prices have held unchanged for the past two years and waiting lists are a rarity.

Many economists have picked mid-November as the earliest possible date to assess future sales prospects. Some industry men feel even this is too soon.

New Record For Year Set In Monroe Oil District

By RICHARD GREENE
Oil Editor

A new record for the year was set in the 14-parish Monroe district of the State Department of Conservation last week with the completion of 16 new oil and gas wells. This is the third week in the last month that has shown such a flourish in drilling activities for the district.

Duncan S. Cook, district manager who prepares the weekly report, also listed 20 new locations of possible well producers and one well that was re - completed in Concordia Parish.

There are 20 rigs reported active in the fields and 12 holes that were declared dry and abandoned.

These are the new completions:

CATAHOULA

Tew Lake Field — H. A. Harper's H. A. Harper J. A. Webb no. 1 in sec. 35-9-6⅜, completed to flow 49 barrels through a 9-64 in. choke from perforations at 4303-07 ft., gravity 37.

Wallace Lake Field — McGoldrick, Watson Drilling Co. and R. H. Alagood's N. G. Nasif Unit no. 1 in sec. 14-8-6E, completed to flow 84 barrels through a 7-64 in. choke from perforations at 4410-11 ft., tubing pressure 440 lbs., casing pressure 200 lbs., gas oil ratio 300:1, gravity 44.

CONCORDIA

Wildcat Well Being Tested In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Humble Oil and Refining Co. has set production casing to 10,528 feet in an important wildcat oil well in Yazoo County and the industry is awaiting outcome of tests.

The well is the Thompson No. 1 about four miles north of Bentonia. Operators will evaluate the commercial worth of oil sand found in the Hosston formation at 10,304 feet and at 10,170 feet.

The well in section 3, 9 north, 1 west was drilled to 15,020 feet to test the Smackover lime, which was not encountered.

The Humble well is about eight miles southeast of the Ginant Tinsley oil field, which was the first commercial field to be found in the state.

In Pike County, three important wildcat tests are underway. Cockrell and Campbell are below 10,700 feet in their Brumfield No. 1, sec. 26-2n-9e, about 12 miles east of Magnolia. Chartor Oil Co. is at 7,900 feet in its Dunaway No. 1, sec. 12-3n-8e, four miles south of the Little Creek field. R. E. Williams is below 2,100 feet in the May-Love No. 1, sec. 1-4n-7e, about one mile north of Dixie Springs.

In Amite County, Erickson and Daniel are below 11,500 feet in their Gaughan-O'Connor No. 1, a wildcat in sec. 6-3n-3e, 10 miles northwest of Liberty, and Bateman Drilling Co. is below 6,900 feet in its wildcat, the Koppers Corp. No. 1, sec. 32-4n-5e, about five miles southwest of the new Smithdale oil field.

In Copiah County, Gulf Oil is below 3,075 feet in its Gatesville unit No. 1, sec. 24-2n-1w, located six miles east of Crystal Springs. The venture is to go to 14,500 feet.

In Issaquena County, Gulf is below 10,400 feet in its deep wildcat, the Eagle Bend No. 1, sec. 3-18n-3e, a scheduled 16,500 foot venture.

In the new deep Knoxo gas field in Walthall County, Humble has completed its Fernwood Lumber Co. No. 1, sec. 7-2n-12e, as a dry gas well. The well flowed 6,875,000 cubic feet of gas from the Paluxy zone at 12,559-579 feet.

In Jefferson Davis County, Texaco - Seaboard Inc. has set conductor pipe at its deep wildcat, the Newman Lumber Co. No. 1, sec. 1-5n-19w, located eight miles southwest of Bassfield. The venture is to go to 14,000 feet and is located on the flank of the Oakvale salt dome.

Field drilling during the past week saw four new oilers completed.

At McComb in Pike County, Sun Oil finaled its Page No. 2, sec. 5-3n-7e, flowing 168 barrels per day from 10,955-64 feet. Also at McComb, Sun completed its Lmampton Walace No. G-1, sec. 22-3n-7e, flowing 196 barrels daily from 10,940-52 feet.

In the Bryan field of Jones County, Sigler, Caldwell and DeKay completed their Gattlin No. 1 sec. 26-10n-10w, pumping 344 barrels per day from 10,798-804 feet. Humble completed its Bryan oil unit No. 4, sec. 23-10n-10w as a triple completion. A sand at 10,233-40 feet flowed 783 barrels daily, a zone at 10,791-801 feet tested 216 barrels and a zone at 11,532-82 feet flowed 198 barrels per day.

Season's High On N. Y. Exchange

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures all hit seasonal highs on the New York Cotton Exchange this week.

Gains ranged from 80 cents to the $1.70 a bale advance posted for the July, 1961 delivery.

The upward swing, following a downward drift a week ago, was influenced by expectations that the government crop forecast due next Tuesday night indicate a smaller harvest than predicted as of Oct. 1.

The forthcoming crop report will reflect conditions as of Nov.1.

Other factors buoying prices included continued reports of unfavorable weather in the cotton belt, favorable export prospects and increased trade buying credited to a brisk demand for spot cotton.

SLATED TO RETIRE on November 30 is C. Bert Braun, clerk of the Monroe city court, who has served in that capacity since April 1 of 1931. (Staff photo by Ben L. Bradford, Jr.)

AFTER 29 YEARS

City Court Clerk Plans Retirement

C. Bert Braun, clerk of the Monroe City Court, for more than 29 years, will retire November 30, Judge W. M. Harper has announced.

Braun lacks only five months of completing 30 years in the position which is responsible for keeping the record of the proceedings of the municipal court.

He will be succeeded by Miss Barbara Rhone, who for the past several years has been deputy clerk. Mrs. Margaret Foulks Woodruff, presently secretary to the chief of the Monroe police department, will become deputy clerk of court.

A resident of Monroe since August of 1917, Braun has been active in many of the civic movements, particularly the American Legion and Rotary Club of Monroe. He has served the local post of the Legion as adjutant since 1933 and at one time was commander.

In the Rotary club, he has served as secretary since 1954.

Coming to Monroe from Illinois originally to work with the Missouri Pacific Railroad, Braun first served as secretary to the then superintendent, A. B. Taylor. At that time Judge Harper was also employed by the railroad company, and the two formed a friendship which has continued to the present.

After five months of service in Monroe with the railroad, he was enlisted in the Air Service, then a branch of the Signal Corps, and served at Kelly Field and later in Omaha, Neb.

Returning to Monroe, he rejoined the Missouri Pacific company, but within a year went to work as a salesman for a typewriter company. On April 1, 1931, he joined the City of Monroe as clerk of the city court.

During World War II, Braun served as chairman of the Selective Service Board, holding the position for two and one - half years. He served for five more years on the board as a member.

He and his wife live at 1305 Emerson street. They have one daughter, Ann, now Mrs. Ralph Cowan Jr., of Florida.

As for the future, Braun said he would "just rest. I'll go see my daughter and her family and then come home and rest for a good while." He has no definite plans, but will keep up his work in both the Legion and Rotary.

As adjutant in the Legion, Braun has worked closely with the Pelican Boys' State movement, which he calls "my pet hobby of the Legion projects."

In announcing the coming retirement of Braun, Judge Harper commended him for the "unselfish work which he has performed in his position" and said he, as a judge and as a member of the city government, would "miss Mr. Braun in the future."

"However," the judge continued, "I am happy that he will be able to enjoy his retirement, which he deserves. He has in his capacity as clerk of the city court helped tremendously in carrying the burden of the court which has increased at least five times in volume during the past 30 years."

Baptists Plan To Dedicate New Building

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — Highlight of the three - day meeting of the Louisiana Baptist Convention at First Baptist Church, Pineville, Nov. 8-10, will be the dedication of the new Louisiana Baptist building.

Located on MacArthur drive in Alexandria, the $1,350,000 building will be dedicated at 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 9, with Dr. Troy V. Wheeler, building committee chairman, presiding.

The building, of concrete and manufactured black granite construction, was completed in October to house LBC executive offices and department headquarters and the Baptist Bookstore.

The dedication address will be made by Dr. Ramsey Pollard, of Memphis, Tenn., president of the Southern Baptist Convention, and Dr. Wheeler will make the presentation for the committee composed of Dr. R. Houston Smith of Pineville; Dr. J. Norris Palmer of Baton Rouge; H. C. Abbott of Shreveport, LBC president; Dr. J. D. Grey of New Orleas; Dr. Jaroy Weber of Alexandria, and James W. Middleton of Shreveport.

Explaining the building project and programs will be Abbott, Dr. Robert L. Lee, LBC executive secretary, and Dr. James L. Sullivan, executive secretary of the Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn.

Carl L. Olschner and Associates of New Orleans planned the building which was constructed by S. E. Florsheim Company of Shreveport.

LSU Faculty Group Asks For No. 1 Defeat

BATON ROUGE (Special) — A faculty organization at Louisiana State University, the American Association of University Professors, today joined other LSU groups in calling for defeat off proposed amendment No. 1 which would change the structure of the university's Board of Supervisors.

Dr. Paul Y. Burns, president of the LSU chapter of the AAUP, said the resolution was unanimously approved by the executive council of the chapter. Professor Burns is director of the School of Forestry.

The AAUP action, together with similar action by the LSU Board of Supervisors, Alumni Federation and student newspapers at both Baton Rouge and New Orleans campuses, presents a united front against adoption of the amendment.

BUT IS IMPORTANT

Builders' Lingo Sounds Strange

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Batts" don't necessarily live in belfrys; a "leaseback" isn't a member of the football squad and a "bonnet" isn't an old-fashioned hat.

The language of builders and real estate men and experts in allied fields may sound like sanskrit to the uninitiated, but it behooves the home buyer or home owner to familiarize himself with at least some of the simpler terms.

Batts are rectangular sections of rock wool enveloped in heavy-duty paper or aluminum foil for use in insulating. Leaseback is a transaction in which an owner sells his land ownership but retains control of a property by leasing it back from the buyer. A bonnet, in the heating trade, is the sheet metal box above the furnace from which warm air supply ducts radiate to various rooms.

For those contemplating home purchase, West Gatewood of Allied Chemical Company's Barrett Building Materials Division explains the following:

Amortization: That part of the payment to the mortgage holder which reduced the principal part of a mortgage loan while increasing the owner's equity.

Closing: Consummation of a real estate transaction when title of property passes from seller to buyer.

Equity: The difference betweep the purchase price of property and the outstanding mortgage or other liens; the owner's cash interest above and beyond the mort gage.

Mortgage: A loan secured by the real estate upon which the loan is placed.

Refinancing: Extension, renewing, modification or consolidation of a mortgage obligation, altering the amount of the principal, interest or amortization rates; often used by homeowners who want to remodel or repair their homes.

Self - liquidating mortgage: A mortgage in which the payments on the principal and interest expire at the same time.

Barrett's Sheldon Cady, a building authority, explains:

Damp proofing: Application of water resistant pitch or asphalt base coating to the outside foundation wall to prevent moisture penetration.

Dry wall: Wallboard covering of the interior part of the framing to form wall surface.

Framing: Wooden supports, such as studs, joists, sills and lintels that make up the frame work of a house or its parts such as doors and windows.

Furring: Strips of wood or metal applied to walls, ceilings or roofs to provide even surfaces for installation of wall board, acoustical tile or shingles.

Joist: Horizontal beam used to support ceilings or floors.

Lintel: Horizontal beam over doorway or window.

Sheathing: Fiberboard or gypsum which covers the exterior frame of a house.

Siding: Exterior finish of a house, generally wood, brick, stone, aluminum, asphalt or asbestos shingling.

Sills: Large horizontal beams upon which rest the studs of the framework.

Stud: Vertical support — usually a piece of wood, two by four inches thick.

Calvin D. Macracken, president of Jet-Heet, Inc., clears up some of the confusing terms in heating and air conditioning:

BTU: British thermal unit, a measure of heat — roughly the amount of heat generated by the complete burning of a paper match; from 50,000 to 200,000 BTU's hourly required to heat average house in coldest weather.

Combustion efficiency: Measure of what percent of total heat available in fuel is delivered into the house while burner is operating.

Standby loss: Heat thrown up chimney due to natural draft when burner is not operating.

Two of air conditioning: 12,000 BTU's of cooling per hour (amount of cooling of one ton of ice in 24 hours); takes about three tons to cool average house.

HAS EVERYTHING ELSE

Castro Needs Only Opponent For War

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro has everything he needs today for a war—except an opponent.

After months of invasion warnings, the absence of any enemy force is beginning to embarrass him.

While some here are starting to disbelieve Castro, others say Cuba's war preparations are simply a cover for spreading Castro's revolution into other Latin-American nations.

His regime has far more men under arms than did both sides together at the height of the Cuban revolution that upset President Fulgencio Batista almost two years ago. This island nation is almost sinking under the weight of new weapons—many of them imports from behind the Iron Curtain.

Some diplomats here predict Castro's export of revolutionary propaganda to other Latin-American lands by diplomatic pouch, relief parcels, trained experts and ordinary mail may be followed soon by shipments of Communist made arms—and perhaps even the men to fire them.

These sources say Castro's main effort — for which the invasion warnings provide the smokescreen —is anti-Americanism. His immediate goal, they add, is to isolate the United States from the rest of Latin America by fostering and supporting Castro-type regimes in Panama, Honduras, Venzuela and Puerto Rico.

Point-Hungry LSU Stampedes S. Carolina 35-6

Delta State Rallies In 2nd Half To Top Tribe 27-0

Amedee Ramrods Sizzling Offense

By JACK GATES
Executive Editor of the News-Star—World

BATON ROUGE — Sophomore Lynn Amedee, 165-pounds of dynamite who was promoted to the starting quarterback post the past week, threw three touchdown passes and set up a fourth Saturday night as Louisiana State University point- hungry all season, swept through South Carolina 35-6.

An estimated 50,000 homecoming fans, braving cold wind and a pre-game rain, cheered gleefully as the Tigers scored more points in one game than they had scored in five previous ones.

The scoring spree started early in the second period after LSU had spotted South Carolina six points. It ended with 21 seconds left in the game when quarterback Darryl Jenkins went 15 yards for the fifth touchdown.

On the third play of the second period, Amedee who showed the poise of a veteran and the dash of a gambler, hit halfback Wendell Harris with a 33-yard scoring pass to tie it up. Then Harris kicked the extra point to put the Tigers ahead to stay.

Then a short time later, Bo Campbell, a sophomore halfback from Shreveport, crashed over from the one for the second score after a 20-yard run by Amedee and a 23-yard pass from Amedee to Bobby Flurry, a sophomore end from Homer, had set up the touchdown play.

Six minutes deep in the second half Amedee hit big Earl Gros with a 26-yard pass for the third touchdown. Gros took the ball on the South Carolina 10 and knocked down two tacklers on the way to the end zone. Harris, who had a perfect night on conversion, made it 21 to 6.

The fourth tally came midway of the fourth period, when Amedee again hit Flurry with a 23-yarder. Flurry, standing just in the end zone, grabbed the ball away from two defenders.

The final score came after South Carolina quarterback Tommy Pilcher fumbled on his own 21 and center Bo Strange recovered for the Tigers. Three plays later, Jenkins fading back to pass, decided to run instead and swept wide and into the end zone for the touchdown.

It was a heartening effort for the Tigers who had lost three games and tied one while giving up only two touchdowns.

However, in the first period, it appeared they might be in for another tough night.

After failing to move on the opening kickoff, sophomore halfback Jerry Stovall of West Monroe, the top punter in the nation, let one roll off the side of his boot and kicked out of bounds on the Tiger 31. However, South Carolina couldn't move and punted to the Tigers. On the second play of the series, quarterback Jimmy Field threw a pitchout to high and center Jake Bodkin fell on it for South Carolina at the 14. Three plays later, Dickie Day, a dancing fullback, went wide, then cut back and dashed 10 yards for the touchdown. However, South Carolina, trying for two points, failed.

In the third period, with the score 21 to 6, halfback Billy Grambell took a Tiger punt on his own 15, and dashed through the LSU players as if they were standing still and scored. However, the touchdown was nulified when officials ruled both teams off sides. That was the only time the Gamecocks actually threatened in the second half as the Tigers came to life.

In all, Amedee, who was by far LSU's most dashing Tiger, completed eight of 21 passes for a total of 140 yards, and picked up another 62 rushing to lead Tiger backs in this department. Three of his passes were intercepted, however.

Charles Cranford, a 20 year - old sophomore from Minden, who has All - American potential at fullback before he finishes, was second high ground gainer with 45 yards.

One of the interceptions on Amedee came at the South Carolina 10 and stopped a Tiger drive.

Stovall, who showed less tonight than in any game this season almost got away for one touchdown. He intercepted a South Caroliina pass on the LSU 30 and returned it to the South Carolina 30. With one defender out of the way, he would have gone all the way.

The first Tiger scoring drive started on LSU's 42. Harris went 17 yards to set it in motion. Then Amedee, who was promoted to first string quarterback for his brilliant work in giving the Tigers a 6-6 tie with Mississippi last week, threw a 10-yard pass. Then he went another from before tossing to Harris, who caught the ball on the sideline at the 20, danced away from two tacklers, cut across the field and went over standing up.

The second scoring drive started at the LSU 48. On one play in the series, Amedee went 20 yards, then tossed a 23-yard pass to Flurry.

A 20-yard dash by Cranford from his own 46 set the stage for the third LSU score, while a 22-yard dash by the Minden speedster set the stage for the fourth score. This one, however, saw Amedee hit on another 16-yard pass.

Coach Paul Dietzel, who had watched his team give up only 35 points, while scoring 30, in winning one, losing four and tieing one before Saturday night, was happy with the victory.

"Losing will never replace winning," he said. "It sure was nice to win a football game."

He praised Amedee and said, "He did another fine job."

Dietzel also praised the work of Strange and disclosed that the senior had set up all the previous night with his wife who is ill in a hospital. He also termed the Go Team, which Amedee also quarterbacked last night, and which accounted for two of the LSU touchdowns and set up at least another, as the "Explosive Team."

This team has scored more and moved the ball better than all of our other Go Teams at LSU," Dietzel said. This year's team is made up of sophomores.

Fullback Dick Day, a sophomore, walked off with rushing honors on the South Carolina team, picking up 60 yards in 13 carries, while Dug Hatcher, a kicking specialist, provided additional entertainment. Before each punt he removed his right shoe and kicked barefooted. He ended up with a 39.2 average for the night, while Stovall dropped, booting seven for an average of 36.9.

In all LSU picked up 15 first downs to eight for South Carolina and gained 219 yards rushing to 125 for the Carolinans.

Texas Knocks Baylor Out Of SWC Chase

WACO, Tex. (UPI)—James Saxton set up two Texas touchdowns on long gainers Saturday as the Longhorns virtually knocked the Baylor Bears out of the Southwest Conference title race with a 12 to 7 defeat before 50,000 fans.

The 165-pound speedster outraced Bear defenders on a 59-yard end run and a 38-yard pass reception. The gains were preludes to short scoring plunges by Davis Russell and John Allen Cook.

Baylor's vaunted passing attack finally clicked with four minutes left to play as Ronnie Stanley passed 22 yards to Ronnie Bull for the only Baylor score.

The Texas victory left both teams with 3-2 conference records and put them in fourth place.

Saxton also intercepted a Baylor pass to halt a first half threat. The Palestine, Tex. flash gained 88 yards on the ground in seven carries.

A hard-charging Longhorn line held Bear passers to 16 completions in 38 attepts.

Mike Cotten passed 38 yards into a stiff 23-mile north wind to Saxton on the Baylor three yard line to set up the first touchdown of the game. An offside penalty against the Bears put the ball on the two, and halfback David Russell raced around right end for the score. Dan Petty's extra point kick was wide.

The Bears got their passing attack going in the closing minutes of the first half as Ronnie Stanley threw three strikes to move the ball 45 yards from the Baylor 25 to the Texas 30. But Saxton ended the march with his interception.

Saxton slashed 59 yards around left end to set up the second Texas touchdown. Only a shoestring tackle by Ronnie Goodwin on the Baylor 12 kept the Longhorn's speedster from stretching the longest run of the game into the score, which came five plays later on a two-yard plunge by fullback John Allen Cook. A pass attempt for two extra points failed.

Billy Cannon Has Nothing On Lestage

By BOB ANDERSON

RUSTON, La. — Jack Lestage's 86-yard punt return against Southeastern Saturday afternoon may not have been as great a run as the famous Billy Cannon dash against Ole Miss last fall but you'd have a hard time convincing Louisiana Tech's old grads — and Southeastern.

The run, a fitting climax to Tech's homecoming festivities, snatched victory from a Southeastern team that appeared to have the bruising Gulf States Conference contest won.

Riding an eight - game winning streak that began on the last tilt of 1959, Southeastern had gone ahead, 14-10, nine minutes and five seconds before the run and was moving steadily again before the drive stalled and Elbert Harris kicked to Lestage.

Unlike Cannon on his 89-yard punt return against Ole Miss, Lestage got great blocking on his sprint. Joe Hinton made the key block, a spilling of Harris at about the 35, and Andy Malone contributed another. After that, the 182-pound Lestage, a junior halfback from Lake Charles, was home free.

Team statistics reflected the closeness of the battle. Tech had 16 first downs and SLC 14. Southeastern's mercury - footed backs ran up 221 yards on the ground to Tech's 187.

Tech, with accurate Mickey Slaughter throwing, had the edge in passing with five completions in nine tosses for 85 yards. SLC's Harris could complete only two of 10 throws for 44 yards.

The Techmen relied on Slaughter's dead - eye passing, Paul Hynes' sprints around end and Max Rudd's crunching smashes up the middle. Southeastern moved on Harris' quick trips around the flanks and Bill Ladner's thrusts off tackle.

Rudd's 17 blasts into the line gave him 76 yards for the afternoon, tops for both teams on the ground. Hynes gained 43 yards on seven carries and Slaughter completed five of eight passes, three to Monroe's Tom Causey.

Harris was the big gainer for Southeastern. He got 63 yards on the ground in 14 trips and did all of the Lions' passing. Ladner gained 52 yards rushing in 12 tries.

Amazingly enough, considering the importance of the game and the spirited play, each team was penalized only once, Tech for offsides and Southeastern for too much time.

Southeastern, its hopes for an unbeaten season ruined, has two more games remaining. The Lions play McNeese at Hammond next week and close out against last - place Northwestern at Natchitoches Nov. 19.

Tech takes on a toughie in once - beaten Mississippi Southern, still smarting from last year's 16-0 upset, at Hattiesburg next Saturday and closes out Nov. 19 against Northeast at Monroe.

Demons Bow To McNeese Passes, 20-7

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Quarterback Don Breaux fired two touchdown passes Saturday night to lead McNeese to its fifth straight win 20-7 over Northwestern in a Gulf States Conference game.

The victory kept McNeese in the running for the GSC title with a 2-1 record and a 6-2 overall mark. NSC has lost all three games in the GSC and stands 3-4 overall.

Breaux tossed scoring aerials of 34 yards to halfback Lloyd Guillot and 15 yards to end Tom Sestak to bring McNeese from a 7-6 halftime deficit. Breaux also teamed up with Sestak for a two-point conversion after the last TD.

Quarterback Nolan Viator had scored the first McNeese touchdown with a 61-yard burst in the second quarter.

The NSC score came in the second quarter on a 49-yard pass from quarterback Vic Stelley to halfback Don Dean. Nick Norcia kicked the extra point.

Fifth Straight For Nicholls

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Nicholls rolled to its fifth straight shutout victory Saturday night by blanking hapless Fortier 25-0 as Ronald Chapoton scored two touchdowns.

Nicholls now has a 5-2 record. Fortier has won once and has been shut out in its other six outings.

Chapoton scored on runs of two and 70 yards as he picked up 105 yards rushing in the first half. Nolan LeBlanc, who piled up 102 yards on the ground in the first half, scored the third TD on a 25-yard gallop.

Nicholls subs played most of the second half. Claude Dupas tallied on a four-yard run in the third quarter for the final tally. Roger Lemoine converted for Nicholls' only PAT.

The first indoor football game in history was played Dec. 28, 1902, in the old Madison Square Garden. Syracuse, with Glenn (Pop) Warner at guard, defeated the Philadelphia Nationals, 6-0, before 3,000 fans.

Winners Score Three In Fourth

By JERRY HARKNESS
Staff Sports Writer

CLEVELAND, Miss. — Delta State came back fired-up after halftime here last night, took to the air for a quick third-period touchdown, then opened up to get three more in the final quarter and nail down a 27 - 0 homecoming victory over Northeast's hard-hitting Indians.

It was the second straight win for the Statesmen over Northeast. They won last year's battle, 14-13. The defending Christmas Bowl champs played all offense in the second half after staging a dull battle for short yardage in the first two periods.

STATISTICS	Northeast	Delta
First Downs	5	10
Yards Rushing	59	83
Yards Passing	53	162
Passes	17-5	15-10
Passes Int. By	1	1
Fumbles Lost	1	0
Punting	11-31.7	9-31.1

The qick third quarter score kept Northeast stunned for most of the last half and penalties kept the Indians away from the Delta goal line.

The first half of the game was a hard - nosed defensive battle with neither team able to get a serious drive going. Play was even on both sides with massive lines digging in. Both teams punted seven times in the first two periods.

Delta State took the opening kickoff and could move the ball only nine yards before kicking to the Northeast 10. The Indians began moving the ball but lost five yards on a penalty and also had to punt.

Defensive specialist Gerry Marchbank, Larry Rambin and Delmas Thorne plugged up all holes in the Indian line and the first half began shaping up as a punting duel between Northeast's fine kicker, John Kelly, and Delta quarterbacks Albert Hill and Frank Greenlee.

Delta State drove to the Indian 29 - yard line for their deepest penetration of the first half. The Indians missed two touchdowns by the length of a fingertip midway of the second quarter when two passes from quarterback Jack Webb missed target Ferdy Curce, all alone in Statesmen territory, by only inches.

With Pete Vincent at the quarterback slot for Northeast, Delta's Albert Hill intercepted a pass at the Statesman 43 - yard line to end the Indians' hopes in the fading minutes of the first half.

Delta got a break at the start of the third period that might have been the game's turning point if the defensive battle had continued.

With Northeast beginning to move after taking the second half kickoff, Statesman guard Ralph Sanders recovered a fumble by Don Wattigny at the Northeast 25 and Delta drove to the Indian one - yard line. But hard - charging end Chhalie Barnes broke through to spill Hill for a loss that momentarily saved the day.

Wattigny punted on first down for Northeast and the Statesmen came marching back from the Tribe 45. James Hubert and quarterback Bob Brumfield alternated in moving the ball to the 34 - yard line when Brumfield passed to halfback Hubert for the game's first score. Fullback Phillip Farr kicked the extra point and it was 7-0.

The Indians were still in the game and Jack Webb came in at quarterback to fill the air with passes but clutch aerials fell incomplete and the end of the third period found the Statesmen in Tribe territory on the 44.

Hill guided Delta to the four - yard line with steady gains and found halfback Gale Davis open at the goal line on third down for six - pointer No. 2. Fullback Ira Coates' kick was no good and Delta led, 13-0, with 11:52 left in the game.

Northeast took the following kickoff, bogged down and had to punt to Delta's 24 - yard line. Guard Dan Keith and tackle Luther French held the Statesmen at bay and the Tribe gained control again at their own 32.

Ken Thornhill lost 13 yards before Vincent faded back to pass on second down. The pass was overthrown and Coates picked off the ball for Delta at the Indian 35, got the only block he needed and went all the way for the score that broke Northeast's back. Davis ran for a two - point conversion and a 21-0 lead.

After Webb came back in to hit two out of five passes, missing on a fourth down toss, Delta took over and began their final scoring drive. After Greenlee gained 10 yards and soph halfback Dewey Bostick picked up six, Greenlee tossed a touchdown pass to Davis, covering 27 yards with only 20 seconds left in the game. Davis' run for the extra point was no good.

Delta is now 5-2 for the season while Northeast dropped to 2-6.

Jaguars Shade Tennessee Foe

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (Special) — Robert "Speedy" Williams' first quarter PAT grew to king-sized proportions here Saturday afternoon as Southern University's Jaguars staved off winhungry Tennessee A & I to win 7-6.

The Jaguars' Robert Sims scored the TD from two-yards out with 4:50 showing on the clock. It had been set up by quarterback Cyrus Lancaster who picked up a fourth down first down with an 18-yard gallop from the Tennessee 39 - yard line in the first quarter.

Tennessee knocked timidly on the door for three full quarters before quarterback Eugene Stewart hit end Ed Francois with a 40 - yard pass in the fourth quarter to make the score 7-6.

The richest running of the Pimlico Futurity was in 1958. The gross purse was $168,020 and the net to the winner (Intentionally) was $119,571.

SLATED TO RETIRE on November 30 is C. Bert Braun, clerk of the Monroe city court, who has served in that capacity since April 1 of 1931. (Staff photo by Ben L. Bradford, Jr.)

AFTER 29 YEARS

City Court Clerk Plans Retirement

C. Bert Braun, clerk of the Monroe City Court, for more than 29 years, will retire November 30, Judge W. M. Harper has announced.

Braun lacks only five months of completing 30 years in the position which is responsible for keeping the record of the proceedings of the municipal court.

He will be succedeed by Miss Barbara Rhone, who for the past several years has been deputy clerk. Mrs. Margaret Foulks Woodruff, presently secretary to the chief of the Monroe police department, will become deputy clerk of court.

A resident of Monroe since August of 1917, Braun has been active in many of the civic movements, particularly the American Legion and Rotary Club of Monroe. He has served the local post of the Legion as adjutant since 1933, and at one time was commander.

In the Rotary club, he has served as secretary since 1954.

Coming to Monroe from Illinois originally to work with the Missouri Pacific Railroad, Braun first served as secretary to the then superintendnet, A. R. Taylor. At that time Judge Harper was also employed by the railroad company, and the two formed a friendship which has continued to the present.

After five months of service in Monroe with the railroad, he was enlisted in the Air Service, then a branch of the Signal Corps, an served at Kelly Field and later in Omaha, Neb.

Returning to Monroe, he rejoined the Missouri Pacific company, but within a year went to work as a salesman for a typewriter company. On April 1, 1931, he joined the City of Monroe as clerk of the city court.

During World War II, Braun served as chairman of the Selective Service Board, holding the position for two and one - half years. He served for five more years on the board as a member.

He and his wife live at 1305 Emerson street. They have one daughter, Ann, now Mrs. Ralph Cowan Jr., of Florida.

As for the future, Braun said he would "just rest, I'll go see my daughter and her family and then come home and rest for a good while." He has no definite plans, but will keep up his work in both the Legion and Rotary.

As adjutant in the Legion, Braun has worked closely with the Pelican Boys' State movement, which he calls "my pet hobby of the Legion projects."

In announcing the coming retirement of Braun, Judge Harper commended him for the "unselfish work which he has performed in his position" and said he, as a judge and as a member of the city government, would "miss Mr. Braun in the future."

"However," the judge continued, "I am happy that he will be able to enjoy his retirement, which he deserves. He has in his capacity as clerk of the city court helped tremendously in carrying the burden of the court which has increased at least five times in volume during the past 30 years."

Rummel Still In Good Spirits

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Officials at Our Lady of the Lake Hospital said Saturday Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel of New Orleans continues to make satisfactory progress and termed his "spirits and morale" good.

State FFA Meet November 11-12 In Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — The Future Homemakers of America will hold their 27th annual state meeting in Alexandria Friday and Saturday, November 11-12, it was announced by Miss Lela Tomlinson, director of home economics, State Department of Education.

FHA membership includes students enrolled in home economics courses in Louisiana high schools. Miss Linda Rhodes of East Baton Rouge is state president of the group.

State Superintendent of Public Education Shelby M. Jackson will be the featured speaker at the first general sesssion of the conference on Friday.

Other speakers include Reverend A. O. Sigur, chaplain for Catholic students at University of Southwestern Louisiana. He will speak on the topic "Strengthening Spiritual aVlues in the Home."

The two - day meeting will be devoted to discussions on ways "To Encourage Better Citizenship by Gaining a Keener Appreciation of our American Heritage," "To Achieve Better Living by Strengthening Spiritual Value in the Home," "To Understand the Importance of Worthy Home Membership in Developing Better Citizens," and, "To Develop Our Potential Abilities." The general theme of the conference will be "Home, the Heart of Better Living."

Baptists Plan To Dedicate New Building

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — Highlight of the three - day meeting of the Louisiana Baptist Convention at First Baptist Church, Pineville, Nov. 8-10, will be the dedication of the new Louisiana Baptist building.

Located on MacArthur drive in Alexandria, the $1,350,000 building will be dedicated at 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 9, with Dr. Troy V. Wheeler, building committee chairman, presiding.

The building, of concrete and manufactured black granite construction, was completed in October to house LBC executive offices and department headquarters and the Baptist Bookstore.

The dedication address will be made by Dr. Ramsey Pollard, of Memphis, Tenn., president of the Southern Baptist Convention, and Dr. Wheeler will make the presentation for the committee composed of Dr. R. Houston Smith of Pineville; Dr. J. Norris Palmer of Baton Rouge; H. C. Abbott of Shreveport, LBC president; Dr. J. D. Grey of New Orleas; Dr. Jaroy Weber of Alexandria, and James W. Middleton of Shreveport.

Explaining the building project and programs will be Abbott, Dr. Robert L. Lee, LBC executive secretary, and Dr. James L. Sullivan, executive secretary of the Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn.

Carl L. Olschner and Associates of New Orleans planned the building which was constructed by S. E. Florsheim Company of Shreveport.

LSU Faculty Group Asks For No. 1 Defeat

BATON ROUGE (Special) — A faculty organization at Louisiana State University, the American Association of University Professors, today joined other LSU groups in calling for defeat off proposed amendment No. 1 which would change the structure of the university's Board of Supervisors.

Dr. Paul Y. Burns, president of the LSU chapter of the AAUP, said the resolution was unanimously approved by the executive council of the chapter. Professor Burns is director of the School of Forestry.

The AAUP action, together with similar action by the LSU Board of Supervisors, Alumni Federation and student newspapers at both Baton Rouge and New Orleans campuses, presents a united front against adoption of the amendment.

Techmen Topple Lions In Last Period, 14-10

Lestage Sprints 86 Yards For TD

By BOB ANDERSON
World Sports Editor

RUSTON, La. — Fleet Jack Lestage swept 86 yards down the sidelines with slightly over two minutes to go to give Louisiana Tech a 17-11 victory over previously-unbeaten Southeastern in a spine-tingling battle of small college grid giants here Saturday afternoon.

Lestage's dramatic dash on a punt return with 2:06 remaining brought a 7,500 to their feet. Southeastern crashing down to defeat for the first time in nine games and left Louisiana Tech primed to finish in at least a tie for the Gulf States Conference championship. Tech, once-beaten in the GSC and now 6-2 overall, is the only Northeast remaining on league schedule.

The first half of Tech's home coming game was dominated by the Techmen and the last half, until Lestage cut loose on his three trips, was commanded by Southeastern.

Southeastern had taken the lead [illegible] when Bill Laidner blocked two yard out kick to the SLC 24 and Tech was in business.

The extra point by Jerry Hayes made the score 14-10.

Hayes gained four and then [illegible] for the touchdown. Tech [illegible] yard and [illegible] Lions moved 33 [illegible] Tech 45 before Harris punted.

Southeastern's Ken Dyer returned the kickoff 15 yards to the 35 and the Lions went to work for touchdown of their own. They didn't make it but gave the Bulldogs [illegible] moments. [illegible] passes but none [illegible] and the Lions moved to [illegible] on the ground. Harris [illegible] around end, threw [illegible] the same back, then [illegible] no gain. With [illegible] at the Tech 45, Harris tried [illegible] passes and both missed. With a 2nd and 10 at the 34 and Tech rapidly running out, he [illegible] from under [illegible] Rock and [illegible] He streaked [illegible] on the 25.

Harris [illegible] a pass [illegible] Southeastern took the second [illegible] Dyer picked up one first down [illegible] Jack Howard fumbled at [illegible] and Gilmes recovered [illegible] Andy Malone [illegible] Harris picked [illegible] yards. Wade Dervaux [illegible] and [illegible] traveled [illegible] Wade [illegible] pushed [illegible] and [illegible] seconds on the 11. [illegible] picked the pass. Derrick [illegible] South seven. With fourth [illegible] at the seven, Harris [illegible] to South, going right, [illegible] back and went left [illegible] end zone. Schwab's kick [illegible] with 7:13 left in the [illegible]

The Techmen got a 25-yard [illegible] Mallory return by Saulsbery to [illegible] and, with an 11-yard [illegible] to Casey pass and [illegible] Hayes' 2-yard [illegible] run by Saughter [illegible] the key plays, moved to the [illegible] yards to Rudd. Joined five to the 15 but [illegible] yards for no gain and then Alexander's kick Saughter got nothing and then [illegible] crushed badly when he tried [illegible] The loss was no good [illegible] and the score of Alexander came in to kick [illegible]

The boot was into a strong [illegible] and almost was blown off [illegible] But it got inside the [illegible] bar and Tech led, 10-7, [illegible] 7:13 left in the period.

A [illegible] kickoff return by Derrick, who dropped the ball at the [illegible] picked it up and raced to the [illegible] of the Lions on their [illegible] to take the ensuing scrimmage drive. A 17-yard [illegible] and last time from Harris to Willie Rhodes [illegible] to the only air yards on the [illegible] scored it. The rest of it was on [illegible] with Rhodes. Harris [illegible] defense hamstrung Ladner and Morris lugging the [illegible] in the first half. Ladner sped through right [illegible] Malone, Don Tippit [illegible] from two yards out for the [illegible] touchdown. Schwab kicked the PAT and it was 14-10 with 11:11 [illegible] but the Lions [illegible] moving in the [illegible]

[illegible] Dave [illegible] of the season [illegible] had been played a nip [illegible] on defense as did Harris, [illegible] and Sam Gourrier. Both teams battled on even [illegible] first period. Tech [illegible] and threw early in the [illegible] to the SLC 37. [illegible] Saughter to [illegible] and a 20-yard [illegible] to Paul Hynes were [illegible] plays in the drive, which began on the Tech 27.

But with second and 10 on the Lion 37, Harris intercepted a Saughter pass at the 16 and returned to the 29 to temporarily deny the Techmen.

Late in the period, Southeastern got its first threat going. Starting at the 20 after Tech's Wayne Parker punted into the end zone, the Lions moved all the way to the 18 before the stanza ended. Bill Ladner's 11-yard pickup and a 27-yard pass from Harris to Charles Berg powered the push. The pass carried the ball to the Tech 32 and runs moved it to the 18 before the horn sounded.

Herschel Vinyard barreled in to bat down a Harris pass on the first play of the second period, the nHarris ran for four to make it fourth and four at the 14. Harris 'fourth-down pass into the end zone was far over the head of end Charles Berg, the intended receiver.

Tech's scoring drive began with a play that could have turned out disasterously for the Bulldogs. Dave Williamson tried to catch a bouncing punt by B. L. Fairchild on the 10 and the ball skipped by him. He just managed to cover it on the 17 before the green-clad Lions roared in.

Rudd went for three, then Saughter hit Casey with a six-yarder. Parker gained two for the first and then Mickey Lestage cut loose on his three to Casey again for 18 yards. Jack Lestage gained one and Saughter missed on a pass.

Then the Tech quarterback lobbed out to Lestage in the flat and the ace back legged it 29 yards to the SLC 24 and Tech was in business.

Hayes gained four and then [illegible] for a record-of-ten yards, then [illegible] yard and [illegible]

With second and six at the six, Saughter went wide left. He was [illegible] at the line of scrimmage and tossed back to Hynes. Paul raced wider and just made it into the corner of the end zone. Bill Alexander kicked the point and Tech led, 7-0, with 2:54 left in the half.

Southeastern's Dyer returned the kickoff 15 yards to the 35 and the Lions went to work for touchdown of their own. They didn't make it but gave the Bulldogs [illegible] moments. [illegible] passes but none [illegible] and the Lions moved to [illegible] on the ground. Harris [illegible] around end, threw [illegible] the same back, then [illegible] no gain. AUBURN WINS, 27-12

Ed Dyas Breaks Field Goal Mark

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — Fullback Ed Dyas broke one national field goal record and tied another Saturday to pace the Auburn Tigers to a 27-12 victory over Mississippi State.

A record homecoming crowd of 38,000 saw Dyas break the record of seven field goals in one season with his eighth, a 22-yarder, in the first period and then, with the ninth from 32 yards out in the second period, tie the modern career record of 13.

Dyas, a straight-A pre-med senior from Mobile, Ala., had a sensational day. He scored two touchdowns and three conversions for an afternoon total of 21 points and barely missed what would have been his third field goal of the game and 10th of the season when the ball hit the crossbar and fell back near the close of the first half.

Little Don Machen, 145-pound right halfback from Sylacauga, Ala., took a wobbly lateral from quarterback Bryant Harvard and raced 10 yards for a touchdown in the third period. That touchdown was set up by Harvard's sixth pass interception of the year — tying the Auburn steal record and making it 13 interceptions for the Tigers this year, best in the nation.

Mississippi State's first score came on the second play of the fourth period after right end Johnny Baker covered quarterback Bobby Hunt's fumble on the Auburn 11. Two plays later, injured first string quarterback Charlie Furlow to Baker was batted down.

Late in the fourth period, the Maroons marched to the Auburn 27 where Furlow passed to halfback Jerry Wade for six-points. Furlow's pass attempt for two points failed.

Maroon sophomore sensation Sammy Dantone from Greenwood, Miss., tried two field goals. But the first was blocked by Auburn fullback John McGeever. Dantone's second try from 29 yards was short.

When Dyas wasn't kicking or running, it was an exciting game of long runs and gritty defense inside the 30-yard lines. Maroon left half Bobby Bethune, took a handoff on the kickoff after Dyas' first field goal and raced 75 yards to the Tiger 23. Auburn's Harvard fumbled the ball surrounded by tacklers but picked it up and raced 54 yards in the second quarter to set up Dyas's second three-pointer.

'Chip Fracture' Keeps Donnell At St. Francis

Ralph Donnell, 17-year-old Crowville High School football player suffered a "chipped fracture" of the neck in a game at Mangham Friday night, but attendants at St. Francis Hospital here yesterday said "he will be all right."

Donnell, a 119-pound back who was injured as he made a 73-yard run that set up a Crowville touchdown, will be in traction for a few days, and then will wear a brace for a while.

The youth is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Donnell of near Crowville on Winnsboro route 4. The young athlete's father is a farmer-carpenter.

Bill Masked Marvel With Triple Main

The Masked Marvel puts some new life into a triple main event wrestling show to be presented by Promoter Ralph Fox at B. and B. Arena tomorrow night.

"The Marvel is showing for us for the first time, and we expect a better wrestling show than usual," Promoter Fox said last night. "In fact, we think we have three fine bouts, every one of main event magnitude, and that's the reason for the triple billing."

Ray Andrews, Al Massey, Bob Morrow, Jim LaRock and Tony Jiminez all appear on the same card.

The pairings for hour time limit matches are:

Andrews vs. Masked Marvel
Massey vs. Morrow
LaRock vs. Jiminez

The Massey-Morrow battle is a challenge affair with Morrow getting a return chance to square accounts for a recent loss in which he claimed he was not fairly beaten.

LaRock, the former Olympic athlete and already a big favorite with Twin Cities fans, gives Jiminez, one of the touring Mexican brothers, a chance to do what no one has been able to do. LaRock claims he has never been beaten in a dual match.

Bobby Jones, former amateur golf champion, was the first winner of the James E. Sullivan Memorial Trophy in 1950.

Hogs Lead Loop On Cissell Kick

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)— Arkansas a victory over pre-Mickey Cissell's source for the [illegible] Arkansas the Southwest Conference [illegible] Arkansas [illegible] Saturday with a 26-foot Texas 2423 a 30-yard field goal in the last 2:08 the last 19 seconds earlier this seconds to give the Razorback season a 3-0 victory over Rice.

Cissell's catch kick was the second in a month which gave

Saturday's kick knocked Rice from the conference lead, giving them their first loss in four league games. The Owls entered the game ranked 10th nationally but were outplayed by the underdog Razorbacks throughout.

The all-important kick which cleared the uprights by six yards was set up by a 43-yard pass play from quarterback Billy Moore to end Jimmy Collier which put the ball on the Rice 13 with less than two minutes left in the game.

Moore faded to pass on his own 45, then started to run before spotting Collier open along the sideline. Moore lopped in the face of two big Rice linemen and fired to Collier who caught the ball with one hand on the 33, outmaneuvered two of the Rice secondary and broke loose before he was brought down from behind on the 13.

Fullback Billy Joe Moody plunged to the 10 and George McKinney replaced the sophomore Moore at quarterback. McKinney went through the right side of the line to the nine to put the ball in position for the field goal.

McKinney then held and Cissell kicked his line drive to give Arkansas a 3-1 record in the Southwest Conference and a 6-2 season mark.

Terps Tumble To Penn State In 28-9 Game

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—Jon Kerr scored twice Saturday as Penn State stopped Maryland's multiple offense for a 28-9 football victory.

Kerr sparked the [illegible] yards for the first score to cap a 69-yard march after the opening kickoff. Blocking by Sam Sobszak and Bob Mitinger was a key factor in the drive.

Then in the second quarter, the Nittany Lions all but sealed away their fourth victory against three defeats with a 65-yard punt return by Don Jonas for a TD.

Jonas waited to pick up the bouncing ball until Maryland defenders had committed themselves, then dashed down the sideline with a few good blocks to clear his path.

A two-point conversion run by Kerr made the halftime score 15-3. Vince Scott kicked a 30-yard field goal for Maryland in the opening quarter. The team's record is now 4-4.

Kerr scored on a one-yard line plunge in the third quarter, and Buddy Torris scored later in the period on a five-yard run for the final State score. It was set up when Dick Pae recovered a fumble on the Maryland 23.

Maryland also scored in the third period when Joe Mona recovered a Nittany Lion fumble in the end zone.

Oak Grove 'B' Team Defeats Sterlington 11

OAK GROVE, La. (Special) — Mike Gamaldi passed to Sam Smith for a touchdown and extra point in the last period to give Oak Grove "B" team a 7-6 victory over Sterlington here Saturday night.

The touchdown [illegible] yard [illegible] recovered a [illegible] yard [illegible] by Larry Sena for the Sterlington TD in the second quarter.

The game was the second of the year between the two [illegible] Sterlington won the first game, 14-7.

Ends Kent Davis and Mickey Turner, tackles Jerry Hazza and Dennis Sanford, guards Ronnie Yale and Jame Earl Sykes, center Kiley Thames, Gamaldi, David Kennedy, Smith, Mickey Broadway, Joe Pat Phillips, playing his last game since a hunting accident, and Zane Tubbs were outstanding for the winners.

Sophomore Tubbs, a regular center, played in the game at the fullback position. Seven of the Oak Grove starters were freshmen or below.

Oak Grove's freshmen play Lake Providence here at 7:00 Monday night.

GSC Officials To Meet Today

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—Gulf States Conference basketball officials will meet here Sunday to discuss rule changes and officiating for the 1960-61 cage season.

Hollis (Rommie) Wilson, associate professor at Southeastern Louisiana College, is the head sports official for the conference, comprised of six Louisiana schools.

Boston College Taps Villanova

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP)—Junior quarterback George Van Cott passed for one touchdown and helped set up another Saturday as Boston College defeated Villanova 20-6 for their first football victory of the season.

Utah, 27-6

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP)—Utah's Redskins kept alive their slim chance for a share of the Skyline Conference football title Saturday as quarterback Terry Nofsinger threw two touchdown strikes in a 27-6 triumph over Colorado State University.

The Utes now have won three of four Skyline games.

Underdog Raiders Turn Back Tulane Wave, 35-21

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Injured quarterback Glen Amerson came off the bench to direct Texas Tech to three touchdown drives as the underdog Red Raiders walloped Tulane, 35-21, here Saturday afternoon in an intersectional battle.

Amerson threw touchdown passes of 44 yards, 8 yards and 16 yards to ends Don Waygood and Jerry Elbert and halfback Dickie Polson. Fullback Coolidge Hunt ran from five yards and All-America center E.J. Holub raced 23 yards with a pass interception for the final touchdown.

Halfback Tommy Mason, making a strong bid for All America honors, scored all three of the Green Wave's touchdowns. He twice went three yards to score and took an 18-yard pass from quarterback Phil Nugent and raced 12 yards for the final tally.

The Raiders electrified the crowd by scoring on their first play from scrimmage. Amerson tossed 29 yards to Waygood, who outran Tulane's defenses 15 yards with only 3:17 gone.

That 7-0 lead didn't stand up as the teams traded touchdowns this sunny, chilly afternoon. The Wave marched 73 yards to tie the score early in the second quarter, but Tech went ahead, 13-7, late in the quarter for a halftime lead.

The Greenies marched 55 yards in the third quarter and Ted Miller's placement gave Tulane a 14-13 lead. Miller kicked three extra points, while end Bill Roach blocked one of four conversion attempts.

After Tulane took the lead, the Raiders moved quickly to regain it. They marched 50 yards in three plays, with Elbert taking Amerson's pass in the end zone. This time Hunt plunged for two points for a 21-14 lead.

Waygood, the outstanding lineman on the field, intercepted a pass by Nugent to set in motion Tech's fourth touchdown. This time Hunt cracked tackle for five yards.

Tulane scored with 2:06 left to cap a 64-yard drive, Mason taking Nugent's pass on the 12 and sprinting over to cut the margin to 28-21.

After Tulane held, Turner punted. With 11 seconds left, Nugent passed, but Holub intercepted at the 28 and ran down the sidelines for the final score with two seconds remaining.

Oregon Defeats Stanford, 27-6

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Quarterback Dave Grosz dazzled Stanford with his passing and running and led Oregon to a 27-6 non-conference football victory Saturday.

Grosz threw two touchdown passes and set up another score with his running and passing. A fourth Oregon score was practically a gift as a Stanford pitchout went wild on the Stanford 10, Oregon recovering and plunging to a touchdown in three plays.

TOLEDO BEND DAM IS BACKED BY MEN AND ORGANIZATIONS WHO KNOW!

GOV. DAVIS URGES SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT 8:

". . . this amendment will provide a boost for the tourist and industrial development of an area of Louisiana which has recently suffered economic reversals. The huge, man-made lake which would be created as a result of the dam would provide a ready source of water for industrial and residential consumption and for irrigation as well as a first-class recreational area for tourists and natives alike. Passage of this amendment will help us realize that potential."

MAYOR DELESSEPS MORRISON:

"The proposed Toledo Bend Development is a real 'must.' It will give a much needed boost to West Central Louisiana and will pump millions into the economy of the entire state. I hope the citizens of Louisiana will give their enthusiastic support to Amendment 8."

W. M. RAINACH:

"Toledo Bend will give Louisiana and Texas an inland man-made lake unsurpassed in size, recreational opportunities and water resources for irrigation and industrial development."

W. M. "BILL" DODD:

"I was reared in the western section of Louisiana and I know from experience that this section would benefit greatly from the Toledo Bend project. I myself expect to vote for this proposed amendment."

JAMES A. NOE:

"I take this opportunity to whole-heartedly endorse the amendment and ask all of our friends and supporters to work for its passage."

Point-Hungry LSU Stampedes S. Carolina 35-6

Delta State Rallies In 2nd Half To Top Tribe 27-0

Amedee Ramrods Sizzling Offense

By JACK GATES
Executive Editor of the News-Star—World

BATON ROUGE — Sophomore Lynn Amedee, 165-pounds of dynamite who was promoted to the starting quarterback post the past week, threw three touchdown passes and set up a fourth Saturday night as Louisiana State University point- hungry all season, swept through South Carolina 35-6.

An estimated 50,000 homecoming fans, braving cold wind and a pre-game rain, cheered gleefully as the Tigers scored more points in one game than they had scored in five previous ones.

The scoring spree started early in the second period after LSU had spotted South Carolina six points. It ended with 21 seconds left in the game when quarterback Darryl Jenkins went 15 yards for the fifth touchdown.

On the third play of the second period, Amedee who showed the poise of a veteran and the dash of a gambler, hit halfback Wendell Harris with a 33-yard scoring pass to tie it up. Then Harris kicked the extra point to put the Tigers ahead to stay.

Then a short time later, Bo Campbell, a sophomore halfback from Shreveport, crashed over from the one for the second score after a 20-yard run by Amedee and a 23-yard pass from Amedee to Bobby Flurry, a sophomore end from Homer, had set up the touchdown play.

STATISTICS	SC	LSU
First downs	8	15
Rushing yardage	125	219
Passing yardage	6	140
Pasess	1-7	8-23
Passes intercept by	3	2
Punts	10-39.2	7-36.9
Fumbles lost	2	1
Yards penalized	7-71	7-85

Six minutes deep in the second half Amedee hit big Earl Gros with a 26-yard pass for the third touchdown. Gros took the ball on the South Carolina 10 and knocked down two tacklers on the way to the end zone. Harris, who had a perfect night on conversion, made it 21 to 6.

The fourth tally came midway of the fourth period, when Amedee again hit Flurry with a 23-yarder. Flurry, standing just in the end zone, grabbed the ball away from two defenders.

The final score came after South Carolina quarterback Tommy Pilcher fumbled on his own 21 and center Bo Strange recovered for the Tigers. Three plays later, Jenkins fading back to pass, decided to run instead and swept wide and into the end zone for the touchdown.

It was a heartening effort for the Tigers who had lost three games and tied one while giving up only two touchdowns.

However, in the first period, it appeared they might be in for another tough night.

After failing to move on the opening kickoff, sophomore halfback Jerry Stovall of West Monroe, the top punter in the nation, let one roll off the side of his boot and kicked out of bounds on the Tiger 31. However, South Carolina couldn't move and punted to the Tigers. On the second play of the series, quarterback Jimmy Field threw a pitchout to high and center Jake Bodkin fell on it for South Carolina at the 14. Three plays later, Dickie Day, a dancing fullback, went wide, then cut back and dashed 10 yards for the touchdown. However, South Carolina, trying for two points, failed.

In the third period, with the score 21 to 6, halfback Billy Grambell took a Tiger punt on his own 15, and dashed through the LSU players as if they were standing still and scored. However, the touchdown was nulified when officials ruled both teams off sides. That was the only time the Gamecocks actually threatened in the second half as the Tigers came to life.

In all, Amedee, who was by far LSU's most dashing Tiger, completed eight of 21 passes for a total of 140 yards, and picked up another 62 rushing to lead Tiger backs in this department. Three of his passes were intercepted, however.

Charles Cranford, a 20 year - old sophomore from Minden, who has All - American potential at fullback before he finishes, was second high ground gainer with 45 yards.

One of the interceptions on Amedee came at the South Carolina 10 and stopped a Tiger drive.

Stovall, who showed less tonight than in any game this season almost got away for one touchdown. He intercepted a South Caroliina pass on the LSU 30 and returned it to the South Carolina 30. With one defender out of the way, he would have gone all the way.

The first Tiger scoring drive started on LSU's 42. Harris went 17 yards to set it in motion. Then Amedee, who was promoted to first string quarterback for his brilliant work in giving the Tigers a 6-6 tie with Mississippi last week, threw a 10-yard pass. Then he went another from before tossing to Harris, who caught the ball on the sideline at the 20, danced away from two tacklers, cut across the field and went over standing up.

The second scoring drive started at the LSU 48. On one play in the series, Amedee went 20 yards, then tossed a 23-yard pass to Flurry.

A 20-yard dash by Cranford from his own 46 set the stage for the third LSU score, while a 22-yard dash by the Minden speedster set the stage for the fourth score. This one, however, saw Amedee hit on another 16-yard pass.

Coach Paul Dietzel, who had watched his team give up only 35 points, while scoring 30, in winning one, losing four and tieing one before Saturday night, was happy with the victory.

"Losing will never replace winning," he said. "It sure was nice to win a football game."

He praised Amedee and said, "He did another fine job."

Dietzel also praised the work of Strange and disclosed that the senior had set up all the previous night with his wife who is ill in a hospital. He also termed the Go Team, which Amedee also quarterbacked last night, and which accounted for two of the LSU touchdowns and set up at least another, as the "Explosive Team."

This team has scored more and moved the ball better than all of our other Go Teams at LSU," Dietzel said. This year's team is made up of sophomores.

Fullback Dick Day, a sophomore, walked off with rushing honors on the South Carolina team, picking up 60 yards in 13 carries, while Dug Hatcher, a kicking specialist, provided additional entertainment. Before each punt he removed his right shoe and kicked barefooted. He ended up with a 39.2 average for the night, while Stovall dropped, booting seven for an average of 36.9.

In all LSU picked up 15 first downs to eight for South Carolina and gained 219 yards rushing to 125 for the Carolinans.

Texas Knocks Baylor Out Of SWC Chase

WACO, Tex. (UPI)—James Saxton set up two Texas touchdowns on long gainers Saturday as the Longhorns virtually knocked the Baylor Bears out of the Southwest Conference title race with a 12 to 7 defeat before 50,000 fans.

The 165-pound speedster outraced Bear defenders on a 59-yard end run and a 38-yard pass reception. The gains were preludes to short scoring plunges by Davis Russell and John Allen Cook.

Baylor's vaunted passing attack finally clicked with four minutes left to play as Ronnie Stanley passed 22 yards to Ronnie Bull for the only Baylor score.

The Texas victory left both teams with 3-2 conference records and put them in fourth place.

Saxton also intercepted a Baylor pass to halt a first half threat. The Palestine, Tex. flash gained 88 yards on the ground in seven carries.

A hard-charging Longhorn line held Bear passers to 16 completions in 38 attepts.

Mike Cotten passed 38 yards into a stiff 23-mile north wind to Saxton on the Baylor three yard line to set up the first touchdown of the game. An offside penalty against the Bears put the ball on the two, and halfback David Russell raced around right end for the score. Dan Petty's extra point kick was wide.

The Bears got their passing attack going in the closing minutes of the first half as Ronnie Stanley threw three strikes to move the ball 45 yards from the Baylor 25 to the Texas 30. But Saxton ended the march with his interception.

Saxton slashed 59 yards around left end to set up the second Texas touchdown. Only a shoestring tackle by Ronnie Goodwin on the Baylor 12 kept the Longhorn's speedster from stretching the longest run of the game into the score, which came five plays later on a two-yard plunge by fullback John Allen Cook. A pass attempt for two extra points failed.

Billy Cannon Has Nothing On Lestage

By BOB ANDERSON

RUSTON, La. — Jack Lestage's 86-yard punt return against Southeastern Saturday afternoon may not have been as great a run as the famous Billy Cannon dash against Ole Miss last fall but you'd have a hard time convincing Louisiana Tech's old grads — and Southeastern.

The run, a fitting climax to Tech's homecoming festivities, snatched victory from a Southeastern team that appeared to have the bruising Gulf States Conference contest won.

Riding an eight - game winning streak that began on the last tilt of 1959, Southeastern had gone ahead, 14-10, nine minutes and five seconds before the run and was moving steadily again before the drive stalled and Elbert Harris kicked to Lestage.

Unlike Cannon on his 89-yard punt return against Ole Miss, Lestage got great blocking on his sprint. Joe Hinton made the key block, a spilling of Harris at about the 35, and Andy Malone contributed another. After that, the 182-pound Lestage, a junior halfback from Lake Charles, was home free.

Team statistics reflected the closeness of the battle. Tech had 16 first downs and SLC 14. Southeastern's mercury - footed backs ran up 221 yards on the ground to Tech's 187.

Tech, with accurate Mickey Slaughter throwing, had the edge in passing with five completions in nine tosses for 85 yards. SLC's Harris could complete only two of 10 throws for 44 yards.

The Techmen relied on Slaughter's dead - eye passing, Paul Hynes' sprints around end and Max Rudd's crunching smashes up the middle. Southeastern moved on Harris' quick trips around the flanks and Bill Ladner's thrusts off tackle.

Rudd's 17 blasts into the line gave him 76 yards for the afternoon, tops for both teams on the ground. Hynes gained 43 yards on seven carries and Slaughter completed five of eight passes, three to Monroe's Tom Causey.

Harris was the big gainer for Southeastern. He got 63 yards on the ground in 14 trips and did all of the Lions' passing. Ladner gained 52 yards rushing in 12 tries.

Amazingly enough, considering the importance of the game and the spirited play, each team was penalized only once, Tech for offsides and Southeastern for too much time.

Southeastern, its hopes for an unbeaten season ruined, has two more games remaining. The Lions play McNeese at Hammond next week and close out against last - place Northwestern at Natchitoches Nov. 19.

Tech takes on a toughie in once - beaten Mississippi Southern, still smarting from last year's 16-0 upset, at Hattiesburg next Saturday and closes out Nov. 19 against Northeast at Monroe.

Demons Bow To McNeese Passes, 20-7

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Quarterback Don Breaux fired two touchdown passes Saturday night to lead McNeese to its fifth straight win 20-7 over Northwestern in a Gulf States Conference game.

The victory kept McNeese in the running for the GSC title with a 2-1 record and a 6-2 overall mark. NSC has lost all three games in the GSC and stands 3-4 overall.

Breaux tossed scoring acrials of 34 yards to halfback Lloyd Guillot and 15 yards to end Tom Sestak to bring McNeese from a 7-6 halftime deficit. Breaux also teamed up with Sestak for a two-point conversion after the last TD.

Quarterback Nolan Viator had scored the first McNeese touchdown with a 61-yard burst in the second quarter.

The NSC score came in the second quarter on a 49-yard pass from quarterback Vic Stelley to halfback Don Dean. Nick Norcia kicked the extra point.

Fifth Straight For Nicholls

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Nicholls rolled to its fifth straight shutout victory Saturday night by blanking hapless Fortier 25-0 as Ronald Chapoton scored two touchdowns.

Nicholls now has a 5-2 record. Fortier has won once and has been shut out in its other six outings.

Chapoton scored on runs of two and 70 yards as he picked up 105 yards rushing in the first half. Nolan LeBlanc, who piled up 102 yards on the ground in the first half, scored the third TD on a 25-yard gallop.

Nicholls subs played most of the second half. Claude Dupas tallied on a four-yard run in the third quarter for the final tally. Roger Lemoine converted for Nicholls' only PAT.

The first indoor football game in history was played Dec. 23, 1902, in the old Madison Square Garden. Syracuse, with Glenn (Pop) Warner at guard, defeated the Philadelphia Nationals, 6-0, before 3,000 fans.

Winners Score Three In Fourth

By JERRY HARKNESS
Staff Sports Writer

CLEVELAND, Miss. — Delta State came back fired-up after halftime here last night, took to the air for a quick third-period touchdown, then opened up to get three more in the final quarter and nail down a 27 - 0 homecoming victory over Northeast's hard-hitting Indians.

It was the second straight win for the Statesmen over Northeast. They won last year's battle, 14-13. The defending Christmas Bowl champs played all offense in the second half after staging a dull battle for short yardage in the first two periods.

STATISTICS	Northeast	Delta
First Downs	5	10
Yards Rushing	39	83
Yards Passing	43	162
Passes	17-5	15-10
Passes Int. By	1	1
Fumbles Lost	1	0
Punting	11-31.7	9-31.1

The qick third quarter score kept Northeast stunned for most of the last half and penalties kept the Indians away from the Delta goal line.

The first half of the game was a hard - nosed defensive battle with neither team able to get a serious drive going. Play was even on both sides with massive lines digging in. Both teams punted seven times in the first two periods.

Delta State took the opening kickoff and could move the ball only nine yards before kicking to the Northeast 10. The Indians began moving the ball but lost five yards on a penalty and also had to punt.

Defensive specialist Gerry Marchbank, Larry Rambin and Delmas Thorne plugged up all holes in the Indian line and the first half began shaping up as a punting duel between Northeast's fine kicker, John Kelly, and Delta quarterbacks Albert Hill and Frank Greenlee.

Delta State drove to the Indian 29 - yard line for their deepest penetration of the first half. The Indians missed two touchdowns by the length of a fingertip midway of the second quarter when two passes from quarterback Jack Webb missed target Ferdy Curce, all alone in Statesmen territory, by only inches.

With Pete Vincent at the quarterback slot for Northeast, Delta's Albert Hill intercepted a pass at the Statesman 43 - yard line to end the Indians' hopes in the fading minutes of the first half.

Delta got a break at the start of the third period that might have been the game's turning point if the defensive battle had continued.

With Northeast beginning to move after taking the second half kickoff, Statesman guard Ralph Sanders recovered a fumble by Don Wattigny at the Northeast 25 and Delta drove to the Indian one - yard line. But hard - charging end Chhalie Barnes broke through to spill Hill for a loss that momentarily saved the day.

Wattigny punted on first down for Northeast and the Statesmen came marching back from the Tribe 45. James Hubert and quarterback Bob Brumfield alternated in moving the ball to the 34 - yard line when Brumfield passed to halfback Hubert for the game's first score. Fullback Phillip Farr kicked the extra point and it was 7-0.

The Indians were still in the game and Jack Webb came in at quarterback to fill the air with passes but clutch aerials fell incomplete and the end of the third period found the Statesmen in Tribe territory on the 44.

Hill guided Delta to the four - yard line with steady gains and found halfback Gale Davis open at the goal line on third down for six - pointer No. 2. Fullback Ira Coates' kick was no good and Delta led, 13-0, with 11:52 left in the game.

Northeast took the following kickoff, bogged down and had to punt to Delta's 24 - yard line. Guard Dan Keith and tackle Luther French held the Statesmen at bay and the Tribe gained control again at their own 32.

Ken Thornhill lost 13 yards before Vincent faded back to pass on second down. The pass was overthrown and Coates picked off the ball for Delta at the Indian 35, got the only block he needed and went all the way for the score that broke Northeast's back. Davis ran for a two - point conversion and a 21-0 lead.

After Webb came back in to hit two out of five passes, missing on a fourth down toss, Delta took over and began their final scoring drive. After Greenlee gained 10 yards and soph halfback Dewey Bostick picked up six, Greenlee tossed a touchdown pass to Davis, covering 27 yards with only 20 seconds left in the game. Davis' run for the extra point was no good.

Delta is now 5-2 for the season while Northeast dropped to 2-6.

Jaguars Shade Tennessee Foe

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (Special) — Robert "Speedy" Williams' first quarter PAT grew to king-sized proportions here Saturday afternoon as Southern University's Jaguars staved off winhungry Tennessee A & I to win 7-6.

The Jaguars' Robert Sims scored the TD from two-yards out with 4:50 showing on the clock. It had been set up by quarterback Cyrus Lancaster who picked up a fourth down first down with an 18-yard gallop from the Tennessee 39 - yard line in the first quarter.

Tennessee knocked timidly on the door for three full quarters before quarterback Eugene Stewart hit end Ed Francois with a 40 - yard pass in the fourth quarter to make the score 7-6.

The richest running of the Pimlico Futurity was in 1958. The gross purse was $168,020 and the net to the winner (Intentionally) was $119,571.

MINNESOTA EYES NO. 1 SPOT

Gophers Ruin Iowa Hope Of Perfect Season, 27-10

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Minnesota's hard-hitting defense set up three touchdowns and a determined offense drove for another Satrday to beat Iowa, the nation's number one football team, 27-10, and post a claim to top spot.

The Gophers, ranked No. 2 nationally going into the game, now hope to take over the number one spot next week by virtue of the triumph, their first in the last six games against the Hawkeyes and the first defeat this season for Iowa.

Minnesota wasn't a stellar offensive club before a local record crowd of 65,610. It moved into Iowa territory only twice under its own power, but a bad pass from center on a punting situation gave Minnesota possession once only 14 yards from the Iowa goal, a Hawkeye fumble gave the Gophers a scoring chance on the Iowa 19, and still another bobble on the Hawkeye 42 preceded another Gopher touchdown.

Roger Hagberg, a work - horse fullback, drove 42 yards for one Minnesota touchdown after the Iowa fumble by speedster Sammy Harris. Quarterback Joe Salem got another on a one-yard sneak after the Gophers got the Iowa bobble on the 19. And Bill Van Buren's bad pass to punter John Calhoun sailed over his head and 32 yards downfield, to give the Gophers possession and set up a 7-yard scoring run by Bill Munsey.

The cautious Gophers, leading after less than five minutes of play, punted three times on third down. Third-string quarterback Jo Salem directed the only sizable offensive drive covering 81 yards in which his pass to Habberg for 28 yards was the big gainer.

But Salem was taken out and starter Sanford Stephens got credit for the score on a one-yard drive.

Iowa challenged consistenely during the first half, but Tom Moore's 28-yard field goal furnished the only points.

Still, the Hawkeyes came from behind with a 55-yard drive for a touchdown, scored by Joe Williams on a 20 yard trap play, for a 10-7 lead to open the second half.

Then Minnesota's hardhitting took its toll with the pair of fourth quarter touchdowns for victory.

The victory was Minnesota's seventh without defeat this season and put the Gophers in good position to possibly win the Big ten crown for the first time since 1941. The Gophers face Purdue next week and Wisconsin the following week to close the season. Iowa triumphed over both the Boilermakers and Badgers to indicate that Minnesota has a good chance to finish unbeaten.

If they do it would be the first unbeaten champaign since 1941 and the first by a Big Ten team since 1954.

Gambling Gators Snap Up Georgia

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — An air-tight Florida pass defense stiffled the aerial wizardry of Georgia's Francis Tarkenton for three quarters Saturday while fullback Don Goodman led a gambling Gator offense to a 22-14 win.

Quarterback Bobby Dodd Jr., son of the famed Georgia Tech coach, gave Florida its third touchdown and clinched the victory with a two-point conversion run on a fake kick.

The Georgia Bulldogs, virtually helpless in the first three quarters, got its vaunted aerial attack working in the final period, scoring two touchdowns on runs by quarterback Tarkenton and a 26-yard pass from halfback Billy Jackson to halfback Bobby Walden.

But it was Florida's day. The Gators mixed a hard - running ground attack, sparked by Goodman, with a surprising pass defense which kept Tarkenton — the Southeastern Conference's leading passer — in handcuffs until late in the game.

A record 48,622 sun-drenched fans, largest crowd in Gator Bowl history, watched the Gators back up their sixth win of the year against two losses. It was Georgia's third loss after five victories.

The win kept Florida in the running for the SEC title, which Georgia captured last year, and made the Gators a leading candidate for a return trip to the Gator Bowl.

Florida romped to glory the first time it got its hands on the ball, marching 77 yards in 15 plays. Goodman, a 186-pound junior from Miami, charged over from the one for the touchdown to put the Gators ahead with 7:44 left in period.

It was Goodman again moments later, scoring from the one once more, after Georgia end Don Tomberlin fumbled the kickoff and guard Larry Travis pounced on it for Florida on the Bulldog 23. Quarterback Larry Libertore ran for nine yards and passed to end Tom Kelley for 18 yards to move the Gators into scoring range.

Specialist Billy Cash made both kicks good.

Florida's third touchdown came in the third period after a 62-yard march in 10 plays, with Dodd taking it over from the one.

Tarkenton, who completed 14 of 28 passes good for 145 yards, sparked Georgia's first scoring drive with passes good for 21 and 17 yards. The senior quarterback ran it over himself from the four-yard line, shaking off a bevy of Florida tacklers who almost trapped him for a loss.

Tarkenton was shaken up on the play and Walden passed to halfback Fred Brown for two points.

The Bulldogs went 53 yards for their final touchdown, again paced by Tarkenton's passes. Jackson threw a looping pass from his own 23 which Walden grabbed over his shoulder and galloped into the right corner of the end zone.

Yank Cuppers Can Win, 5-0, Says Captain

SYDNEY (AP) — David Freed, non-playing captain of the U.S. Davis Cup team, said Saturday he was confident the Americans not only would win back the trophy but they would beat the Australians 5-0.

"I do not think we will have any trouble carrying off the cup," the new captain, successor to Perry Jones, told newsmen upon the team's arrival at the Sydney airport.

"You can say I am prejudiced if you like, but I know how good these boys really are. We will win 5-0."

Accompanying Freed were Bernard (Tut) Bartzen of Dallas, Barry McKay of Dayton, Ohio and the three youngsters—Earl Buchholz Jr., Charles McKinley and Dennis Ralston.

Buchholz, from St. Louis, and a member of the U.S. team which won the cup in 1958, is 20 years old. McKinley, also from St. Louis, is 19 and Ralston, from Bakersfield, Calif., is the baby of the squad at 18.

Freed is expected to lean heavily on the youngsters in the bid for the cup.

Facetiously, he told the Australians that the Yanks' secret weapons were pills "to new the Russians will not even claim to have invented them yet."

The Americans held their first workout on the White City Courts where they will play in the New South Wales Championships, beginning Thursday.

The Yanks must play the Philippines at Brisbane Dec. 9-11 for the right to meet Italy's European champions in the inter-zone final at Perth Dec. 15-17. The Challenge Round against Australia is scheduled Dec. 26-28.

Bucknell Beats Colgate, 12 To 8

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP)—Fired-up Bucknell did all its scoring in the first half and then held on in the face of a closing Colgate rally to defeat the Red Raiders 12-8 Saturday.

Captain Mickey Melberger scored the first Bucknell touchdown on a 15-yard run and his substitute, Ray Cosgrove, annexed the other on an 11-yard slat.

Davidson Pins Upset On VPI

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Davidson's Wildcats used a third-quarter safety to provide the margin of an astonishing 9-7 football upset of Virginia Tech Saturday. The loss dropped the heavily favored Techmen out of a tie for the Southern Conference lead and broke their winning streak at four games.

Wolverines Dump Illini In 8-7 Duel

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan won the battle of the coaching brothers Saturday, beating Illinois 8-7 on Dave Glinka's two-point pass conversion to halfback Dennis Ftizgerald.

A sometimes-slumbering Michigan defense rallied for tremendous efforts that crushed Illinois threats in every period and gave Chalmers (Bump) Elliott a squeaky victory in the coaching duel with his younger brother, Pete.

Only once before in major college football history have brothers been pitted against each other in the coaching ranks. That was 38 years ago when Iowa's Howard Jones won a 6-0 struggle against brother Tad Jones' Yale team.

Illinois' Jerry Wood, whose kicking provided the victory margin in two triumphs this season, missed three field goals—the last one in the fourth period from the Michigan 14-yard line.

End Bob Johnson barely got his hand in the way of Wood's kick and it swirled crazily far to the sight oft he goal post.

Irish Suffer 6th Straight Loss On Grid

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame's proud football history hit a low mark Saturday as Pittsburgh's rugged Panthers, clawing for two third period touchdowns, triumphed 20-13 and anchored the Irish with their longest losing streak in history, six straight.

The previous longest Irish defeat string was five straight, set by the 1956 team which had a 2-8 over-all record. The current Irish (1-6) still have to play Miami of Florida, Iowa and Southern California.

Notre Dame battled desperately and courageously Saturday but Pitt, who last week upended top-ranked Syracuse 10-0 made the most of frequent Irish errors.

The game-turner came in the third period with Pitt leading only 7-0. Panther Fred Cox intercepted George Haffner's pass, streaked 40 yards to the Irish 2 and then bucked over with the second Pitt touchdown.

Still in the third period, the Panthers uncorked a relentless running game to score again as Chuck Reinhold scampered across from the Irish 13. That made it 20-0 for Pitt.

The Irish finally scored with 11 seconds left in the third period on Angelo Dabiero's nine-yard end run. With 3:22 of the game left, the Irish scored again on Haffner's 12-yard shot to end Max Burnell. Pitt scored in the first quarter on Jim Cunningham's 1-foot plunge.

New Tournament For Pro Women

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — A 72-hole event at DeSoto Lakes Country Club has been added to the Ladies Professional Golf Association's winter tour.

Michael Freedman, president of the club, said the tournament would be played March 23-26. Those dates originally were set for the men's DeSoto Lakes Open, canceled earlier this week by the PGA.

93-YARD KICKOFF RETURN

Georgia Tech Pins Surprise Upset On Tennessee, 14-7

ATLANTA (UPI) — Halfback Billy Williamson raced 993 yards with a kickoff Saturday to spark the underdog Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets to a surprise 14-7 victory over the previously unbeaten Tennessee Volunteers.

Williamson, a 160-pound junior from Miami, Fla., brought a record crowd of 45,072 fans to their feet with a roar late in the first period when he took the ball on the Tech seven-yard line and with a blazing burst of speed raced through or around every Tennessee defender on the field on the longest kickoff return in Gergia Tech history.

All of the scoring in the otherwise rugged defensive battle took place in less than six minutes of the first period.

The Yellow Jackets scored first on a 16-yard dash around right end by halfback Chick Graning after Williamson returned a punt 26 yards to eight-ranked Tennessee's 16-yard line.

Tech set up that touchdown with two major breaks—the first when end Taz Anderson recovered a fumble at the Tennessee 43-yard line and the other a 39-yord punt by fullback Don Coker which died on the Tennessee one-foot line.

Halfback Tommy Wells kicked the first of two successful conversions.

The Volunteers, ranked eighth in the nation, came roaring back. Wingback Ken Waddell returned Wells' ensuing kickoff 52 yards to the Georgia Tech 43 yard line. Then with tailbacks Gene Etter and Glenn Glass alternating at the helm ennessee moved the remaining distance in 11 plays.

The touchdown came on an eight-yard pass from Glass to Waddell and end Cotton Letner kicked the extra point that tied the game 7-7.

Teh returned to the lead seconds later on Williamson's tremendous run.

That ended the scoring but not the excitement as Georgia Tech kept the pressure on Tennessee through the remainder of the game except for one brief spell in the fourth period when the Vols got down to the Yellow Jackets' 26-yard line in their only other scoring chance.

On that unsuccessful Tennessee drive the Yellow Jackets knocked down two passes and held for downs.

The Jackets missed scoring chances in both the second and third periods when they moved deep into Tennessee territory only to have Wells miss both times on field goal attempts.

The battle between these two Southeastern Conference arch rivals was highlighted by rugged line play emphasized by the fact that three men on each team had to be carried off the field. The victory was Tech's fifth in eight games. The loss, Tennessee's first, appears to have knocked the Vols out of the race.

Iowa State's Cyclones Hit Sooners, 10-6

AMES, Iowa (AP) — The Iowa State Cyclones, disdaining a 20-pound weight disadvantage, furiously battled to a 10-6 victory over defending Big Eight football champion Oklahoma Saturday.

Not since 1931 have Iowa State fans been witness to such a Cyclone triumph. That was the last year the Cyclones topped the Sooners.

A vicious defense paved the way for the upset. The winning touchdown came on a 32-yard drive late in the fourth quarter with fullback Tom Watkins getting the score.

Larry Schreiber kicked a 38-yard field goal in the third period, and Cliff Rock booted the unneeded extra point after the touchdown to account for the Iowa State scoring.

Mike McClellan started the Sooners off by scoring at the end of a 71-yard march in the second period, but Oklahoma never again threatened.

The victory touched off a wild celebration on the field by the capacity crowd of 18,000. Coach Clay Stapleton, in his third year here, was carried smiling from the field, and both metal goal posts were quickly demolished.

SKELTON STEERS ROUT

'Bama Rampage Crushes Furman

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama's Bobby Skelton, calmly picking his targets from behind a study line, guided the Crimson Tide Saturday to a 51-0 rout of outclassed Furman.

The steady quarterback, who completed nine of 13 passes in directing three touchdown marches, found a favorite target in sophomore halfback Butch Wilson as Alabama romped almost at will against the Purple Hurricanes before 20,000 fans.

Two touchdowns came on passes from Skelton to Wilson for eight yards and Richard O'Dell for three. Pat Trammell and Cotton Clark each ran over one from the one-yard line.

Walter Cureton burst 62 yards up the middle for another; Laurien Stapp hit Jerry Spruiell for the sixth on a 52-yard play and added another himself on a five-yard burst.

O'Dell kicked three conversions, Trammell ran over one and Stapp passed to Curtis Crenshaw for a two-pointer. Alabama added two more points on a safety when Spruell blocked Roger Senter's punt attempt and the ball rolled into the end zone.

It was the largest score run up by an Alabama eleven since 1951.

Alabama took less than a quarter to launch the scoring spree. Skelton replaced Trammell and passed 28 yards to Leon Fuller to put the ball on the Furman 29. He then threw five and six yards to Wilson, ran a keeper for 10, and threw to Wilson again for the score.

Skelton, passing to Wilson for 40 yards on one play, sent Alabama 67 yards for its second touchdown before turning the chores over to Trammell who directed an 82-yard drive, 42 yards of it on his favorite keeper play.

The Crimson Tide however saved its fireworks for the final period, when 22 points went up on the scoreboard.

Following the safety from Senter' s blocked kick, a free kick gave Alabama the ball on its own 39. One play lost a yard, then Cureton, a sophomore halfback, sliced through the middle of the Hurricane line for his 62-yard scoring sprint.

The Tide took the ball back after a Furman punt and a few plays later, Stapp, a lefthanded passer, found Spuriell open for a 52-yard touchdown play.

Wilt Scores 32 As Philly Wins

BOSTON (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain carried Philadelphia's unbeaten Warriors to their sixth straight National Basketball Association victory Saturday night, scoring 32 points in a 130-123 victory over Detroit.

Tom Gola scored 19 points. Paul Arizin 18 and Bob Ferry 17 for the Warriors. Chamberlain collected 23 of his points in the first half which ended with the Philadelphians battling to hold a 59-57 edge.

In the third period, the Warriors outscored the Pistons 40-30 to break it open.

Bailey Howell and Gene Shue collected 27 points each for Detroit.

Jack Moreland got seven points for the Pistons.

Techmen Topple Lions In Last Period, 14-10

Lestage Sprints 86 Yards For TD

By BOB ANDERSON
World Sports Editor

RUSTON, La. — Fleet Jack Lestage swept 86 yards down the sidelines with slightly over two minutes to go to give Louisiana Tech a 17-14 victory over previously-unbeaten Southeastern in a spine-tingling battle of small college grid giants here Saturday afternoon.

Lestage's dramatic dash on a punt rturn with 2:06 remaining brought a 7,500 to their feet, Southeastern crashing down to defeat for the first time in nine games and left Louisiana Tech favored to finish in at least a tie for the Gulf States Conference championship. Tech, once-beaten in the GSC and now 6-2 overall, has only Northeast remaining on its league schedule.

The first half of Tech's homecoming game was dominated by the Techmen and the last half, until Lestage cut loose on his terrific trip, was commanded by Southeastern.

Sotheastern had taken the lead for the first time with 11:11 remaining in the game when Bill Ladner knifed two yards off tackle. The extra point by Jerry Schwab made the score 14-10.

After the touchdown, Tech could only move 15 yards and punted. SLC's Lions moved 33 yards to the Tech 47 before Harris punted.

The ball hit the ground at about the 20, the Tech deep man seemed content to let it bounce and the Lion defense momentarily relaxed. But Lestage didn't. He began running toward the right sidelines and the ball, took it on a good bounce at the 14 and headed down the alley.

STATISTICS	Lions	Bulldogs
First Downs	14	16
Yards Rushing	221	187
Yards Passing	44	85
Passes	10-2	9-5
Passes Int. By	1	0
Fumbles Lost	1	1
Penalties	1-5	1-5
Punting	5-39.8	3-26.3

He streaked past several Lion defenders and only Lion QB Elbert Harris was left with a good chance to get him. But Joe Hinton cut Harris' feet from under him with a beautiful block and Lestage was loose. He streaked down the sidelines, outrunning a big Lion lineman easily.

That was the ball game although Tech might have scored again if they had wanted to very badly. Three plays after the climax run, Harris fumbled at the 14 and Tech tackle Andy Malone, one of Tech's defensive stalwarts all afternoon, grabbed it and went to the 12. But Joe Aillet's Techmen played it safe and ran out the clock on a line plunge by Dave Williamson and two sneaks by quarterback Johnny Hudson.

The defeat was, of course, a heart - breaker for Stan Galloway's Lions but they can still tie or possibly win — if Northeast knocks off Tech — the conference championship by downing McNeese and Northwestern.

Tech drew first blood late in the second quarter when Paul Hynes took a pitch back from Slaughter and toured left end six yards for a touchdown. Alexander's kick made it 7-0 at half time.

Southeastern charged out for the second half and tied the score the second time it got the ball, the six - pointer coming on a slickly - handled double reverse by Harris for seven yards around end. Jerry Schwab kicked the point to make it 7-7 with 7:13 left in the third.

Tech pulled ahead again in the third when Alexander kicked a 31 - yard field goal with 1:58 left.

Southeastern rallied to take the lead for the first and last time almost four minutes deep into the fourth when Ladner scored his touchdown.

Tech's tough defense hamstrung Southeastern's swifties in the first half. Hinton, Malone, Don Tippit and Herschel Vinyard gave ground grudgingly, if at all, in the first two quarters but the Lion ground game got moving in the second half.

For Southeastern, tackle Duane Grom, out most of the season with a bad knee, played a fine game on defense as did Harris, T. C. Calmes and Sam Gourrier.

Both teams battled on even terms in the first period. Tech made a mild threat early in the stanza by driving to the SLC 37. An 11 - yard Slaughter - to - Causey pass and a 20 - yard twisting run by Paul Hynes were the big plays in the drive, which began on the Tech 27.

But with second and 10 on the Lion 37, Harris intercepted a Slaughter pass at the 16 and returned to the 29 to temporarily deny the Techmen.

Late in the period, Southeastern got its first threat going. Starting at the 20 after Tech's Wayne Parker punted into the end zone, the Lions moved all the way to the 18 before the stanza ended. Bill Ladner's 11 - yard pickup and a 27 - yard pass from Harris to Charles Berg powered the push. The pass carried the ball to the Tech 32 and runs moved it to the 18 before the horn sounded.

Herschel Vinyard barreled in to bat down a Harris pass on the first play of the second period. the nHarris ran for four to make it fourth and four at the 14. Harris 'fourth - down pass into the end zone was far over the head of end Charles Berg, the intended receiver.

Tech's scoring drive began with a play that could have turned out disasterously for the Bulldogs. Dave Williamson tried to catch a bouncing punt by B. L. Fairchild on the 19 and the ball skipped by him. He just managed to cover it on the 17 before the green - clad Lions roared in.

Rudd went for three, then Salughter hit Causey with a six - yarder. Parker gained two for the first and then Mickey threw to Causey again for 18 yards. Jack Lestage gained one and Slaughter missed on a pass.

Then the Tech quarterback lobbed out to Lestage in the flat and the swift back legged it 29 yards to the SLC 24 and Tech was in business.

Hynes gained four and then Lestage reeled off ten yards, then four.

With second and six at the six, Slaughter went wide left. He was challenged at the line of scrimmage and tossed back to Hynes. Paul swept wider and just made it into the corner of the end zone. Bud Alexander kicked the point and Tech led, 7-0, with 2:54 left in the half.

Southeastern's Ken Dyer returned the kickoff 15 yards to the 35 and the Lions went to work for a touchdown of their own. They didn't make it but gave the Bulldogs a few anxious moments. Harris threw five passes but none connected and the Lions moved to the 25 totally on the ground. Harris gained 15 around end, three around the same flank, then Derrick picked up nine. With first and 10 at the 34, Harris tried two of his passes and both missed. With third and 10 at the 34 and time rapidly running out, he ran for nine, then tried one more pass. It was low and Tech took over on the 25.

The half ended a play later.

Southeastern took the second half kickoff, gained nine and punted. Tech picked up one first down and then Jack Howard fumbled at the Tech 33 and Calmes recovered.

Smith and Darryl Morris picked up three yards. Wilbur Derrick swept right end and traveled 20 yards before Slaughter pushed him out of bounds on the 14. Smith picked up four, Derrick one and Smith seven. With fourth and three at the seven. Harris tossed back to Smith, going right, then took it back and went left into the end zone. Schwab's kick tied it up with 7:13 left in the period.

The Techmen got a 25 - yard kickoff return by Slaughter to their 40 and, with an 11 - yard Slaughter - to - Causey pass and a 12 - yard option run by Slaughter the key plays, moved to the 20. Rudd gained five to the 15 but Slaughter got nothing and then was rushed badly when he tried to pass. The toss was no good and Alexander came in to kick his field goal.

The boot was into a strong wind and almost was blown off its course. But it got inside the right side bar and Tech led, 10-7, with 1:58 left in the period.

A fine kickoff return by Derrick, who dropped the ball at the 14, picked it up and raced to the SLC 45, set the Lions off on their second scoring drive. A 17 - yard pass from Harris to Willie Rhodes made the only air yards on the march. The rest of it was on the ground with Rhodes, Harris Ladner and Morris lugging the ball. Ladner sped through right tackle from two yards out for the touchdown, Schwab kicked the PAT and it was 14-10 with 11:11 left.

Tech took the kickoff, got one firstdown by the hardest against Southeastern's stiffening defense, then punted into the end zone.

Southeastern took over on the 20 and began moving again. Harris gained nine and Derrick one. Smith got nine and Derrick one for the first once more. Smith got four and Harris eight. But then the push stalled under Tech's pressure. Derrick picked up three but Harris was held to no gain and then lost two as Malone bulled through for the tackle. With fourth and nine at the Tech 47, Harris punted.

And then Lestage sent the old grads home happy.

AUBURN WINS, 27-12

Ed Dyas Breaks Field Goal Mark

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — Fullback Ed Dyas broke one national field goal record and tied another Saturday to pace the Auburn Tigers to a 27-12 victory over Mississippi State.

A record homecoming crowd of 38,000 saw Dyas break the record of seven field goals in one season with his eighth, a 22-yarder, in the first period and then, with the ninth from 32 yards out in the second period, tie the modern career record of 13.

Dyas, a straight-A pre-med senior from Mobile, Ala., had a sensational day. He scored two touchdowns and three conversions for an afternoon total of 21 points and barely missed what would have been his third field goal of the game and 10th of the season when the ball hit the crossbar and fell back near the close of the first half.

Little Don Machen, 145-pound right halfback from Sylacauga, Ala., took a wobbly lateral from quarterback Bryant Harvard and raced 10 yards for a touchdown in the third period. That touchdown was set up by Harvard's sixth pass interception of the year — tying the Auburn steal record and making it 18 interceptions for the Tigers this year, best in the nation.

Mississippi State's first score came on the second play of the fourth period after right end Johnny Baker covered quarterback Bobby Hunt's fumble on the Auburn 11. Two plays later, injured first string quarterback Charlie Furlow to Baker was batted down.

Late in the fourth period, the Maroons marched to the Auburn 27 where Furlow passed to halfback Jerry Wade for six-points. Furlow's pass attempt for two points failed.

Maroon sophomore sensation Sammy Dantone from Greenwood, Miss., tried two field goals. But the first was blocked by Auburn fullback John McGeever. Dantone's second try from 29 yards was short.

When Dyas wasn't kicking or running, it was an exciting game of long runs and gritty defense inside the 30-yard lines. Maroon left half Bobby Bethune, took a handoff on the kickoff after Dyas' first field goal and raced 75 yards to the Tiger 28. Auburn's Harvard fumbled the ball surrounded by tacklers but picked it up and raced 54 yards in the second quarter to set up Dyas's second three-pointer.

'Chip Fracture' Keeps Donnell At St. Francis

Ralph Donnell, 17 - year - old Crowville High School football player suffered a "chipped fracture" of the neck in a game at Mangham Friday night, but attendants at St. Francis Hospital here yesterday said "he will be all right."

Donnell, a 119 - pound back who was injured as he made a 73 - yard run that set up a Crowville touchdown, will be in traction for a few days, and then will wear a brace for a while.

The youth is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Donnell of near Crowville on Winnsboro route 4. The young athlete's father is a farmer - carpenter.

Bill Masked Marvel With Triple Main

The Masked Marvel puts some new life into a triple main event wrestling show to be presented by Promoter Ralph Fox at B. and B. Arena tomorrow night.

"The Marvel is showing for us for the first time, and we expect a better wrestling show than usual," Promoter Fox said last night. "In fact, we think we have three fine bouts, every one of main event magnitude, and that's the reason for the triple billing."

Ray Andrews, Al Massey, Bob Morrow, Jim LaRock and Tony Jiminez all appear on the same card.

The pairings for hour time limit matches are:

Andrews vs. Masked Marvel
Massey vs. Morrow
LaRock vs. Jiminez

The Massey-Morrow battle is a challenge affair with Morrow getting a return chance to square accounts for a recent loss in which he claimed he was not fairly beaten.

LaRock, the former Olympic athlete and already a big favorite with Twin Cities fans, gives Jiminez, one of the touring Mexican brothers, a chance to do what no one has been able to do. LaRock claims he has never been beaten in a dual match.

Bobby Jones, former amateur golf champion, was the first winner of the James E. Sullivan Memorial Trophy in 1930.

Hogs Lead Loop On Cissell Kick

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)— Mickey Cissell's square toe gave Arkansas the Southwest Conference lead Saturday with a 26-yard field goal in the last 25 seconds to give the Razorbacks a 3-0 victory over Rice.

Cissell's clutch kick was the second in a month which gave Arkansas a victory over previously undefeated conference teams. The Wilson, Ark., junior beat Texas 24-23 with a field goal in the last 19 seconds earlier this season.

Saturday's kick knocked Rice from the conference lead, giving them their first loss in four loop games. The Owls entered the game ranked 10th nationally but were outplayed by the underdog Razorbacks throughout.

The all-important kick which cleared the uprights by six yards was set up by a 32-yard pass play from quarterback Billy Moore to end Jimmy Collier which put the ball on the Rice 18 with less than two minutes left in the game.

Moore faded to pass on his own 45, then started to run before spotting Collier open along the sideline. Moore stopped in the face of two big Rice linemen and fired to Collier who caught the ball with one hand on the 33, outmaneuvered two of the Rice secondary and broke loose before he was brought down from behind on the 18.

Fullback Billy Joe Moody plunged to the 16 and George McKinney replaced the sophomore Moore at quarterback. McKinney went through the right side of the line to the nine to put the ball in position for the field goal.

McKinney then held and Cissell kicked his line drive to give Arkansas a 3-1 record in the Southwest Conference and a 6-2 season mark.

Terps Tumble To Penn State In 28-9 Game

UNIVERSITY PARK P.a. (AP) —Jim Kerr scored twice Saturday as Penn State stopped Maryland's multiple offense for a 28-9 football victory.

Kerr sprinted the final eight yards for the first score to cap a 91-yard march after the opening kickoff. Blocking by Sam Sobszak and Bob Mitinger was a key factor in the drive.

Then in the second quarter, the Nittany Lions all but slated away their fourth victory against three defeats with a 65-yard punt return by Don Jonas for a TD.

Jonas waited to pick up the bouncing ball until Maryland defenders had committed themselves, then dashed down the sideline with a few good blocks to clear his path.

A two-point conversion run by Kerr made the halftime score 15-3. Vince Scott kicked a 30-yard field goal for Maryland in the opening quarter. The team's record is now 4-4.

Kerr scored on a one-yard line plunge in the third quarter, and Buddy Torris scored later in the period on a five-yard run for the final State score. It was set up when Dick Pae recovered a fumble on the Maryland 23.

Maryland also scored in the third period when Joe Mona recovered a Nittany Lion fumble in the end zone.

Oak Grove 'B' Team Defeats Sterlington 11

OAK GROVE, La. (Special) — Mike Gammill passed to Sam Smith for a touchdown and extra point in the last period to give Oak Grove "B" team a 7-6 victory over Sterlington here Saturday night.

The touchdown pass went for 15 yards and matched a 15 - yard run by Larry Senn for the Sterlington TD in the second quarter.

The game was the second of the year between the two clubs. Sterlington won the first game, 14-7.

Ends Kent Davis and Mickey Turner, tackles Jerry Hagan and Dennis Sanford, guards Ronnie Yates and James Earl Shivers, center Kiley Thames, Gammill, David Kennedy, Smith, Mickey Broadway, Jee Pat Phillips, playing his first game since a hunting accident, and Zane Tubbs were outstanding for the winners.

Sophomore Tubbs, a regular center, played in the game at the fullback position. Seven, of the Oak Grove starters were freshmen or below.

Oak Grove's freshmen play Lake Providence here at 7:00 Monday night.

GSC Officials To Meet Today

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—Gulf States Conference basketball officials will meet here Sunday to discuss rule changes and officiating for the 1960-61 cage season.

Underdog Raiders Turn Back Tulane Wave, 35-21

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Injured quarterback Glen Amerson came off the bench to direct Texas Tech to three touchdown drives as the underdog Red Raiders walloped Tulane, 35-21, here Saturday afternoon in an intersectional battle.

Amerson threw touchdown passes of 44 yards, 8 yards and 16 yards to ends Don Waygood and Jerry Elbert and halfback Dickie Polson. Fullback Coolidge Hunt ran from five yards and All-America center E.J. Holub raced 28 yards with a pass interception for the final touchdown.

Halfback Tommy Mason, making a strong bid for All America honors, scored all three of the Green Wave's touchdowns. He twice went three yards to score and took an 18-yard pass from quarterback Phil Nugent and raced 12 yards for the final tally.

The Raiders electrified the crowd by scoring on their first play from scrimmage. Amerson tossed 29 yards to Waygood, who outran Tulane's defenses 15 yards with only 3:17 gone.

That 7-0 lead didn't stand up as the teams traded touchdowns this sunny, chilly afternoon. The Wave marched 73 yards to tie the score early in the second quarter, but Tech went ahead, 13-7, late in the quarter for a halftime lead.

The Greenies marched 55 yards in the third quarter and Ted Miller's placement gave Tulane a 14-13 lead. Miller kicked three extra points, while end Bill Roach blocked one of four conversion attempts.

After Tulane took the lead, the Raiders moved quickly to regain it. They marched 50 yards in three plays, with Elbert taking Amerson's pass in the end zone. This time Hunt plunged for two points for a 21-14 lead.

Waygood, the outstanding lineman on the field, intercepted a pass by Nugent to set in motion Tech's fourth touchdown. This time Hunt cracked tackle for five yards.

Tulane scored with 2:03 left to cap a 64-yard drive, Mason taking Nugent's pass on the 12 and sprinting over to cut the margin to 28-21.

After Tulane held, Turner punted. With 11 seconds left, Nugent passed, but Holub intercepted at the 28 and ran down the sidelines for the final score with two seconds remaining.

A LAST HALF COMEBACK

Duke Junks Navy's Perfect Record With 19 To 10 Upset

DURHAM, NC. (UPI) — Bowl-hungry Duke fought from 10 points behind with an inspired second-half comeback Saturday to wreck Navy's perfect football record, 19-10, before an overflow throng of 46,000 fans.

The Blue Devils conquered a siege of jitters and threw up such a commanding defense that they almost turned the second half into a rout of the nation's third-ranked team. They were threatening another score when the game ended.

Duke fumbled five times in the first half, lost three of them and the gold-clad Middies turned two recoveries into scores that gave them a 10-0 halftime lead.

But the Blue Devils reversed things in the second half.

They bottled Navy's dynamic Joe Bellino and thwarted the passing of Middle quarterback Hal Spooner that softened their defenses for Bellino's first half running show.

Duke's defense, led by tackle Art Gregory, center Butch Allie and fullback Jerry McGee snatched three Navy fumbles in the field period—and the Blue Devil backs turned all three into scores.

The victory for the 12th ranked Blue Devils projected them into the New Year's bowl picture—Orange Bowl scouts watched the game in warm brilliant sunshine—and it exploded the longest winning streak in Navy's football history at 10 games.

Spooner's passing carried Navy from its own 14 to the Duke 34 early in the third period when the tide turned. Gregory and guard Joe Wuchina forced a Spooner fumble which Wuchina recovered at the Duke 42.

Halfbacks Mark Leggett and Dean Wright carried to the Navy 41, and fullback Dave Burch, a stocky mountain boy, burst through the middle line for 36 yards to the five. Wright plunged for four and Burch cracked over.

Then, to get into field goal range, quarterback Walt Rappold passed for two points to Leggett.

Bellino fumbled the ensuing kickoff and center Paul Bengel recovered for Duke at the Navy 33. Navy held but Randy Clark punted out on the Navy three and the defense moved in. Navy punted out to Don Altman who returned 10 yards to the 31 and Navy drew a 15 yard foul penalty.

A play later Wright ripped seven yards for the touchdown and converted a two-pointer on a pitchout. Duke led then 16-10, but moments later Allie recovered a Middie fumble at the Navy 37, and Duke was moving again.

A 15-yard penalty slowed the Devil drive and on fourth down, Bill Reynolds kicked the longest field goal in Duke annals—a 35 yarder from a slight angle.

The first Middie recovery was by guard Steve Hoy of a fumbled handoff on Duke's second play from scrimmage. Taking over at Duke's 39, the Middies moved and sent Bellino for 14 yards and a first down at Duke's nine. Duke held, but on fourth down end Greg Mather angled a 25-yard field goal through the posts.

Midway in the second period, a series of Spooner passes carried Navy from its 33 to a first down at the Duke eight. Duke held on downs there, and on fourth down Mather faked a field goal and Spooner passed to Bellino. Leggett tackled him in the flat and Duke took over on its 17. But on the first play halfback Bob Garda fumbled and Bellino recovered on the Duke 23.

Spooner passed to halfback Al Hughes for nine yards and Bellino rammed the middle for five to the nine. On second down Spooner faked twice, then caught Mather in the corner on the goal line for a touchdown toss.

RESERVES KEPT BUSY

Ole Miss Slams Moccasins, 45-0

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI)—Second string quarterback Doug Elmore led Mississippi's reserves to a 45-0 rout of Chattanooga Saturday, scoring one touchdown on a 19-yard run and passing for two more.

It was the 12th straight game without a loss for the sixth-ranked Rebels and set the stage for next week's crucial battle with eighth-ranked Tennessee, which was toppled from the unbeaten ranks 14-7 today by Georgia Tech.

If the unbeaten but once tied Rebels get past Tennessee, only oft-beaten Mississippi State would remain in their path to the Southeastern Conference crown.

Elmore took over and led the Rebels to three second period touchdowns after starting quarterback Jake Gibbs had directed the first unit on a 77-yard first period touchdown.

Elmore set up the reserves' first touchdown with a 28-yard punt return to the Chattanooga 20. Five plays later he hit Wesley Sullivan in the end zone with an eight yard pass. Elmore got the next touchdown on a twisting, weaving 19-yard run through the entire Chattanooga squad to climax an 80-yard march.

Then he threw five straight passes for 67 yards, hitting Willis Dabbs in the end zone from three yards out for the tally. Elmore also ran for a two-point conversion and passed to Dabbs for another.

Fourth string halfback Guy Holloway got two second half touchdowns on a five-yard run and an eight-yard pass from quarterback Glynn Griffing. Holloway turned in a 39-yard run in helping set up his first tally.

The hard hitting Rebel line smothered Chattanooga's offense until the fourth string took over. Chattanooga's deepest penetration was to the Mississippi two, following a 49-yard pass from Jim Bradshaw to George Hogan. Chattanooga got a first down on the eighth, where a Chattanooga player hit Mississippi halfback Johnny Robinson so hard it knocked off Robinson's nose guard. Robinson got his revenge, making two tackles to stop the Moccasins. Chattanooga also made a deep penetration late in the second half, but halfback Chico Taylor intercepted an end zone pass to cut off the threat.

Badgers' Air Game Halted, Wildcats Win

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Northwestern unleashed a brutive ground attack for three first half touchdowns and bottled up Wisconsin's vaunted passing game in rolling over the Badgers 21-0 Saturday in the 47th renewal of a Big Ten rivalry.

The Wildcats, smoothly directed by Dick Thornton and powered by the line smashes of fullback Mike Stock, struck for scores on marches of 33, 46 and 66 yards in spoiling Wisconsin's homecoming day before a crowd of 61,730.

The victory was Northwestern's first in four conference decisions and boosted its over-all mark to 4-3. Wisconsin is 2-3 in Big Ten play and 4-3 for the year.

The pattern of the game was set on the first series of downs when Wisconsin was unable to move against the charging Northwestern line and had to punt. The Wildcats fumbled on their second running play, but quickly regained the ball on a bobble recovery by center Larry Onesti on his 17.

Northwestern then roared down field in 19 plays, Stock banging over right guard for the final three yards and then booting the first of his three extra points.

The Wildcats needed only five plays to go 46 yards for another touchdown. On the second play of the second period, Ray Purdin took a pitchout, turned left end and galloped 17 yards into the end zone.

Missouri Near Ticket To Bowl

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI)—Missouri halfback Norm Beal scampered 55 yards for a third-quarter touchdown Saturday to help the Tigers defeat the Colorado Buffaloes, 16-6, and take a long stride toward the Big Eight Conference championship and an Orange Bowl berth.

Missouri spotted Colorado a 6-0 lead in the first quarter when a 38-yard pass from Gale Weidner to Gary Benson clicked for a touchdown.

But the Tigers stormed from behind, scoring in the third period on a two-yard run by halfback Donnie Smith, adding their second touchdown on Beal's 55-yard punt return.

Missouri sealed the victory with a fourth-quarter safety.

The win gave Missouri, the nation's fourth-ranked team in this week's United Press International poll, an 8-0 record for the year and a 5-0 mark in Big Eight Conference play.

The loss snapped a five-game Colorado winning streak and dumped the Buffs into third place in the conference with a 4-1 record.

Colorado marched for a touchdown the first time it got the ball, with fullback Chuck Weiss and Weidner pacing the drive.

Weiss carried six times for 31 yards in the 79-yard strike to Henson in the end zone. Jerry Hillebrand's kick for extra point was no good.

Missouri put the game out of reach late in the fourth quarter when Danny LaRose tackled Weidner in the Colorado end zone for a safety.

Southerners Are Stunned By Ark. State

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — End Tot Bentley grabbed his second touchdown pass of the day with only 15 seconds remaining in the game to lead Arkansas State to a 14-13 upset of Mississippi Southern Saturday.

Bentley's second tally, with quarterback Jim McMurray on the throwing end, capped a double comeback by the Indians, who were behind most of the game.

Mississippi Southern took a 7-0 halftime lead in the south defensive battle after it moved 82 yards in 24 plays to score with 4:45 left in the half. Windell Campbell carried the final yard and a kick by Billy Larson added the extra point.

Early in the final period, Arkansas State's John Coffey recovered a Mississippi fumble on the visitors' 43-yard line. Twelve plays later McMurray flipped a 16-yarder to Bentley for a touchdown, then tossed another pass to the big end for the conversion and an 9-7 lead.

Mississippi Southern's Tommy Morrow returned the kickoff 62 yards to the Arkansas State 28, then on the fourth play from scrimmage Don Fuell scampered the final eight yards to score. A running try for the points was halted with the Mississippians leading 13-8.

Arkansas State outgained the Mississippians 229 to 218 yards, racking up 113 through the air.

Rally Pays Off For Connecticut

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The University of Connecticut struck for three last period scores Saturday in pulling a mild football upset by beating Buffalo 31-24.

Danny Gervasi broke away on a 46-yard touchdown sprint in the last period for a lead the UConns never relinquished.

Kansas Finds Cornhuskers Easy, 31 To 0

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Quarterback John Hadl sparked Kansas to an easy 31-0 victory over Nebraska Saturday, and the Jayhawks moved to second place in the Big Eight Conference football race.

Nebraska never got closer than 28 yards from the Kansas goal. Hadl, the league's leading passer, ran for one touchdown and threw for another. He completed nine of eleven passes for 69 yards and rushed for 43 more although he played only about half the game.

Kansas rushed for 196 yards and passed for 102 while the Cornhuskers could gain only 26 yards on the ground and 23 through the air.

John Suder of Kansas broke a school record that has stood since 1913 by kicking the seventh field goal of his varsity career.

Kansas tackle Larry Lausch recovered a fumble on the Cornhuskers' 21-yard line in the first quarter and it led to a 31-yard field goal by Suder four plays later.

The Jayhawks drove 44 yards for their first touchdown in the second quarter. A bad pass from center had allowed Kansas to get the ball in Husker territory. Fullback Doyle Schick capped the drive with a one-yard plunge. Suder converted for a 10-0 lead.

Kansas sparked by Hadl's fine passing and the running of halfback Hugh Smith drove 86 yards for its second touchdown late in the first half. Hadl swept end for three yards for the touchdown, and Suder again converted.

Hadl passed three yards to end Sam Simpson in the third quarter to cap a 55-yard drive with a touchdown. Halfback Fred Sukaty scored another in the fourth on a two-yard sweep that finished a 62-yard march. Suder converted after both scores and Kansas reserves took over full time.

Lakers Snuff Out Syracuse Rally To Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Krebs arched in the winning basket with five seconds remaining Saturday as the Los Angeles Lakers snuffed out a last-period Syracuse rally and edged the Nationals 112-110 in a nationally televised National Basketball Association game.

Syracuse, largely on the efforts of Barney Cable, Larry Costello and Joe Roberts, had closed a 10-point deficit and forged ahead 109-101 with 2:26 remaining.

The Lakers then put on a minute-long display of fireworks of their own as Jerry West scored five points and Elgin Baylor, on his way to a 40-point performance, dropped in two field goals to tie it 110-110.

The Lakers then stalled until five seconds remained and Krebs tossed in his long one from the sidelines.

Dayton Beaten By Holy Cross

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Holy Cross' Crusaders marched 76 yards for a touchdown the first time they got their hands on the ball and went on to crush Dayton 36-6 Saturday.

IN WEST MONROE

Junior Bowlers Tangle Tuesday

The first annual Optimist Junior Bowl football game, featuring teams of Ouachita Parish Junior High of Monroe and West Monroe Junior High will be played Tuesday night at the West Monroe High football field.

Principal Gene Hardin of co-sponsoring West Monroe Junior High said last night four bands will conduct a pre-game contest, beginning at 7 o'clock. Gametime for the gridders is 8 p.m.

Participating bands will be Ouachita Junior, Lee Junior, and Jefferson Junior, all of Monroe, and West Monroe Junior High.

Trophies will be awarded the winning band and the winning football team.

The Ouachita Junior Cubs and WMJH Colonels met last week in a regular season game with the Colonels emerging with a 13-7 victory and the Northeast Louisiana Football League junior championship. Co-sponsoring Optimist Club members feel their close rivalry makes them a natural for a rematch in the Junior Bowl.

All proceeds of the game will be used by Optimists to support projects for boys, and tickets are on advanced sale by members of participating bands, football teams, and Optimist Club members.

Wolves Use Kicker, Turn Back Deacons

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—The previously untested toe of North Carolina State tackle Nick Maravich decided the issue Saturday as the Wolfpack gained a 14-12 Atlantic Coast Conference football victory over Wake Forest.

The heralded pitching battle between quarterback's Roman Gabriel of State and Norman Snead of Wake Forest ended in a virtual stalemate.

Maravich, a husky Junior, was called on to kick for the first time this season and converted after both N. C. State touchdowns in the second quarter. Gabriel had sneaked over from a foot out for the first score and pitched an eight-yarder to end Jim Tapp for the second.

Snead's superb passing rallied Wake Forest for touchdowns in the third and fourth periods after the Deacons had been soundly trounced in the first half. He threw 22 and 34-yard bullets to end Bobby Allen for the scores.

Snead's conversion attempts in the third period hit the goal post and the Deacons had to go for the two-pointer after the fourth period score in an effort to gain a tie. But for the 16th time in a row, they failed when Snead's pass to Allen was batted down by quarterback Tom Dellinger.

Gabriel, fifth ranking passer in the nation, completed 15 of 25 passes for 140 yards and added 69 additional yards running. Snead hit 16 of 27 passes for 237 yards and lost 16 yards rushing.

The victory gave State a 4-1 ACC record, leaving the Wolfpack a half game behind Duke.

Golf Pros To Help Dedicate LSU Course

BATON ROUGE, La. (Special) — Three top professional golfers will be on hand to help Louisiana State University officially dedicate its on-campus golf course Thursday, November 10 at 1:30 p.m.

Bert Weaver, and Jay and Lionel Hebert, all former Tiger golfers, will take part in exhibition golf matches following the dedication ceremonies, LSU Athletic Director Jim Corbett said Saturday.

Miss Ellen R. Jolly, chairwoman of the Dedication Committee, said that invitations had been issued to five other LSU graduates prominent in professional golf — Gardner Dickinson, Freddie Haas, Johnny Pott, Dale Morey and Earl Stewart. While tournament commitments may prevent some of these golfers from attending, Miss Jolly said that Freddie Haas may also be available to join Weaver and the Hebert brothers in the exhibitions.

LSU's 18-hole course, designed for use by its students, faculty and staff, was constructed at a cost of over $250,000 and is located on land south and southwest of Tiger Stadium. Fred Knight, newly appointed co-coach of the Tiger golf team, serves as manager of the golf course.

Air Force In 36-6 Triumph

DENVER (AP)—Halfback Bob McDonough's 76-yard punt return for a touchdown featured Air Force's 22-point burst in the second quarter on the way to a 36-6 football victory over Denver Saturday.

Halfback Mike Quinlan scored three touchdowns on runs of 12 and 2 yards and a 6-yard pass as the Cadets snapped a four-game losing streak.

Quinlan's scoring gave him the Air Force career record of 19 touchdowns, two more than the previous mark.

McDonough, weighing only 140 pounds, caught the punt running backwards over his shoulder on the AF 24, darted to the sidelines and, behind perfect blocking, ran untouched for the touchdown—longest punt return in the Academy's five-year varsity history.

USL Catches Pensacola's Navy, 20-14

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Injury-riddled University of Southwestern Louisiana staved off a fourth stanza rally by Pensacola Navy Saturday to defeat the service team, 20-14.

Pensacola quarterback John Arms, the top signal caller for USL last season, passed for all his teams points and threatened again in the final minutes.

Arms hit end Rudy Lattimore for 21 yards and a touchdown in the second quarter and tossed seven yards to Tom Peters for a marker early in the final period. Arms heaved to Tony Less for the conversion.

USL raced to a 13-0 lead in the first quarter when tackle Tony Ledet picked up a fumble to set up a touchdown and his brother, tackle Winston Ledet, recovered another fumble to again pave the way for another marker.

MINNESOTA EYES NO. 1 SPOT

Gophers Ruin Iowa Hope Of Perfect Season, 27-10

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Minnesota's hard-hitting defense set up three touchdowns and a determined offense drove for another Satrday to beat Iowa, the nation's number one football team, 27-10, and post a claim to top spot.

The Gophers, ranked No. 2 nationally going into the game, now hope to take over the number one spot next week by virtue of the triumph, their first in the last six games against the Hawkeyes and the first defeat this season for Iowa.

Minnesota wasn't a stellar offensive club before a local record crowd of 65,610. It moved into Iowa territory only twice under its own power, but a bad pass from center on a punting situation gave Minnesota possession once only 14 yards from the Iowa goal, a Hawkeye fumble gave the Gophers a scoring chance on the Iowa 19, and still another bobble on the Hawkeye 42 preceded another Gopher touchdown.

Roger Hagberg, a work - horse fullback, drove 42 yards for one Minnesota touchdown after the Iowa fumble by speedster Sammy Harris. Quarterback Joe Salem got another on a one-yard sneak after the Gophers got the Iowa bobble on the 19. And Bill Van Buren's bad pass to punter John Calhoun sailed over his head and 32 yards downfield, to give the Gophers possession and set up a 7-yard scoring run by Bill Munsey.

The cautious Gophers, leading after less than five minutes of play, punted three times on third down. Third-string quarterback Jo Salem directed the only sizable offensive drive covering 81 yards in which his pass to Habberg for 28 yards was the big gainer.

But Salem was taken out and starter Sanford Stephens got credit for the score on a one-yard drive.

Iowa challenged consistenely during the first half, but Tom Moore's 28-yard field goal furnished the only points.

Still, the Hawkeyes came from behind with a 55-yard drive for a touchdown, scored by Joe Williams on a 20 yafd trap play, for a 10-7 lead to open the second half.

Then Minnesota's hardhitting took its toll with the pair of fourth quarter touchdowns for victory.

The victory was Minnesota's seventh without defeat this season and put the Gophers in good position to possibly win the Big ten crown for the first time since 1941. The Gophers face Purdue next week and Wisconsin the following week to close the season. Iowa triumphed over both the Boilermakers and Badgers to indicate that Minnesota has a good chance to finish unbeaten.

If they do it would be the first unbeaten champaign since 1941 and the first by a Big Ten team since 1954.

Gambling Gators Snap Up Georgia

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — An air-tight Florida pass defense stiffled the aerial wizardry of Georgia's Francis Tarkenton for three quarters Saturday while fullback Don Goodman led a gambling Gator offense to a 22-14 win.

Quarterback Bobby Dodd Jr., son of the famed Georgia Tech coach, gave Florida its third touchdown and clinched the victory with a two-point conversion run on a fake kick.

The Georgia Bulldogs, virtually helpless in the first three quarters, got its vaunted aerial attack working in the final period, scoring two touchdowns on runs by quarterback Tarkenton and a 26-yard pass from halfback Billy Jackson to halfback Bobby Walden.

But it was Florida's day. The Gators mixed a hard - running ground attack, sparked by Goodman, with a surprising pass defense which kept Tarkenton — the Southeastern Conference's leading passer — in handcuffs until late in the game.

A record 48,622 sun-drenched fans, largest crowd in Gator Bowl history, watched the Gators back up their sixth win of the year against two losses. It was Georgia's third loss after five victories.

The win kept Florida in the running for the SEC title, which Georgia captured last year, and made the Gators a leading candidate for a return trip to the Gator Bowl.

Florida romped to glory the first time it got its hands on the ball, marching 77 yards in 15 plays. Goodman, a 186-pound junior from Miami, charged over from the one for the touchdown to put the Gators ahead with 7:44 left in period.

It was Goodman again moments later, scoring from the one once more, after Georgia end Don Tomberlin fumbled the kickoff and guard Larry Travis pounced on it for Florida on the Bulldog 28. Quarterback Larry Libertore ran for nine yards and passed to end Tom Kelley for 18 yards to move the Gators into scoring range.

Specialist Billy Cash made both kicks good.

Florida's third touchdown came in the third period after a 62-yard march in 10 plays, with Dodd taking it over from the one.

Tarkenton, who completed 14 of 28 passes good for 145 yards, sparked Georgia's first scoring drive with passes good for 21 and 17 yards. The senior quarterback ran it over himself from the four-yard line, shaking off a bevy of Florida tacklers who almost trapped him for a loss.

Tarkenton was shaken up on the play and Walden passed to halfback Fred Brown for two points.

The Bulldogs went 53 yards for their final touchdown, again paced by Tarkenton's passes. Jackson threw a looping pass from his own 23 which Walden grabbed over his shoulder and galloped into the right corner of the end zone.

Yank Cuppers Can Win, 5-0, Says Captain

SYDNEY (AP) — David Freed, non-playing captain of the U.S. Davis Cup team, said Saturday he was confident the Americans not only would win back the trophy but they would beat the Australians 5-0.

"I do not think we will have any trouble carrying off the cup," the new captain, successor to Perry Jones, told newsmen upon the team's arrival at the Sydney airport.

"You can say I am prejudiced if you like, but I know how good these boys really are. We will win 5-0."

Accompanying Freed were Bernard (Tut) Bartzen of Dallas, Barry McKay of Dayton, Ohio and the three youngsters—Earl Buchholz Jr., Charles McKinley and Dennis Ralston.

Buchholz, from St. Louis, and a member of the U.S. team which won the cup in 1958, is 20 years old. McKinley, also from St. Louis, is 19 and Ralston, from Bakersfield, Calif., is the baby of the squad at 18.

Freed is expected to lean heavily on the youngsters in the bid for the cup.

Facetiously, he told the Australians that the Yanks' secret weapons were pills "to new the Russians will not even claim to have invented them yet."

The Americans held their first workout on the White City Courts where they will play in the New South Wales Championships, beginning Thursday.

The Yanks must play the Philippines at Brisbane Dec. 9-11 for the right to meet Italy's European champions in the inter-zone final at Perth Dec. 15-17. The Challenge Round against Australia is scheduled Dec. 26-28.

Bucknell Beats Colgate, 12 To 8

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP)—Fired-up Bucknell did all its scoring in the first half and then held on in the face of a closing Colgate rally to defeat the Red Raiders 12-8 Saturday.

Captain Mickey Melberger scored the first Bucknell touchdown on a 15-yard run and his substitute, Ray Cosgrove, annexed the other on an 11-yard slat.

Davidson Pins Upset On VPI

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Davidson's Wildcats used a third-quarter safety to provide the margin of an astonishing 9-7 football upset of Virginia Tech Saturday.

The loss dropped the heavily favored Techmen out of a tie for the Southern Conference lead and broke their winning streak at four games.

Wolverines Dump Illini In 8-7 Duel

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan won the battle of the coaching brothers Saturday, beating Illinois 8-7 on Dave Glinka's two-point pass conversion to halfback Dennis Ftizgerald.

A sometimes-slumbering Michigan defense rallied for tremendous efforts that crushed Illinois threats in every period and gave Chalmers (Bump) Elliott a squeaky victory in the coaching duel with his younger brother, Pete.

Only once before in major college football history have brothers been pitted against each other in the coaching ranks. That was 38 years ago when Iowa's Howard Jones won a 6-0 struggle against brother Tad Jones' Yale team.

Illinois' Jerry Wood, whose kicking provided the victory margin in two triumphs this season, missed three field goals—the last one in the fourth period from the Michigan 14-yard line.

End Bob Johnson barely got his hand in the way of Wood's kick and it swirled crazily far to the sight oft he goal post.

Irish Suffer 6th Straight Loss On Grid

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame's proud football history hit a low mark Saturday as Pittsburgh's rugged Panthers, clawing for two third period touchdowns, triumphed 20-13 and anchored the Irish with their longest losing streak in history, six straight.

The previous longest Irish defeat string was five straight, set by the 1956 team which had a 2-8 over-all record. The current Irish (1-6) still have to play Miami of Florida, Iowa and Southern California.

Notre Dame battled desperately and courageously Saturday but Pitt, who last week upended top-ranked Syracuse 10-0 made the most of frequent Irish errors.

The game-turner came in the third period with Pitt leading only 7-0. Panther Fred Cox intercepted George Haffner's pass, streaked 40 yards to the Irish 2 and then bucked over with the second Pitt touchdown.

Still in the third period, the Panthers uncorked a relentless running game to score again as Chuck Reinhold scampered across from the Irish 13. That made it 20-0 for Pitt.

The Irish finally scored with 11 seconds left in the third period on Angelo Dabiero's nine-yard end run. With 3:22 of the game left, the Irish scored again on Haffner's 12-yard shot to end Max Burnell. Pitt scored in the first quarter on Jim Cunningham's 1-foot plunge.

New Tournament For Pro Women

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — A 72-hole event at DeSoto Lakes Country Club has been added to the Ladies Professional Golf Association's winter tour.

Michael Freedman, president of the club, said the tournament would be played March 23-26. Those dates originally were set for the men's DeSoto Lakes Open, canceled earlier this week by the PGA.

93-YARD KICKOFF RETURN

Georgia Tech Pins Surprise Upset On Tennessee, 14-7

ATLANTA (UPI) — Halfback Billy Williamson raced 993 yards with a kickoff Saturday to spark the underdog Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets to a surprise 14-7 victory over the previously unbeaten Tennessee Volunteers.

Williamson, a 160-pound junior from Miami, Fla., brought a record crowd of 45,072 fans to their feet with a roar late in the first period when he took the ball on the Tech seven-yard line and with a blazing burst of speed raced through or around every Tennessee defender on the field on the longest kickoff return in Gergia Tech history.

All of the scoring in the otherwise rugged defensive battle took place in less than six minutes of the first period.

The Yellow Jackets scored first on a 16-yard dash around right end by halfback Chick Graning after Williamson returned a punt 26 yards to eight-ranked Tennessee's 16-yard line.

Tech set up that touchdown with two major breaks—the first when end Taz Anderson recovered a fumble at the Tennessee 43-yard line and the other a 39-yord punt by fullback Don Coker which died on the Tennessee one-foot line.

Halfback Tommy Wells kicked the first of two successful conversions.

The Volunteers, ranked eighth in the nation, came roaring back. Wingback Ken Waddell returned Wells' ensuing kickoff 52 yards to the Georgia Tech 43 yard line. Then with tailbacks Gene Etter and Glenn Glass alternating at the helm ennessee moved the remaining distance in 11 plays.

The touchdown came on an eight-yard pass from Glass to Waddell and end Cotton Letner kicked the extra point that tied the game 7-7.

Teh returned to the lead seconds later on Williamson's tremendous run.

That ended the scoring but not the excitement as Geeorgia Tech kept the pressure on Tennessee through the remainder of the game except for one brief spell in the fourth period when the Vols got down to the Yellow Jackets' 26-yard line in their only other scoring chance.

On that unsuccessful Tennessee drive the Yellow Jackets knocked down two passes and held for downs.

The Jackets missed scoring chances in both the second and third periods when they moved deep into Tennessee territory only to have Wells miss both times on field goal attempts.

The battle between these two Southeastern Conference arch rivals was highlighted by rugged line play emphasized by the fact that three men on each team had to be carried off the field. The victory was Tech's fifth in eight games. The loss, Tennessee's first, appears to have knocked the Vols out of the race.

Iowa State's Cyclones Hit Sooners, 10-6

AMES, Iowa (AP) — The Iowa State Cyclones, disdaining a 20-pound weight disadvantage, furiously battled to a 10-6 victory over defending Big Eight football champion Oklahoma Saturday.

Not since 1931 have Iowa State fans been witness to such a Cyclone triumph. That was the last year the Cyclones topped the Sooners.

A vicious defense paved the way for the upset. The winning touchdown came on a 32-yard drive late in the fourth quarter with fullback Tom Watkins getting the score.

Larry Schreiber kicked a 33-yard field goal in the third period, and Cliff Rock, booted the unneeded extra point after the touchdown to account for the Iowa State scoring.

Mike McClellan started the Sooners off by scoring at the end of a 71-yard march in the second period, but Oklahoma never again threatened.

The victory touched off a wild celebration on the field by the capacity crowd of 18,000. Coach Clay Stapleton, in his third year here, was carried smiling from the field, and both metal goal posts were quickly demolished.

SKELTON STEERS ROUT

'Bama Rampage Crushes Furman

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama's Bobby Skelton, calmly picking his targets from behind a study line, guided the Crimson Tide Saturday to a 51-0 rout of outclassed Furman.

The steady quarterback, who completed nine of 13 passes in directing three touchdown marches, found a favorite target in sophomore halfback Butch Wilson as Alabama romped almost at will against the Purple Hurricanes before 20,000 fans.

Two touchdowns came on passes from Skelton to Wilson for eight yards and Richard O'Dell for three. Pat Trammell and Cotton Clark each ran over one from the one-yard line.

Walter Cureton burst 62 yards up the middle for another; Laurien Stapp hit Jerry Spruiell for the sixth on a 52-yard play and added another himself on a five-yard burst.

O'Dell kicked three conversions, Trammell ran over one and Stapp passed to Curtis Crenshaw for a two-pointer. Alabama added two more points on a safety when Spruell blocked Roger Senter's punt attempt and the ball rolled into the end zone.

It was the largest score run up by an Alabama eleven since 1951.

Alabama took less than a quarter to launch the scoring spree. Skelton replaced Trammell and passed 28 yards to Leon Fuller to put the ball on the Furman 29. He then threw five and six yards to Wilson, ran a keeper for 10, and threw to Wilson again for the score.

Skelton, passing to Wilson for 40 yards on one play, sent Alabama 67 yards for its second touchdown before turning the chores over to Trammell who directed an 82-yard drive, 42 yards of it on his favorite keeper play.

The Crimson Tide however saved its fireworks for the final period, when 22 points went up on the scoreboard.

Following the safety from Senter' s blocked kick, a free kick gave Alabama the ball on its own 39. One play lost a yard, then Cureton, a sophomore halfback, sliced through the middle of the Hurricane line for his 62-yard scoring sprint.

The Tide took the ball back after a Furman punt and a few plays later, Stapp, a lefthanded passer, found Spuriell open for a 52-yard touchdown play.

Wilt Scores 32 As Philly Wins

BOSTON (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain carried Philadelphia's unbeaten Warriors to their sixth straight National Basketball Association victory Saturday night, scoring 32 points in a 130-123 victory over Detroit.

Tom Gola scored 19 points, Paul Arizin 18 and Bob Ferry 17 for the Warriors. Chamberlain collected 23 of his points in the first half which ended with the Philadelphians battling to hold a 59-57 edge.

In the third period, the Warriors outscored the Pistons 40-30 to break it open.

Bailey Howell and Gene Shue collected 27 points each for Detroit.

Jack Moreland got seven points for the Pistons.

'61 TORSION-SPRING CHEVROLETS
If you don't think scrapping the front axle has made a world of difference, you haven't driven a Chevy in a while. A few minutes behind the wheel and you can feel why drivers are happier and breakable loads are better protected. But the biggest advantage of all, you'll realize, is that the truck itself (sheet metal, tires, chassis components, everything) takes less abuse. With independent front suspension soaking up road shock and vibration, the truck lasts longer, goes extra thousands of miles before trade-in time. Add that to what everybody's always known about Chevy dependability and you find yourself looking at the soundest truck investment you could bet your business on. CHEVROLET

FIELD GOAL DECIDES GAME

Army Cashes In On Every Break To Upset Syracuse

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, N.Y. (AP) — A fighting Army team, which pounced on every break, handed national champion Syracuse its second straight defeat 9-6 Saturday in a fierce football game decided by a 29-yard field goal by quarterback Tom Blanda.

The game, played before a crowd of 66,000 at Yankee Stadium, ended in wild hysteria with Army on the Syracuse 1-foot line after a pass interception by Roger Zailskas.

With Syracuse still threatening in the fading minutes, Zailskas plucked down a pass thrown by Syracuse's Tom Gilburg on a fake punt formation and took it from the Syracuse 45 to the 14. Army pounded down to the 1-foot line before time ran out.

With an iron man fullback, Al Rushatz, playing a powerful role, Amry went 50 yards in the secon period to set up the field goal by Blanda.

In the third period, the aroused Cadets went 68 yards on 16 plays, using up more than eight minutes of the clock, in scoring their touchdown. Sub quarterback Dick Eckert stole across from the 2 on a fake and keep play.

Outcharged through most of the regionally televised game, Syracuse stormed back for a touchdown early in the fourth period on the pounding hoffs of Art Baker and Ernie Davis.

The Orangemen went 81 yards after getting the ball on a pass interception and scored when Dick Easterly hit end Ken Erickson with a 15-yard pass into the end zone.

It was the second straight setback for Syracuse, which had a 16-game winning streak snapped by Pitt last week and it was the sixth victory in eight games for Army, an 8-point underdog.

STURGEON POWER DRIVES

Kentucky Batters Vanderbilt, 27-0

By JOHN G. DIETRICH

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)—Halfback Charlie Sturgeon's shattering power runs sent Kentucky into an early lead and the Wildcat defensive unit battered Vanderbilt into a 27-0 submission Saturday.

Showing precision and coherence for the first time this season, Kentucky used the sophomore passing combination of quarterback Jerry Woolum to end Tom Hutchinson to tip Vandy off balance on a flawless 74-yard touchdown driver from the opening kickoff in the Southeastern Conference same.

Woolum twice connected with Hutchinson for 11-yard gains on third down situtations as Kentucky moved from its 26th to the Vandy 28th.

Then Surgeon took off around left end, leaving three Vandy tacklers strewn on the turf before he was finally brought down four yards from a touchdown. But he scored on the next play in a burst over tackle behind fullback Jim Poynter's blocking. Clark Mayfield converted.

It soon became apparent that the one touchdown might be enough, as a Kentucky defense led by tackle Wayne Dixon smothered the Vanderbilt attack. Vandy wound up with a net loss of one yard rushing and gained only nine yards by passing the first half.

That stinginess on defense set up Kentucky's second touchdown drive late in the half, a 59-yard affair keyed by halfback Gary Steward's 30-yard run over guard to the Vandy 16. Fullback Gary Cochran drove over from eight yards out and Mayfield again converted.

The second half pattern was much the same, with Vanderbilt unable to cross Midfield until a freak pass interception by tackle Wayne Hall moved the Commodores to the Kentucky 14 early in the final period. The Kentucky line quickly squelched that threat.

Kentucky scored twice in the third period, once on a 15-yard slice off tackle by Calvin Bird and again near the close of the period on a one-yard buck by fullback Jim Fisher.

That final score was set up when center John Mutchler intercepted a pass by Vandy's sophomore quarterback Hank Lesesne, on the Commodore 25. It was one of four interceptions by Kentucky defenders.

Princeton Tags Harvard, 14-12

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP) — Princeton generated just enough scoring power Saturday to defeat Harvard 14-12 as two Harvard passes for two-point conversions were broken up. Trailing each time as Princeton scored first and Dave Gouldin kicked the extra points, Harvard twice went for the two-pointers on Terry Bartolet's passing and couldn't make them.

Former Middle Champion Chip Seriously Hurt

NEW CASTLE, Pa. (AP) — George Chipulonis, 73, known as George Chip when he held the world middleweight boxing crown, was struck and critically injured Friday night by an automobile while walking on a highway near here.

Chip suffered two broken legs, a possible skull fracture and severe cuts. He is in New Castle Hospital.

Chip won the middleweight title with a fifth round knockout of Frank Klaus in Pittsburgh in December 1913. Five months later he was dethroned by Al McCoy, who knocked him out in one round in Brooklyn.

Terriers Tie Mountaineers In Rain, 7-7

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) Boston University, picking up three yards and a clog of mud at a time, rolled 76 yards in the third quarter Saturday to gain a 7-7 tie with West Virginia in a rain soaked game.

The smallest crowd in West Virginia history—some 3,000—braved the inclement weather to see the Mountaineers winless steak extended to 13 consecutive games as the Terriers' Dick Desmarias plowed through the soft turf.

It was Desmarias, 180-pound senior, who bulled over right tackle from the West Virginia 3 to score for Boston. Quarterback Dick Farland ran the conversion but Boston was offside. Farland then kicked the game-tying point from the eight yard line.

West Virginia had scored in the first quarter when Boston punter Tom Daubney received a bad pass from center on fourth down and the Mountaineers took possession on the Terriers' 11.

Quarterback Dale Evans slashed over from the nine after he faded to pass and found no receiver. Bob Lively kicked the extra point.

The tie was the second of the season for both teams. Boston had been beaten by Penn State, Syracuse, Ohio University and Connecticut. It scored victories over Holy Cross and Massachusetts and tied George Washington.

West Virginia has not won a game since it defeated Pitt 23-15 in its 1959 homecoming. This fall the Mountaineers have lost six games while tying Richmond 6-6.

The light rain, which fell throughout the entire game, made passing perilous. However, the Terriers tried 10 passes and the Mountaineers 15.

Wichita Fights From Behind 2 Times At Tulsa

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Wichita's Wheatshockers fought back from behind twice Saturday to edge Tulsa 21-20 and assure themselves at least a tie for the Missouri Valley Conference championship.

Their winning touchdown came in the last three minutes after a march of 48 yards in four plays, with fullback J. R. Dumler going the last three. Bill Seigle's conversion kick provided the winning margin.

The decisive thrust which spoiled Tulsa's homecoming followed soon after an 85-yard pass play from Tulsa quarterback Jerry Keeling to end Bill Gary had broken a 14-14 tie. Bob West missed the kick—his first failure in 15 tries this season.

Wichita now can win the conference title outright with a victory over often-beaten North Texas State Nov. 19.

Rams, Raiders Win 'Y' Games

Norman Deaton's Aces tied the Tigers, 0-0; Don Milby's Rams defeated the Bears, 6-0, and Drury Bynum's Red Raiders smashed the Tornadoes, 33-0, in YMCA football games here yesterday.

Mike Weaver scored the Rams' touchdown from six yards deep. Robert DeRosa, Teddy Sutton, and Carl Brown accounted for the Red Raiders' scoring.

Brown Nips Cornell . .

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP) — Brown took the lead on a first period touchdown run and conversion kick by Ray Barry and made it stand up for a 7-6 Ivy League football victory over Cornell Saturday.

Clemson Has Plenty Punch To Trip Heels

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Clemson quarterbacks, headed by Lowndes Shingler, had a 24-0 field day against North Carolina Saturday in a satisfying homecoming. It was Clemson Coach Frank Howard's 120th career win.

Shingler passed and ran Clemson to two touchdowns; Joe Anderson guided his team to a third; and Johnny MacGoff and Don Heilig combined on a drive that resulted in a field goal.

North Carolina threatened only twice, first when it recovered a fumble at the Clemson 28 in the game's opening minutes, and gain on a 74-yard march that ended at the Clemson 20 early in the final period.

Fullback Bill McGuirt scored twice for Clemson on short plunges, and Anderson slipped around right end for 22 yards and another. Reserve guard Lon Armstrong kicked the field goal with 16 seconds left in the game with the ball placed down 37 yards away from the goal posts. A strong wind helped carry the ball.

Shingler completed 16 passes for 97 yardsa nd ran for 77 more for a total game offense of 174 yards.

Houston, Almost Too Late, Drops Cincinnati, 14-0

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Ken Bolin and Don Sessions led the way as the University of Houston exploded for two touchdowns in the last six minutes Saturday to defeat Cincinnati 14-0.

Until Bolin started the uprising with a 46-yard punt return, Houston had seen five fumbles and two pass interceptions aid Cincicinnati, a 26½-point underdog.

Bolin followed his punt return with a 19-yard scamper to the Cincinnati 5 and Sessions carried over two plays later from the 1.

Cincinnati fumbled the kickoff and Houston recovered on the Bearcat 28. Gene Ritch lost two yards but Sessions then hit him with a 30-yard touchdown pass.

A LAST HALF COMEBACK

Duke Junks Navy's Perfect Record With 19 To 10 Upset

DURHAM, NC. (UPI) — Bowl-hungry Duke fought from 10 points behind with an inspired second-half comeback Saturday to wreck Navy's perfect football record, 19-10, before an overflow throng of 46,000 fans.

The Blue Devils conquered a siege of jitters and threw up such a commanding defense that they almost turned the second half into a rout of the nation's third-ranked team. They were threatening another score when the game ended.

Duke fumbled five times in the first half, lost three of them and the gold-clad Middies turned two recoveries into scores that gave them a 10-0 halftime lead.

But the Blue Devils reversed things in the second half.

They bottled Navy's dynamic Joe Bellino and thwarted the passing of Middle quarterback Hal Spooner that softened their defenses for Bellino's first half running show.

Duke's defense, led by tackle Art Gregory, center Butch Allie and fullback Jerry McGee snatched three Navy fumbles in the field period—and the Blue Devil backs turned all three into scores.

The victory for the 12th ranked Blue Devils projected them into the New Year's bowl picture—Orange Bowl scouts watched the game in warm brilliant sunshine—and it exploded the longest winning streak in Navy's football history at 10 games.

Spooner's passing carried Navy from its own 14 to the Duke 34 early in the third period when the tide turned. Gregory and guard Joe Wuchina forced a Spooner fumble which Wuchina recovered at the Duke 42.

Halfbacks Mark Leggett and Dean Wright carried to the Navy 41, and fullback Dave Burch, a stocky mountain boy, burst through the middle line for 36 yards to the five. Wright plunged for four and Burch cracked over.

Then, to get into field goal range, quarterback Walt Rappold passed for two points to Leggett.

Bellino fumbled the ensuing kickoff and center Paul Bengel recovered for Duke at the Navy 33. Navy held but Randy Clark punted out on the Navy three and the defense moved in. Navy punted out to Don Altman who returned 10 yards to the 31 and Navy drew a 15 yard foul penalty.

A play later Wright ripped seven yards for the touchdown and converted a two-pointer on a pitchout. Duke led then 16-10, but moments later Allie recovered a Middie fumble at the Navy 37, and Duke was moving again.

A 15-yard penalty slowed the Devil drive and on fourth down, Bill Reynolds kicked the longest field goal in Duke annals—a 35 yarder from a slight angle.

The first Middie recovery was by guard Steve Hoy of a fumbled handoff on Duke's second play from scrimmage. Taking over at Duke's 39, the Middies moved and sent Bellino for 14 yards and a first down at Duke's nine. Duke held, but on fourth down end Greg Mather angled a 25-yard field goal through the posts.

Midway in the second period, a series of Spooner passes carried Navy from its 33 to a first down at the Duke eight. Duke held on downs there, and on fourth down Mather faked a field goal and Spooner passed to Bellino. Leggett tackled him in the flat and Duke took over on its 17. But on the first play halfback Bob Garda fumbled and Bellino recovered on the Duke 23.

Spooner passed to halfback Al Hughes for nine yards and Bellino rammed the middle for five to the nine. On second down Spooner faked twice, then caught Mather in the corner on the goal line for a touchdown toss.

RESERVES KEPT BUSY

Ole Miss Slams Moccasins, 45-0

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI)—Second string quarterback Doug Elmore led Mississippi's reserves to a 45-0 rout of Chattanooga Saturday, scoring one touchdown on a 19-yard run and passing for two more.

It was the 12th straight game without a loss for the sixth-ranked Rebels and set the stage for next week's crucial battle with eighth-ranked Tennessee, which was toppled from the unbeaten ranks 14-7 today by Georgia Tech.

If the unbeaten but once tied Rebels get past Tennessee, only oft-beaten Mississippi State would remain in their path to the Southeastern Conference crown.

Elmore took over and led the Rebels to three second period touchdowns after starting quarterback Jake Gibbs had directed the first unit on a 77-yard first period touchdown.

Elmore set up the reserves' first touchdown with a 28-yard punt return to the Chattanooga 20. Five plays later he hit Wesley Sullivan in the end zone with an eight yard pass. Elmore got the next touchdown on a twisting, weaving 19-yard run through the entire Chattanooga squad to climax an 80-yard march.

Then he threw five straight passes for 67 yards, hitting Willis Dabbs in the end zone from three yards out for the tally. Elmore also ran for a two-point conversion and passed to Dabbs for another.

Fourth string halfback Guy Holloway got two second half touchdowns on a five-yard run and an eight-yard pass from quarterback Glynn Griffing Holloway turned in a 39-yard run in helping set up his first tally.

The hard hitting Rebel line smothered Chattanooga's offense until the fourth string took over. Chattanooga's deepest penetration was to the Mississippi two, following a 49-yard pass from Jim Bradshaw to George Hogan. Chattanooga got a first down on the eighth, where a Chattanooga player hit Mississippi halfback Johnny Robinson so hard it knocked off Robinson's nose guard. Robinson got his revenge, making two tackles to stop the Moccasins. Chattanooga also made a deep penetration late in the second half, but halfback Chico Taylor intercepted an end zone pass to cut off the threat.

Badgers' Air Game Halted, Wildcats Win

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Northwestern unleashed a brusing ground attack for three first half touchdowns and bottled up Wisconsin's vaunted passing game in rolling over the Badgers 21-0 Saturday in the 47th renewal of a Big Ten rivalry.

The Wildcats, smoothly directed by Dick Thornton and powered by the line smashes of fullback Mike Stock, struck for scores on marches of 83, 46 and 66 yards in spoiling Wisconsin's homecoming day before a crowd of 61,730.

The victory was Northwestern's first in four conference decisions and boosted its over-all mark to 4-3. Wisconsin is 2-3 in Big Ten play and 4-3 for the year.

The pattern of the game was set on the first series of downs when Wisconsin was unable to move against the charging Northwestern line and had to punt. The Wilcats fumbled on their second running play, but quickly regained the ball on a bobble recovery by center Larry Onesti on his 17.

Northwestern then roared down field in 19 plays, Stock banging over right guard for the final three yards and then booting the first of his three extra points.

The Wildcats needed only five plays to go 46 yards for another touchdown. On the second play of the second period, Ray Purdin took a pitchout, turned left end and galloped 17 yards into the end zone.

Missouri Near Ticket To Bowl

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI)—Missouri halfback Norm Beal scampered 55 yards for a third-quarter touchdown Saturday to help the Tigers defeat the Colorado Buffaloes, 16-6, and take a long stride toward the Big Eight Conference championship and an Orange Bowl berth.

Missouri spotted Colorado a 6-0 lead in the first quarter when a 38-yard pass from Gale Weidner to Gary Benson clicked for a touchdown.

But the Tigers stormed from behind, scoring in the third period on a two-yard run by halfback Donnie Smith, adding their second touchdown on Beal's 55-yard punt return.

Missouri sealed the victory with a fourth-quarter safety.

The win gave Missouri, the nation's fourth-ranked team in this week's United Press International poll, an 8-0 record for the year and a 5-0 mark in Big Eight Conference play.

The loss snapped a five-game Colorado winning streak and dumped the Buffs into third place in the conference with a 4-1 record.

Colorado marched for a touchdown the first time it got the ball, with fullback Chuck Weiss and Weidner pacing the drive.

Weiss carried six times for 31 yards in the 79-yard strike to Henson in the end zone. Jerry Hillebrand's kick for extra point was no good.

Missouri put the game out of reach late in the fourth quarter when Danny LaRose tackled Weidner in the Colorado end zone for a safety.

Southerners Are Stunned By Ark. State

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — End Tot Bentley grabbed his second touchdown pass of the day with only 15 seconds remaining in the game to lead Arkansas State to a 14-13 upset of Mississippi Southern Saturday.

Bentley's second tally, with quarterback Jim McMurray on the throwing end, capped a double comeback by the Indians, who were behind most of the game.

Mississippi Southern took a 7-0 halftime lead in the south defensive battle after it moved 82 yards in 24 plays to score with 4:45 left in the half. Windell Campbell carried the final yard and a kick by Billy Larson added the extra point.

Early in the final period, Arkansas State's John Coffey recovered a Mississippi fumble on the visitors' 43-yard line. Twelve plays later McMurray flipped a 16-yarder to Bentley for a touchdown, then tossed another pass to the big end for the conversion and an 9-7 lead.

Mississippi Southern's Tommy Morrow returned the kickoff 62 yards to the Arkansas State 28, then on the fourth play from scrimmage Don Fuell scampered the final eight yards to score. A running try for the points was halted with the Mississippians leading 13-8.

Arkansas State outgained the Mississippians 229 to 218 yards, racking up 113 through the air.

Lakers Snuff Out Syracuse Rally To Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Krebs arched in the winning basket with five seconds remaining Saturday as the Los Angeles Lakers snuffed out a last-period Syracuse rally and edged the Nationals 112-110 in a nationally televised National Basketball Association game.

Syracuse, largely on the efforts of Barney Cable, Larry Costello and Joe Roberts, had closed a 10-point deficit and forged ahead 109-101 with 2:26 remaining.

The Lakers then put on a minute-long display of fireworks of their own as Jerry West scored five points and Elgin Baylor, on his way to a 40-point performance, dropped in two field goals to tie it 110-110.

The Lakers then stalled until five seconds remained and Krebs tossed in his long one from the sidelines.

Rally Pays Off For Connecticut

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The University of Connecticut struck for three last period scores Saturday in pulling a mild football upset by beating Buffalo 31-24.

Danny Gervasi broke away on a 46-yard touchdown sprint in the last period for a lead the UConns never relinquished.

Dayton Beaten By Holy Cross

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Holy Cross' Crusaders marched 76 yards for a touchdown the first time they got their hands on the ball and went on to crush Dayton 36-6 Saturday.

IN WEST MONROE

Junior Bowlers Tangle Tuesday

The first annual Optimist Junior Bowl football game, featuring teams of Ouachita Parish Junior High of Monroe and West Monroe Junior High will be played Tuesday night at the West Monroe High football field.

Principal Gene Hardin of co-sponsoring West Monroe Junior High said last night four bands will conduct a pregame contest, beginning at 7 o'clock. Gametime for the gridders is 8 p.m.

Participating bands will be Ouachita Junior, Lee Junior, and Jefferson Junior, all of Monroe, and West Monroe Junior High.

Trophies will be awarded the winning band and the winning football team.

The Ouachita Junior Cubs and WMJH Colonels met last week in a regular season game with the Colonels emerging with a 13-7 victory and the Northeast Louisiana Football League junior championship. Co-sponsoring Optimist Club members feel their close rivalry makes them a natural for a rematch in the Junior Bowl.

All proceeds of the game will be used by Optimists to support projects for boys, and tickets are on advanced sale by members of participating bands, football teams, and Optimist Club members.

Kansas Finds Cornhuskers Easy, 31 To 0

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Quarterback John Hadl sparked Kansas to an easy 31-0 victory over Nebraska Saturday, and the Jayhawks moved to second place in the Big Eight Conference football race.

Nebraska never got closer than 23 yards from the Kansas goal. Hadl, the league's leading passer, ran for one touchdown and threw for another. He completed nine of eleven passes for 69 yards and rushed for 43 more although he played only about half the game.

Kansas rushed for 196 yards and passed for 102 while the Cornhuskers could gain only 26 yards on the ground and 23 through the air.

John Suder of Kansas broke a school record that has stood since 1913 by kicking the seventh field goal of his varsity career.

Kansas tackle Larry Lausch recovered a fumble on the Cornhuskers' 21-yard line in the first quarter and it led to a 31-yard field goal by Suder four plays later.

The Jayhawks drove 44 yards for their first touchdown in the second quarter. A bad pass from center had allowed Kansas to get the ball in Husker territory. Fullback Doyle Schick capped the drive with a one-yard plunge. Suder converted for a 10-0 lead.

Kansas sparked by Hadl's fine passing and the running of halfback Hugh Smith drove 86 yards for its second touchdown late in the first half. Hadl swept end for three yards for the touchdown, and Suder again converted.

Hadl passed three yards to end Sam Simpson in the third quarter to cap a 55-yard drive with a touchdown. Halfback Fred Sukaty scored another in the fourth on a two-yard sweep that finished a 62-yard march. Suder converted after both scores and Kansas reserves took over full time.

Wolves Use Kicker, Turn Back Deacons

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—The previously untested toe of North Carolina State tackle Nick Maravich decided the issue Saturday as the Wolfpack gained a 14-12 Atlantic Coast Conference football victory over Wake Forest.

The heralded pitching battle between quarterback's Roman Gabbriel of State and Norman Snead of Wake Forest ended in a virtual stalemate.

Maravich, a husky Junior, was called on to kick for the first time this season and converted after both N. C. State touchdowns in the second quarter. Gabriel had sneaked over from a foot out for the first score and pitched an eight-yarder to end Jim Tapp for the second.

Snead's superb passing rallied Wake Forest for touchdowns in the third and fourth periods after the Deacons had been soundly trounced in the first half. He threw 22 and 34-yard bullets to end Bobby Allen for the scores.

Snead's conversion attempts in the third period hit the goal post and the Deacons had to go for the two-pointer after the fourth period score in an effort to gain a tie. But for the 16th time in a row, they failed when Snead's pass to Allen was batted down by quarterback Tom Dellinger.

Gabriel, fifth ranking passer in the nation, completed 15 of 25 passes for 140 yards and added 69 additional yards running. Snead hit 16 of 27 passes for 237 yards and lost 16 yards rushing.

The victory gave State a 4-1 ACC record, leaving the Wolfpack a half game behind Duke.

Golf Pros To Help Dedicate LSU Course

BATON ROUGE, La. (Special) — Three top professional golfers will be on hand to help Louisiana State University officially dedicate its on-campus golf course Thursday, November 10 at 1:30 p.m.

Bert Weaver, and Jay and Lionel Hebert, all former Tiger golfers, will take part in exhibition golf matches following the dedication ceremonies, LSU Athletic Director Jim Corbett said Saturday.

Miss Ellen R. Jolly, chairwoman of the Dedication Committee, said that invitations had been issued to five other LSU graduates prominent in professional golf — Gardner Dickinson, Freddie Haas, Johnny Pott, Dale Morey and Earl Stewart. While tournament commitments may prevent some of these golfers from attending, Miss Jolly said that Freddie Haas may also be available to join Weaver and the Hebert brothers in the exhibitions.

LSU's 18-hole course, designed for use by its students, faculty and staff, was constructed at a cost of over $250,000 and is located on land south and southwest of Tiger Stadium. Fred Knight, newly appointed co-coach of the Tiger golf team, serves as manager of the golf course.

Air Force In 36-6 Triumph

DENVER (AP)—Halfback Bob McDonough's 76-yard punt return for a touchdown featured Air Force's 22-point burst in the second quarter on the way to a 36-6 football victory over Denver Saturday.

Halfback Mike Quinlan scored three touchdowns on runs of 12 and 2 yards and a 6-yard pass as the Cadets snapped a four-game losing streak.

Quinlan's scoring gave him the Air Force career record of 19 touchdowns, two more than the previous mark.

McDonough, weighing only 140 pounds, caught the punt running backwards over his shoulder on the AF 24, darted to the sidelines and, behind perfect blocking, ran untouched for the touchdown—longest punt return in the Academy's five-year varsity history.

USL Catches Pensacola's Navy, 20-14

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Injury-riddled University of Southwestern Louisiana staved off a fourth stanza rally by Pensacola Navy Saturday to defeat the service team, 20-14.

Pensacola quarterback John Arms, the top signal caller for USL last season, passed for all his teams points and threatened again in the final minutes.

Arms hit end Rudy Lattimore for 21 yards and a touchdown in the second quarter and tossed seven yards to Tom Peters for a marker early in the final period. Arms heaved to Tony Less for the conversion.

USL raced to a 13-0 lead in the first quarter when tackle Tony Ledet picked up a fumble to set up a touchdown and his brother, tackle Winston Ledet, recovered another fumble to again pave the way for another marker.

MACK SENNETT

Famed Producer Dies At Age 76

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mack Sennett, 76, the producer who gave the world a thousand pictures and a million laughs, died Saturday.

Sennett — the brain behind the brainless Keystone Cops, the first man to capture the genius of Charlie Chaplin with a camera, the slapstick merchant who made throwing pies look more enjoyable than eating them — passed away at the Motion Picture Country Home in nearby Woodland Hills. He had been ill a long time.

Sennett, who discovered perhaps more talent than anyone before or after him, underwent surgery for a kidney disorder a year ago. Friday he had another operation and appeared to be recovering nicely.

His agent, Reece Halsey, said Sennett was dictating the plot for a Broadway play a half-hour before he was wheeled into the operating room.

Sennett had lived in retirement in Hollywood many years before entering the home. He made his last picture about 25 years ago. The advent of the double-feature had diminished the need for two-reel comedies and the arrival of sound turned the comedians in Hollywood to serious subjects.

But while he worked, he worked at the faster-than-life pace of the fractic characters in his speeded- ties. Sennett produced at most exactly 1,000 movies, dozens early films.

Among others on the vast roster of stars who appeared in early Sennett films: Wallace Berry, Gloria Swanson, Harold Lloyd, Buster Keaton, Marie Dressler, Hal Roach, Eddie Foy, Louise Fazenda and Bebe Daniels. In his later films were such stars as Bing Crosby and the late Carole Lombard.

In uniform as Keystone Cops were Charlie Chase, Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, Billy Gilbert, Slim Summerville, Edgar Kennedy and Ben Turpin.

There have been various calculations as to Sennett's age, but the International Motion Picture Almanac gives 1884 as the year of his birth.

He was born in Denville, Quebec, and his real name was Michael Sinnott. In 1906, after the family had moved to Connecticut, he changed his name and took a fling at the Broadway stage.

He landed several bit parts, appeared in some musical comedies and operettas. In 1909 he entered the infant motion picture industry at Biograph Studios in New York. He was a student of D. W. Griffith and came to California with him in 1910 as a director. Later he organized his own company in New York and moved it to Los Angeles. He appeared in some of his own films.

An Englishman named Charles Chaplin was 24 when Sennett gave him a job at $25 a week. In later years Sennett called Chaplin the greatest comedian of them all.

Sennett, whose comedy genius brought to the screen the art perfected at those who at times poorly hours of the early W. C. hailed Chaplin for his politics

Russian Schools Topic For Talk At Northwestern

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — Dr. Hoyt H. London, professor of industrial education at the University of Missouri, will be at Northwestern State College, Nov. 17-18 to speak on the Russian educational system.

On Thursday, Nov. 17, London, who was a recent visitor behind the Iron Curtain to inspect Russian schools, will address the Northwest Louisiana School Administrators Club at 2 p.m. in the Little Theatre.

At an all-college assembly Friday, Nov. 18 at 10 a.m. London will speak to the NSC student body and faculty. The assembly will be in the Fine Arts Auditorium.

That night at 7 p.m. he will be guest speaker at the Industrial Arts and Vocational Banquet in St. Denis cafeteria.

With Mark Nichols, state director of vocational education for Utah, London reported on his inspection of the Soviet schools in an article entitled "The Truth about Soviet Education" published in the July 4, '60 edition of "U. S. News and World Report."

London and Nichols uncovered facts about Russian education which explode beliefs about the system. Such questions as "Do all Russian students have to meet certain national standards? Pass nation - wide tests?" are answered in an enlightening and encouraging manner. These topics London will expound upon in his lectures at NSC.

A widely ecognized authority in the field of industrial and vocational education, London is being brought here by the NSC department of industrial education and Pi Chapter of Iota Lambda Sigma, professional fraternity.

IN 27 STATES

Votes To Decide Governor Races

WASH NGTON (AP)—Twenty-seven states will elect governors next Tuesday, with the Republicans hopeful of faring better than they have in recent elections.

Of the governorships up for decision, 14 now are held by Democrats and 13 by Republicans.

Gubernatorial elections are of prime interest to political parties because of the patronage—jobs for the party faithful—that goes with victory.

Michigan, Illinois and Kansas holds the chief national interest.

In Kansas, George Docking, who in 1956 became the first Democrat ever to be elected governor of that state, is seeking a third two-year term. His Republican opponent is State Atty. Gen. John Anderson. Prohibitionist J. J. Steele also is running.

For the first time in 12 years, G. Mennen Williams is not running for governor of Michigan.

After an unprecedented six consecutive two-year terms as governor Williams called it quits and shifted his political hopes to a possible place in the president's Cabinet in the event of a national Democratic victory.

Paul D. Bagwell, who made a strong race against Williams two years ago, again is the Republican nominee. His Democratic opponent is Lt. Gov. John B. Swainson, who has powerful supporters in organized labor.

Bagwell has been on the faculty of Michigan State University since 1948.

In Illinois, Otto Kerner, a Chicago judge, is given a good chance of thwarting the third-term ambitions of Republican Gov. William G. Stratton.

Stratton took over the Illinois statehouse in 1952 when Adlai E. Stevenson quit to run for president on the Democratic ticket.

Of the 14 incumbent governors seeking re-election, eight are Democrats and six Republians.

In the last two elections involving governorships the Democrats scored a net gain of seven.

Four of the governors who figured in overturns in 1959 are seeking re-election. They are Paul Fannin of Arizona and Christopher Del Sesto in Rhode Island, Republicans, and John Burroughs of New Mexico and Ralph Herseth of South Dakota, Democrats.

Other states electing governors are Arkansas, where Orval E. Faubus is seeking a fourth term; Delaware, Florida, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

Here's How YOU Can Help Louisiana Grow!

Two proposed constitutional amendments, 12 and 13 on the ballot, deserve your support when you vote Tuesday.

These amendments are essential to the maintenance and growth of Louisiana's foreign trade . . . vital to the continued industrial development of our state.

Although both proposals are tax exemption measures, neither deprives the state or any local government of any revenue they now enjoy. But, should the amendments fail to pass, both state and local governments stand to lose revenue from declining business. And the people face the loss of existing jobs and jobs created by economic growth.

What are these amendments?

Amendment No. 12 grants freedom from the inventory (property) tax to goods and commodities, with certain exceptions, imported or exported through Louisiana's port cities.

Amendment No. 13 exempts from this property tax interstate shipments moving in or through Louisiana.

Both amendments are designed to protect Louisiana's competitive position in relation to neighboring states in foreign trade and in developing new industry.

Why are these amendments necessary?

For many years, imports and exports had been held to be exempt from taxation. In 1959, however, the U. S. Supreme Court in an Ohio case ruled states could tax some commodities. Based on this decision, the Louisiana Tax Commission in 1960 announced a policy of imposing such a tax.

Following the Supreme Court's ruling, Mississippi passed legislation exempting imports and exports from taxation. And Texas and Alabama announced they would not impose such a tax.

Louisiana's port cities of Lake Charles, New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Morgan City must remain competitive with those of Texas, Mississippi and Alabama. They cannot if Louisiana adds an import-export tax.

How is Louisiana's industrial development affected?

The tax these amendments would prohibit would apply to raw materials imported into Louisiana for processing in Louisiana plants. The increased cost of producing manufactured goods would seriously damage the state's competitive position, would hinder expansion of existing industry and would discourage establishment of new job-producing plants.

Are these proposed amendments controversial?

They are not! They are supported by business and labor, civic and trade groups, all political factions. They contain recommendations of state and local tax authorities to protect the state, cities and parishes from loss of revenue. They passed in the Legislature with only one dissenting vote, and the senator who cast that vote is now supporting them.

Are all imported goods exempted from taxation?

No. The exemption does not apply to manufactured goods, or to imported raw materials of the same kind produced in Louisiana. Nor does it apply to imported goods held by merchants as part of their stock for sale at retail.

FIELD GOAL DECIDES GAME

Army Cashes In On Every Break To Upset Syracuse

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, N.Y. (AP) — A fighting Army team, which pounced on every break, handed national champion Syracuse its second straight defeat 9-6 Saturday in a fierce football game decided by a 29-yard field goal by quarterback Tom Blanda.

The game, played before a crowd of 66,000 at Yankee Stadium, ended in wild hysteria with Army on the Syracuse 1-foot line after a pass interception by Roger Zailskas.

With Syracuse still threatening in the fading minutes, Zailskas plucked down a pass thrown by Syracuse's Tom Gilburg on a fake punt formation and took it from the Syracuse 45 to the 14. Army pounded down to the 1-foot line before time ran out.

With an iron man fullback, Al Rushatz, playing a powerful role, Amry went 50 yards in the secon period to set up the field goal by Blanda.

In the third period, the aroused Cadets went 68 yards on 16 plays, using up more than eight minutes of the clock, in scoring their touchdown. Sub quarterback Dick Eckert stole across from the 2 on a fake and keep play.

Outcharged through most of the regionally televised game, Syracuse stormed back for a touchdown early in the fourth period on the pounding hoffs of Art Baker and Ernie Davis.

The Orangemen went 81 yards after getting the ball on a pass interception and scored when Dick Easterly hit end Ken Erickson with a 15-yard pass into the end zone.

It was the second straight setback for Syracuse, which had a 16-game winning streak snapped by Pitt last week and it was the sixth victory in eight games for Army, an 8-point underdog.

STURGEON POWER DRIVES

Kentucky Batters Vanderbilt, 27-0

By JOHN G. DIETRICH

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)—Halfback Charlie Sturgeon's shattering power runs sent Kentucky into an early lead and the Wildcat defensive unit battered Vanderbilt into a 27-0 submission Saturday.

Showing precision and coherence for the first time this season, Kentucky used the sophomore passing combination of quarterback Jerry Woolum to end Tom Hutchinson to tip Vandy off balance on a flawless 74-yard touchdown driver from the opening kickoff in the Southeastern Conference same.

Woolum twice connected with Hutchinson for 11-yard gains on third down situtations as Kentucky moved from its 26th to the Vandy 28th.

Then Surgeon took off around left end, leaving three Vandy tacklers strewn on the turf before he was finally brought down four yards from a touchdown. But he scored on the next play in a burst over tackle behind fullback Jim Poynter's blocking. Clark Mayfield converted.

It soon became apparent that the one touchdown might be enough, as a Kentucky defense led by tackle Wayne Dixon smothered the Vanderbilt attack. Vandy wound up with a net loss of one yard rushing and gained only nine yards by passing the first half.

That stinginess on defense set up Kentucky's second touchdown drive late in the half, a 59-yard affair keyed by halfback Gary Steward's 30-yard run over guard to the Vandy 18. Fullback Gary Cochran drove over from eight yards out and Mayfield again converted.

The second half pattern was much the same, with Vanderbilt unable to cross Midfield until a freak pass interception by tackle Wayne Hall moved the Commodores to the Kentucky 14 early in the final period. The Kentucky line quickly squelched that threat.

Kentucky scored twice in the third period, once on a 15-yard slice off tackle by Calvin Bird and again near the close of the period on a one-yard buck by fullback Jim Fisher.

That final score was set up when center John Mutchler intercepted a pass by Vandy's sophomore quarterback Hank Lesesne, on the Commodore 25. It was one of four interceptions by Kentucky defenders.

Score by Periods

Kentucky	7	7	13	0	—27
Vanderbilt	0	0	0	0	—0

Scoring:
Ken: Sturgeon 3 run (Mayfield kick).
Ken: Cochran 8 run (Mayfield kick).
Ken: Bird 15 run (Mayfield kick)
Ken: Fisher 1 run (kick failed).

Princeton Tags Harvard, 14-12

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP) — Princeton generated just enough scoring power Saturday to defeat Harvard 14-12 as two Harvard passes for two-point conversions were broken up. Trailing each time as Princeton scored first and Dave Gouldin kicked the extra points, Harvard twice went for the two-pointers on Terry Bartolet's passi..g and coul'dn't make them.

Former Middle Champion Chip Seriously Hurt

NEW CASTLE, Pa. (AP) — George Chipulonis, 73, known as George Chip when he held the world middleweight boxing crown, was struck and critically injured Friday night by an automobile while walking on a highway near here.

Chip suffered two broken legs, a possible skull fracture and severe cuts. He is in New Castle Hospital.

Chip won the middleweight title with a fifth round knockout of Frank Klaus in Pittsburgh in December 1913. Five months later he was dethroned by Al McCoy, who knocked him out in one round in Brooklyn.

Terriers Tie Mountaineers In Rain, 7-7

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) Boston University, picking up three yards and a clog of mud at a time, rolled 76 yards in the third quarter Saturday to gain a 7-7 tie with West Virginia in a rain soaked game.

The smallest crowd in West Virginia history—some 3,000—braved the inclement weather to see the Mountaineers winless steak extended to 13 consecutive games as the Terriers' Dick Desmarias plowed through the soft turf.

It was Desmarias, 180-pound senior, who bulled over right tackle from the West Virginia 3 to score for Boston. Quarterback Dick Farland ran the conversion but Boston was offside. Farland then kicked the game-tying point from the eight yard line.

West Virginia had scored in the first quarter when Boston punter Tom Daubney received a bad pass from center on fourth down and the Mountaineers took possession on the Terriers' 11.

Quarterback Dale Evans slashed over from the nine after he faded to pass and found no receiver. Bob Lively kicked the extra point.

The tie was the second of the season for both teams. Boston had been beaten by Penn State, Syracuse, Ohio University and Connecticut. It scored victories over Holy Cross and Massachusetts and tied George Washington.

West Virginia has not won a game since it defeated Pitt 23-15 in its 1959 homecoming. This fall the Mountaineers have lost six games while tying Richmond 6-6.

The light rain, which fell throughout the entire game, made passing perilous. However, the Terriers tried 10 passes and the Mountaineers 15.

Score by Period

Boston	0	0	7	0	—7
WVU	7	0	0	0	—7

Scoring
WVU—Evans, 9 run (Lively kick)
BU—Desmarias 3, run (D. Farland kick).

Haydon Beats Mortimer

TORQUAY, England (AP)—Ann Haydon, just back from a tennis visit to the United States, defeated Angela Mortimer 6-4, 6-2 Saturday in the finals of an indoor tourney here. Miss Mortimer had held the title six years.

Wichita Fights From Behind 2 Times At Tulsa

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Wichita's Wheatshockers fought back from behind twice Saturday to edge Tulsa 21-20 and assure themselves at least a tie for the Missouri Valley Conference championship.

Their winning touchdown came in the last three minutes after a march of 48 yards in four plays, with fullback J. R. Dumler going the last three. Bill Seigle's conversion kick provided the winning margin.

The decisive thrust which spoiled Tulsa's homecoming followed soon after an 85-yard pass play from Tulsa quarterback Jerry Keeling to end Bill Gary had broken a 14-14 tie. Bob West missed the kick—his first failure in 15 tries this season.

Wichita now can win the conference title outright with a victory over often-beaten North Texas State Nov. 19.

Rams, Raiders Win 'Y' Games

Norman Deaton's Aces tied the Tigers, 0-0; Don Milby's Rams defeated the Bears, 6-0, and Drury Bynum's Red Raiders smashed the Tornadoes, 33-0, in YMCA football games here yesterday.

Mike Weaver scored the Rams' touchdown from six yards deep. Robert DeRosa, Teddy Sutton, and Carl Brown accounted for the Red Raiders' scoring.

Brown Nips Cornell . .

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP) — Brown took the lead on a first period touchdown run and conversion kick by Ray Barry and made it stand up for a 7-6 Ivy League football victory over Cornell Saturday.

Clemson Has Plenty Punch To Trip Heels

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Clemson quarterbacks, headed by Lowndes Shingler, had a 24-0 field day against North Carolina Saturday in a satisfying homecoming. It was Clemson Coach Frank Howard's 120th career win.

Shingler passed and ran Clemson to two touchdowns: Joe Anderson guided his team to a third; and Johnny MacGoff and Don Heilig combined on a drive that resulted in a field goal.

North Carolina threatened only twice, first when it recovered a fumble at the Clemson 28 in the game's opening minutes, and gain on a 74-yard march that ended at the Clemson 20 early in the final period.

Fullback Bill McGuirt scored twice for Clemson on short plunges, and Anderson slipped around right end for 22 yards and another. Reserve guard Lon Armstrong kicked the field goal with 16 seconds left in the game with the ball p'aced down 37 yards away from the goal posts. A strong wind helped carry the ball.

Shingler completed 16 passes for 97 yardsa nd ran for 77 more for a total game offense of 174 yards.

Houston, Almost Too Late, Drops Cincinnati, 14-0

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Ken Bolin and Don Sessions led the way as the University of Houston exploded for two touchdowns in the last six minutes Saturday to defeat Cincinnati 14-0.

Until Bolin started the uprising with a 45-yard punt return, Houston had seen five fumbles and two pass interceptions aid Cincicinnati, a 26½-point underdog.

Bolin followed his punt return with a 19-yard scamper to the Cincinnati 5 and Sessions carried over two plays later from the 1.

Cincinnati fumbled the kickoff and Houston recovered on the Bearcat 28. Gene Ritch lost two yards but Sessions then hit him with a 30-yard touchdown pass.

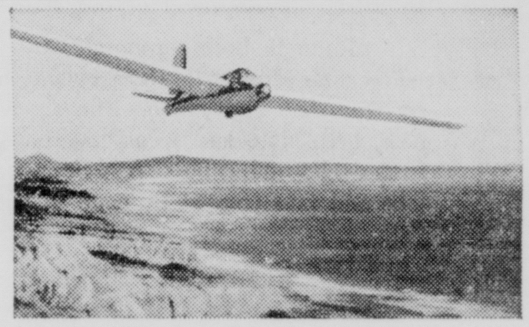
Are you smoking more now but enjoying it less?



THE MYSTERY OF AIR CURRENTS, unsolved thru the years, is being studied by West Coast Glider Champion and meteorologist, Jack Lambie. But there's no mystery about his choice of cigarettes—Camels. He says Camels are the only cigarettes he's tried that give him complete smoking satisfaction with every puff of every Camel he smokes.

MACK SENNETT

Famed Producer Dies At Age 76

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mack Sennett, 76, the producer who gave the world a thousand pictures and a million laughs, died Saturday.

Sennett — the brain behind the brainless Keystone Cops, the first man to capture the genius of Charlie Chaplin with a camera, the slapstick merchant who made throwing pies look more enjoyable than eating them — passed away at the Motion Picture Country Home in nearby Woodland Hills. He had been ill a long time.

Sennett, who discovered perhaps more talent than anyone before or after him, underwent surgery for a kidney disorder a year ago. Friday he had another operation and appeared to be recovering nicely.

His agent, Reece Halsey, said Sennett was dictating the plot for a Broadway play a half-hour before he was wheeled into the operating room.

Sennett had lived in retirement in Hollywood many years before entering the home. He made his last picture about 25 years ago. The advent of the double-feature had diminished the need for two-reel comedies and the arrival of sound turned the emphasis in Hollywood to serious subjects.

But while he worked, he worked at the faster-than-life pace of the frantic characters in his speeded-up films. Sennett produced almost exactly 1,000 movies, dozens involving the improbable adventures of those cockeyed constables, the Keystone Cops.

Sennett, whose comedic genius functioned behind a gruff facade, also brought to the screen the portly figure of the great W. C. Fields and the more delightful figures of his famous bathing beauties.

Among others on the vast roster of stars who appeared in early Sennett films: Wallace Berry, Gloria Swanson, Harold Lloyd, Buster Keaton, Marie Dressler, Hal Roach, Eddie Foy, Louise Fazenda and Bebe Daniels. In his later films were such stars as Bing Crosby and the late Carole Lombard.

In uniform as Keystone Cops were Charlie Chase, Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, Billy Gilbert, Slim Summerville, Edgar Kennedy and Ben Turpin.

There have been various calculations as to Sennett's age, but the International Motion Picture Almanac gives 1884 as the year of his birth.

He was born in Denville, Quebec, and his real name was Michael Sinnott. In 1906, after the family had moved to Connecticut, he changed his name and took a fling at the Broadway stage.

He landed several bit parts, appeared in some musical comedies and operettas. In 1909 he entered the infant motion picture industry at Biograph Studios in New York. He was a student of D. W. Griffith and came to California with him in 1910 as a director. Later he organized his own company in New York and moved it to Los Angeles. He appeared in some of his own early films.

An Englishman named Charles Chaplin was 24 when Sennett gave him a job at $125 a week. In later years Sennett called Chaplin the greatest comedian of them all and stormed at those who attacked Chaplin for his politics.

Russian Schools Topic For Talk At Northwestern

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — Dr. Hoyt H. London, professor of industrial education at the University of Missouri, will be at Northwestern State College, Nov. 17-18 to speak on the Russian educational system.

On Thursday, Nov. 17, London, who was a recent visitor behind the Iron Curtain to inspect Russian schools, will address the Northwest Louisiana School Administrators Club at 2 p.m. in the Little Theatre.

At an all-college assembly Friday, Nov. 18 at 10 a.m. London will speak to the NSC student body and faculty. The assembly will be in the Fine Arts Auditorium.

That night at 7 p.m. he will be guest speaker at the Industrial Arts and Vocational Banquet in St. Denis cafeteria.

With Mark Nichols, state director of vocational education for Utah, London reported on his inspection of the Soviet schools in an article entitled "The Truth about Soviet Education" published in the July 4, '60 edition of "U. S. News and World Report."

London and Nichols uncovered facts about Russian education which explode beliefs about the system. Such questions as "Do all Russian students have to meet certain national standards? Pass nation - wide tests?" are answered in an enlightening and encouraging manner. These topics London will expound upon in his lectures at NSC.

A widely ecognized authority in the field of industrial and vocational education, London is being brought here by the NSC department of industrial education and Pi Chapter of Iota Lambda Sigma, professional fraternity.

IN 27 STATES

Votes To Decide Governor Races

WASH NGTON (AP)—Twenty-seven states will elect governors next Tuesday, with the Republicans hopeful of faring better than they have in recent elections.

Of the governorships up for decision, 14 now are held by Democrats and 13 by Republicans.

Gubernatorial elections are of prime interest to political parties because of the patronage—jobs for the party faithful—that goes with victory.

Michigan, Illinois and Kansas holds the chief national interest.

In Kansas, George Docking, who in 1956 became the first Democrat ever to be elected governor of that state, is seeking a third two-year term. His Republican opponent is State Atty. Gen. John Anderson. Prohibitionist J. J. Steele also is running.

For the first time in 12 years, G. Mennen Williams is not running for governor of Michigan.

After an unprecedented six consecutive two-year terms as governor Williams called it quits and shifted his political hopes to a possible place in the president's Cabinet in the event of a national Democratic victory.

Paul D. Bagwell, who made a strong race against Williams two years ago, again is the Republican nominee. His Democratic opponent is Lt. Gov. John B. Swainson, who has powerful supporters in organized labor.

Bagwell has been on the faculty of Michigan State University since 1948.

In Illinois, Otto Kerner, a Chicago judge, is given a good chance of thwarting the third-term ambitions of Republican Gov. William G. Stratton.

Stratton took over the Illinois statehouse in 1952 when Adlai E. Stevenson quit to run for president on the Democratic ticket.

Of the 14 incumbent governors seeking re-election, eight are Democrats and six Republians.

In the last two elections involving governorships the Democrats scored a net gain of seven.

Four of the governors who figured in overturns in 1959 are seeking re-election. They are Paul Fannin of Arizona and Christopher Del Sesto in Rhode Island, Republicans, and John Burroughs of New Mexico and Ralph Herseth of South Dakota, Democrats.

Other states electing governors are Arkansas, where Orval E. Faubus is seeking a fourth term; Delaware, Florida, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

Heir Leaves Hospital

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Six-day-old Crown Prince Reza left the hospital where he was born and went home to the palace Saturday. Thousands cheered as the baby and his parents, the Shah of Iran and Queen Farah, made the three-mile trip.

Here's How YOU Can Help Louisiana Grow!

Two proposed constitutional amendments, 12 and 13 on the ballot, deserve your support when you vote Tuesday.

These amendments are essential to the maintenance and growth of Louisiana's foreign trade . . . vital to the continued industrial development of our state.

Although both proposals are tax exemption measures, neither deprives the state or any local government of any revenue they now enjoy. But, should the amendments fail to pass, both state and local governments stand to lose revenue from declining business. And the people face the loss of existing jobs and jobs created by economic growth.

What are these amendments?

Amendment No. 12 grants freedom from the inventory (property) tax to goods and commodities, with certain exceptions, imported or exported through Louisiana's port cities.

Amendment No. 13 exempts from this property tax interstate shipments moving in or through Louisiana.

Both amendments are designed to protect Louisiana's competitive position in relation to neighboring states in foreign trade and in developing new industry.

Why are these amendments necessary?

For many years, imports and exports had been held to be exempt from taxation. In 1959, however, the U. S. Supreme Court in an Ohio case ruled states could tax some commodities. Based on this decision, the Louisiana Tax Commission in 1960 announced a policy of imposing such a tax.

Following the Supreme Court's ruling, Mississippi passed legislation exempting imports and exports from taxation. And Texas and Alabama announced they would not impose such a tax.

Louisiana's port cities of Lake Charles, New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Morgan City must remain competitive with those of Texas, Mississippi and Alabama. They cannot if Louisiana adds an import-export tax.

How is Louisiana's industrial development affected?

The tax these amendments would prohibit would apply to raw materials imported into Louisiana for processing in Louisiana plants. The increased cost of producing manufactured goods would seriously damage the state's competitive position, would hinder expansion of existing industry and would discourage establishment of new job-producing plants.

Are these proposed amendments controversial?

They are not! They are supported by business and labor, civic and trade groups, all political factions. They contain recommendations of state and local tax authorities to protect the state, cities and parishes from loss of revenue. They passed in the Legislature with only one dissenting vote, and the senator who cast that vote is now supporting them.

Are all imported goods exempted from taxation?

No. The exemption does not apply to manufactured goods, or to imported raw materials of the same kind produced in Louisiana. Nor does it apply to imported goods held by merchants as part of their stock for sale at retail.

Grace Episcopal Church Is Setting For Comegys-Hemphill Nuptial Vows

Grace Episcopal Church was the setting for solemnization of Nuptial Eucharist which united in marriage Miss Elizabeth Miller Hemphill and The Reverend David Pierson Comegys Jr., on Thursday, November 3 at 8 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Nathaniel Hemphill, 1302 Emerson Street, Monroe, and Rev. Comegys is the son of Dr. and Mrs. David Comegys Sr., of Harts Island Road, Shreveport.

Twin arrangements of red Happiness roses in brass altar containers and candles provided the setting at the altar for the exchange of vows.

The solemn procession of acolytes, choir, priests, sacred ministers and bishops entered the church to an organ processional by George M. Kreamer, organist and choirmaster of the Episcopal church of the Good Shepherd, Lake Charles. The maid of honor and bride entered to the strains of Trumpet Voluntary by Purcell.

The Solemnization of the Sacrament of Holy Matrimony began from the Chancel steps with the reading of the Bethrothal by the Reverend A. Donald Davies, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Monroe. The bridal party then moved to the foot of the sanctuary for the Espousal and Pontifical Blessing by the Right Reverend Girault M. Jones, D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Louisiana.

"Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven," was sung by choir and congregation as the Introit before the Choral Celebration of the Nuptial Eucharist began. The Right Reverend Iveson B. Noland, D.D., Suffragan Bishop of Louisiana was the celebrant. The Reverend Robert John Dodwell, curate of the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, Lake Charles, served as deacon and The Reverend Richard W. Wilson, priest-in-charge of St. David's Church, Rayville, was sub-deacon. The Reverend Harvey Marcoux, curate of Grace Church, Monroe, acted as chaplain to the bishop.

John Blackman and George Smelser served at the altar. Crucifers were Dan Keith and Chris Eby and Torchbearers were Mark Davies, Newby McNeil, Fred Limbocker of Lake Charles, and J. Floyd Stone III.

The Missa Marialis, an ancient Eucharistic plainsong setting, was sung as the choral part of the Nuptial Eucharist by an all male choir, composed largely of visiting Diocesan priests. "O Perfect Love" was sung at the Offertory. Holy Communion was administered to the bride and groom by the Suffragan Bishop. Purcell's Trumpet Tune was played as the Recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory luxurious silk mist, embellished with pearl embroidered Alencon lace. The empire gown fashioned on princess lines, featured a scalloped neckline and long tapering sleeves. Appliqued motifs of lace paneled the flared bell shaped skirt with self fabric roses adorning the sweeping train. Her tiered veil of ivory imported silk illusion fell from a coronet of lace and seed pearls and she carried a cascade arrangement of white bridal roses.

Miss Dorothy Anne Hemphill, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and her only attendant. She wore a gown of pure silk chiffon in Romance blue designed with scoop neckline, cap sleeves and fitted bodice. A hand-draped cummerbund encircled the waist, accenting the full shirred skirt. She also wore a low crowned hat of matching Romance blue chiffon and carried a cascade bouquet of red Happiness roses.

Dr. Comegys attended his son as best man. Serving as ushers were James Edward Knighton Jr., Shreveport; the Reverend Harold R. Bott, and David Cross, both of Lake Charles; Francis Randall, David McConnell and Dr. William Fowler, all of Shreveport.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Hemphill selected a gown of white imported Chantilly lace over Parchment taffeta, styled with a square neck, fitted bodice, bracelet length sleeves and scalloped bouffant skirt. Parchment velvet trimmed the waist and her corsage was of white Japhet orchids. Mrs. Comegys, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of slipper satin in Parchment color, styled with slightly flared skirt. The bodice with round neckline and brief sleeves, was jeweled with pearls and bugle beads and she wore a matching net hat, embellished with jewels. Her corsage was also of Japhet orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at Bayou DeSiard Country Club. A massive arrangement of white stock and carnations in a silver and crystal epergne adorned the entrance hall and the guest book table held a white memory candle, scented with lily of the valley.

Two serving tables at opposite ends of the large reception room held identical cupid figurines holding cut glass bowls filled with white stock and carnations. Pairs of five-branched silver candelabra flanked the centerpieces. The wedding cake was served from another table which centered the wall opposite the doorway. The all-white motif was repeated in the decor.

Alternating at the punch bowls were Mrs. George Hemphill, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Morgan Simonton, Mrs. Edward Hayward Jr., and Mrs. Harriet Demmary, all of Monroe, Mrs. Walter Colquitt, and Mrs. Jan Garber, both aunts of the bridegroom, Mrs. James R. Nowery and Mrs. Edward Knighton, all of Shreveport.

Mrs. Winnie Cole and Mrs. Jack Masur served at the cake table. Guests were met in the foyer by Mrs. Harry Frazer Jr. and Mrs. John Eby and the bride's book was presided over by Mrs. Charles Cozean and Mrs. Edward Cromwell. Others assisting in serving cake and punch were Miss Bennie Grant, Miss Merrie Jo Simonton, Miss Gay Demmary, Miss Malisse Mapp, Miss Lynda Eby, Miss Peggy Pierce, Miss Carol Cole, Miss Linda Rogers, Mrs. Thomas Brakefield, Mrs. Richard Crowe, Mrs. Floyd Stone Jr., Mrs. Barley Graat and Mrs. Richard Pierce.

After a wedding trip to Miami, Florida, Nassau and New York City, the couple will be at home at 3857 Greenway Place in Shreveport. For travel the bride wore a mauve Italian tweed dressmaker suit, with matching silk blouse and a multiple strand necklace of lavender crystals. Her fitted half hat was of purple with other accessories of black and she wore a white Japhet orchid.

MRS. THOMAS LEON WHITTEN

New Jersey Home Planned By Leon Whitten, Bride

Of interest in the area is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Rose Marie Bianco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Bianco of Rahway, New Jersey, to Thomas Leon Whitten, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Whitten of Start, La.

The ceremony was performed at St. Mark's Church in Rahway on Saturday, October 22 with Rev. Charles F. Buttner officiating. A reception followed in the Winfield Community Center.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a waltz length gown of white Chantilly lace over slipper satin, fashioned with a Sabrina neckline and long fitted sleeves. A wide satin cummerbund accented the waist and her chapel length veil of tulle cascaded from a pearl-studded lace pileus. Her bouquet was of white roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Osare Polidore of Hillside, N. J., and Miss Rosalie Rosky of Rahway were attendants for the bride. They wore identical gowns of orchid satin in ballerina length. Miss Delores Render, the flower girl, was also attired in orchid satin.

Serving as best man was William Bizirb of Clark, N. J., and ushers were Edward and Henry Borowitz of Clark, David Rozak and Carl Bianco, of Rahway.

Following a wedding trip to Atlantic City, the couple has established a home in Linden, N. J.

The bride graduated from Rahway high school and is now employed in Linden. Mr. Whitten, a graduate of Start high school, is employed at Metuchen, N. J.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Whitten, was among the wedding guests.

Carr-Rushing Wedding To Be Holiday Event

Mr. and Mrs. Z. Z. Rushing of Natchez, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Frankie Bell to Ferrell DeVan Carr Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferrel DeVan Carr of Natchez.

Miss Rushing is a senior at Natchez high school. Mr. Carr, a graduate of Natchez high school, is at present a student at Mississippi State University in Starkville.

Dinner-Dance Held By Knights Of Columbus

Highland Park Country Club was the setting for a dinner-dance held last night by the Knights of Columbus of West Monroe.

Approximately 40 couples, including officers and members of the organization and their wives, attended the Saturday night event.

Robert G. Swan served as master of ceremonies and following dinner a check for $1,000 was presented to the pastor of St. Paschal's Church, Father Vitus, as a contribution to the building fund. The presentation was made by Norman Many, Grand Knight of the Council.

The Dukes trio played for dancing following dinner.

Committees in charge included arrangements, Jack Millette, Robert G. Swan, Adam Priou and Dr. Walter Krone and reservations, John Griffin and Manning Kemp.

Betty L. Gray Mr. McCehee Plan Nuptials

MONROE MORNING WORLD

November, 6

NOVEMBER 24 is the date chosen for the wedding of Miss Joella Marie McCleary and Billy Lynn McGraw, whose engagement is announced today by the parents of the bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Leland McCleary of Monroe. Mr. McGraw is the son of James A. McGraw of Winnsboro and Mrs. Ralph Amos of Crowville. The vows will be exchanged in Jesus the Good Shepherd Catholic Church.

CITY VISITORS are Mrs. Pat B. Collins and daughter, Julia Claire of Houston, Texas, who are guests in the home of Mrs. Collins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vance J. Rhodes in West Monroe. Saturday the group attended the LSU vs South Carolina game at Baton Rouge, where they were joined by Mr. Collins.

At left: A CHRISTMAS DAY wedding is planned by Miss Sandra Lynn Burford and Charles Ray McCullen, who will be married December 25 at 4 p.m. in Monroe. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. L. N. Larche, Monroe and B. G. Burford, Bradenton, Fla. and her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd E. McCullen of Simsboro.

At right: ANNOUNCEMENT of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Nancy Lucile Jacks of Ruston to Kenneth Lee Williams, Shreveport, is made today by Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Jacks, Ruston, father and stepmother of the future bride. Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Carnie L. Williams of Shreveport. The wedding will be an event of December 20 in Southside Baptist church at Ruston.

JOYCE LaFRAN BARNETTE

Couple Sets Christmas Day Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Lyvern Barnette of Crossett, Ark., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Joyce La Fran to Arthur Leslie Seamans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Seamans of Grafton, New Hampshire.

The wedding will be an event of Christmas Day and will be solemnized in the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Barnette is an honor graduate of Crossett high school. Mr. Seamans was graduated from the University of New Hampshire and received a master's degree in Forestry from Yale University. He is now associated with the U. S. Forest Service at Pierce, Idaho.

Planning Swiss Steak

Want good Swiss steak? Choose chuck or round beef that is one or two inches thick. For extra flavor use stewed tomatoes instead of regular canned tomatoes for the liquid needed during the braising.

Cologne Offers Pick-Me-Up To Good Grooming

Cologne and perfume can be as important to good grooming as your make-up requisites. Most people like to be around someone who is wearing a pleasant fragrance, and the user always feel fresher and more glamorous.

Many women, however, feel that wearing a perfume or cologne during the day at home or at work is out of place. This is not so, according to beauty authorities, especially if an appropriate, light scented fragrance is worn. Besides giving you that well-groomed feeling, a fragrance can give you a mental and physical "pick-me-up."

For an added lift during the day, refresh the scent with extra applications at midmorning and afternoon. If you are at work all day, carry a purse dispenser of cologne or perfume in your handbag.

Good For Frying

Some cooks like to dip chicken pieces into undiluted evaporated milk and then roll in seasoned flour before frying.

Six Couples Entertain At Hors d'Oeuvres Party In Lotus Club Saturday

Outstanding event of the weekend was an hors d'oeuvres supper given by six local couples, when they entertained at the second and final in a series of parties, highlighting the social season.

Hosts for the gala event held at the Lotus Club last night were Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bernstein Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kirkpatrick Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Jesse McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Roy B. Liuzza and Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Downing.

All white arrangements of Fuji chrysanthemums, stock and gladioli and white candles profusely decorated the lounge where guests were received between the hours of 7:30 until 9 and 9 until 11 p.m.

Large antique urns filled with yellow and bronze chrysanthemums interspersed with green grapes flanked the center columns in the dining room, which were encircled with the serving tables. Central decor for the table here was a three-tiered crystal hurricane holding green grapes, yellow lemons and green limes, arranged pyramid fashion.

Brass and copper accessories keynoted the game room where the serving table was centered with brass scales, on which were similar arrangements of the yellow and green citrus fruits and chrysanthemums. Two twisted brass candelabra completely entwined with tan fuji chrysanthemums completed the setting.

For the occasion Mrs. Hudson was wearing a black chiffon cocktail dress, designed with a full skirt. A gold brocade after-five frock was the choice of Mrs. Bernstein, while Mrs. Liuzza wore black chiffon over beige taffeta. Mrs. Kirkpatrick's beige raw silk with black flock dot was styled with a strapless bodice and bouffant skirt. The fashionable creation worn by Mrs. Downing featured a long-sleeved black wool top, slit to the waist in back, with a beige and black silk chiffon skirt. Mrs. McDonald wore a two piece ensemble which combined a jeweled white satin blouse with black velvet skirt.

Approximately 700 guests were invited to the gala affair.

Events Planned For Woman's Exchange Here

A report on the month's progress and activities was given at the October meeting of the Woman's Exchange held Monday afternoon at 520 South Grand Street.

During October the Exchange was host to the Town and Country Garden Club and staged an exhibit of crafts at the Art Festival in Columbia.

Plans are now underway to present an outstanding speaker in the field of arts and crafts at the Exchange in the near future. Date will be announced.

Members present for the meeting were Mrs. C. T. Munholland, Mrs. Prentis Gray, Mrs. John Sherrouse Sr., Mrs. Walter Shattuck, Mrs. Scott Hamilton, Mrs. Robert Layton, Mrs. Smith Stevenson, Mrs. A. S. Oliver, Mrs. A. A. Winters, Mrs. Thomas Pitt, Mrs. Shelby Meek, Mrs. Grayson Guthrie, Mrs. David Garrett Sr., Mrs. O. N. McNeil, Mrs. G. A. Sherrouse Study Group Discusses Nutrition Need

"Nutrition As It Affects Our Children," was the topic for the Sherrouse Parent-Teacher Association study-discussion group which met last Wednesday morning at the school.

The discussion was led by Miss Marlene Bond, regional nutritionist for the Louisiana State Health Department, who was introduced by Mrs. W. W. Hathorn, chairman of the study-discussion committee.

Miss Bond emphasized how to recognize a well nourished child and requisites to make a child well nourished. Charts showing recommended diatary allowances and foods supplying these needs were displayed. Different and nutritious methods of preparing foods were discussed.

Literature, prepared by the Louisiana Health Department, including a booklet, "What Shall I Eat and Why," was distributed to those present.

The empire gown fashioned on princess lines, featured a scalloped neckline and long tapering sleeves. Appliqued motifs of lace paneled the flared bell shaped skirt with self fabric roses adorning the sweeping train. Her tiered veil of ivory imported silk illusion fell from a coronet of lace and seed pearls and she carried a cascade arrangement of white bridal roses.

Miss Dorothy Anne Hemphill, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and her only attendant. She wore a gown of pure silk chiffon in Romance blue designed with scoop neckline, cap sleeves and fitted bodice. A hand-draped cummerbund encircled the waist, accenting the full shirred skirt. She also wore a low crowned hat of matching Romance blue chiffon and carried a cascade bouquet of red Happiness roses.

Dr. Comegys attended his son as best man. Serving as ushers were James Edward Knighton Jr., Shreveport; the Reverend Harold R. Bott, and David Cross, both of Lake Charles; Francis Randall, David McConnell and Dr. William Fowler, all of Shreveport.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Hemphill selected a gown of white imported Chantilly lace over Parchment taffeta, styled with a square neck, fitted bodice, bracelet length sleeves and scalloped bouffant skirt. Parchment velvet trimmed the waist and her corsage was of white Japhet orchids. Mrs. Comegys, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of slipper satin in Parchment color, styled with slightly flared skirt. The bodice with round neckline and brief sleeves, was jeweled with pearls and bugle beads and she wore a matching net hat, embellished with jewels. Her corsage was also of Japhet orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at Bayou DeSiard Country Club. A massive arrangement of white stock and carnations in a silver and crystal epergne adorned the entrance hall and the guest book table held a white memory candle, scented with lily of the valley.

Two serving tables at opposite ends of the large reception room held identical cupid figurines holding cut glass bowls filled with white stock and carnations. Pairs of five-branched silver candelabra flanked the centerpieces. The wedding cake was served from another table which centered the wall opposite the doorway. The all-white motif was repeated in the decor.

Alternating at the punch bowls were Mrs. George Hemphill, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Morgan Simonton, Mrs. Edward Hayward Jr., and Mrs. Harriet Demmary, all of Monroe, Mrs. Walter Colquitt, and Mrs. Jan Garber, both aunts of the bridegroom, Mrs. James R. Nowery and Mrs. Edward Knighton, all of Shreveport.

Mrs. Winnie Cole and Mrs. Jack Masur served at the cake table. Guests were met in the foyer by Mrs. Harry Frazer Jr. and Mrs. John Eby and the bride's book was presided over by Mrs. Charles Cozean and Mrs. Edward Cromwell. Others assisting in serving cake and punch were Miss Bennie Grant, Miss Merrie Jo Simonton, Miss Gay Demmary, Miss Malisse Mapp, Miss Lynda Eby, Miss Peggy Pierce, Miss Carol Cole, Miss Linda Rogers, Mrs. Thomas Brakefield, Mrs. Richard Crowe, Mrs. Floyd Stone Jr., Mrs. Bailey Grant and Mrs. Richard Pierce.

After a wedding trip to Miami, Florida, Nassau and New York City, the couple will be at home at 3857 Greenway Place in Shreveport. For travel the bride wore a mauve Italian tweed dressmaker suit, with matching silk blouse and a multiple strand necklace of lavender crystals. Her fitted half hat was of purple with other accessories of black and she wore a white Japhet orchid.

MRS. THOMAS LEON WHITTEN

New Jersey Home Planned By Leon Whitten, Bride

Of interest in the area is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Rose Marie Bianco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Bianco of Rahway, New Jersey, to Thomas Leon Whitten, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Whitten of Start, La.

The ceremony was performed at St. Mark's Church in Rahway on Saturday, October 22 with Rev. Charles F. Buttner officiating. A reception followed in the Winfield Community Center.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a waltz length gown of white Chantilly lace over slipper satin, fashioned with a Sabrina neckline and long fitted sleeves. A wide satin cummerbund accented the waist and her chapel length veil of tulle cascaded from a pearl-studded lace pileus. Her bouquet was of white roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Osare Polidore of Hillside, N. J., and Miss Rosalie Rosky of Rahway were attendants for the bride. They wore identical gowns of orchid satin in ballerina length. Miss Delores Render, the flower girl, was also attired in orchid satin.

Serving as best man was William Bizirb of Clark, N. J., and ushers were Edward and Henry Borowitz of Clark, David Rozak and Carl Bianco, of Rahway.

Following a wedding trip to Atlantic City, the couple has established a home in Linden, N. J.

The bride graduated from Rahway high school and is now employed in Linden. Mr. Whitten, a graduate of Start high school, is employed at Metuchen, N. J.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Whitten, was among the wedding guests.

MISS MARGIE ANN RAMSEY

Margie Ramsey To Wed Texas Man December 27

Mr. and Mrs. Glendell Ramsey of Newellton, announced this weekend the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Margie Ann to Patrick Maurice Williams, Kilgore, Tex. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Williams, Kilgore.

December 27 is the date chosen for the wedding which will be solemnized at 5 p.m. in the First Baptist Church at Newellton. Rev. A. D. Foster, pastor of the church, will officiate.

Miss Ramsey has selected Miss Rose Ann Teller to serve as maid of honor. Bridesmaids will include Misses Elizabeth Ann Coit, Myra Jane Curry, Edith DeWitt, and Gloria Crain with Sandra Kay Watts, cousin of the bride-elect, to be junior bridesmaid.

Attending the bridegroom as best man will be his brother, Bob Williams. Ushers chosen are Maurice Watts, John Harville, Dick Williams, Vaughn Stewart and Lewis Watts. The ushers will also light the candles.

The bride-elect was graduated from Newellton high school and is now attending Northwestern State College in Natchitoches, where she is a member of Tri Sigma sorority.

Mr. Williams graduated from Kilgore high school and will receive his degree from Northwestern in January.

Lavender And Lace Create Romantic Bedroom Scene

Bedrooms are dream rooms! At least they can be if properly decorated. Light, new fresh-looking effects are easy to achieve in accessories.

Whether you fancy the romantic look or the tailored formal effect, there are styles in furnishings to fit your needs. Too, the color scheme for today's bedroom is limited only by the imagination of the owner.

Decoration's newest fashion color, lilac, is a flatterer to practically any room in the house, but is particularly effective in bedroom decor. Almost always associated with the impressions of royalty and regalness, it's a natural choice for creating a dressier more opulent look. Add the frothiness of lace for a window treatment and you'll have a room of feminine elegance.

Rooms can have personalities just as people do. In this age of standardization, the trait of individuality is particularly needed and welcome. If you are not sure of your tastes, buy things which are well-made, yet are on the moderately - priced side. Select things for the sheer pleasure — because the color, or perhaps the design, has a personal meaning to you.

Don't buy things because you think you'll impress the neighbors. They might - but you probably won't be happy with them. No longer do you have to make a choice of beauty or practicality. The new fabrics in bedspreads and curtains take work, worry and wear out of housepkeeping and make elegance easy to live with.

Foil Those Spuds

Wrapping potatoes in foil before baking has come into fashion because cooks have discovered that the foil keeps the potatoes hot and moist should there be a short wait before the meal is served.

Suit Roster Has Many Nominees

Numerous candidates, all with good fashion records, appear on the roster of fall suits. Lengthened jackets, pleated and flared skirts, overblouse accompaniments, and fur get the nomination of many designers, but it's anticipated that the popularity poll will also accord a vote of confidence to strictly - tailored classics, young-looking short jackets and slim skirts.

Demi-fit prevails in jackets of every length, with easy lines that nevertheless follow the curves. Sometimes there's blousing, cinched in by a belt. Lengths start with the cropped little jacket and continue through waist, hip-top and wrist levels.

Tunic and coat-length toppings for skirts are an important category.

As in every phase of fashion, fur and the fur-look hold the limelight. Suit jackets are collared and - or lined in just about every imaginable fur or copy of fur. Fur weskits or overblouses make warm additions to the winter suit.

When jackets are not fur-collared, they're often collarless — in the belief that it's good politics to be able to dress up a suit with scraves or jewelry.

Soft ties shape pretty necklines, and tie-sashes belt overblouses and long-line jackets. Mid - arm length, funnel width often characterize sleeves.

Skirts, designed for attractive fluidity in motion, take to pleats, flares, bias cuts and soft gathers.

Suit fabrics have an air of refinement. Brushed surfaces, ribbing, plaids and checks win attention. Colors offer pleasant surprises — among them, fall gold, red, vintage wine hues, violet, plum, blue and taupe.

Bowlegs In Children

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) —Bowlegs in early childhood are not uncommon, normally correct themselves spontaneously and rarely require treatment, Dr. Mary Sherman of the Ochsner Clinic reports in the Southern Medical Journal.

Planning Swiss Steak

Want good Swiss steak? Choose chuck or round beef that is one or two inches thick. For extra flavor use stewed tomatoes instead of regular canned tomatoes for the liquid needed during the braising.

Cologne Offers Pick-Me-Up To Good Grooming

Cologne and perfume can be as important to good grooming as your make-up requisites. Most people like to be around someone who is wearing a pleasant fragrance, and the user always feel fresher and more glamorous.

Many women, however, feel that wearing a perfume or cologne during the day at home or at work is out of place. This is not so, according to beauty authorities, especially if an appropriate, light scented fragrance is worn. Besides giving you that well-groomed feeling, a fragrance can give you a mental and physical "pick-me-up."

For an added lift during the day, refresh the scent with extra applications at midmorning and afternoon. If you are at work all day, carry a purse dispenser of cologne or perfume in your handbag.

Good For Frying

Some cooks like to dip chicken pieces into undiluted evaporated milk and then roll in seasoned flour before frying.

Six Couples Entertain At Hors d'Oeuvres Party In Lotus Club Saturday

Outstanding event of the weekend was an hors d'oeuvres supper given by six local couples, when they entertained at the second and final in a series of parties, highlighting the social season.

Hosts for the gala event held at the Lotus Club last night were Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bernstein Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kirkpatrick Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Jesse McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Roy B. Liuzza and Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Downing.

All white arrangements of Fuji chrysanthemums, stock and gladioli and white candles profusely decorated the lounge where guests were received between the hours of 7:30 until 9 and 9 until 11 p.m.

Large antique urns filled with yellow and bronze chrysanthemums interspersed with green grapes flanked the center columns in the dining room, which were encircled with the serving tables. Central decor for the table here was a three-tiered crystal hurricane holding green grapes, yellow lemons and green limes, arranged pyramid fashion.

Brass and copper accessories keynoted the game room where the serving table was centered with brass scales, on which were similar arrangements of the yellow and green citrus fruits and chrysanthemums. Two twisted brass candelabra completely entwined with tan fuji chrysanthemums completed the setting.

For the occasion Mrs. Hudson was wearing a black chiffon cocktail dress, designed with a full skirt. A gold brocade after-five frock was the choice of Mrs. Bernstein, while Mrs. Liuzza wore black chiffon over beige taffeta. Mrs. Kirkpatrick's beige raw silk with black flock dot was styled with a strapless bodice and bouffant skirt. The fashionable creation worn by Mrs. Downing featured a long-sleeved black wool top, slit to the waist in back, with a beige and black silk chiffon skirt. Mrs. McDonald wore a two piece ensemble which combined a jeweled white satin blouse with black velvet skirt.

Approximately 700 guests were invited to the gala affair.

Events Planned For Woman's Exchange Here

A report on the month's progress and activities was given at the October meeting of the Woman's Exchange held Monday afternoon at 520 South Grand Street.

Sherrouse Study Group Discusses Nutrition Need

"Nutrition As It Affects Our Children," was the topic for the Sherrouse Parent-Teacher Association study-discussion group which met last Wednesday morning at the school.

The discussion was led by Miss Marlene Bond, regional nutritionist for the Louisiana State Health Department, who was introduced by Mrs. W. W. Hathorn, chairman of the study-discussion committee.

Miss Bond emphasized how to recognize a well nourished child and requisites to make a child well nourished. Charts showing recommended diatary allowances and foods supplying these needs were displayed. Different and nutritious methods of preparing foods were discussed.

Literature, prepared by the Louisiana Health Department, including a booklet, "What Shall I Eat and Why," was distributed to those present.

Verbeck-Watson Nuptials Read In Harrisonburg

Miss Mildred Watson became the bride of Louis J. Verbeck Jr., on Sunday, October 30 in the Rosin Creek Pentecostal Church near Harrisonburg. The Rev. William McLain of Jonesville, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Watson, Harrisonburg and Mr. Verbeck is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Verbeck, of Natchez, Miss.

The bride is a senior at the Harrisonburg high school.

Morgan-Barnes Vows Read In Lake Providence

Miss Martha Nell Barnes, daughter of Mrs. Ella Mae Carter Barnes of Lake Providence and the late Dillard Barnes, became the bride of Charles Erven Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Morgan of Dallas, Texas, on Thursday, October 27. The ceremony was performed in the Assembly of God church in Lake Providence.

The Rev. Paul J. Young officiated at the single ring ceremony in a candlelight setting of seven-branched candelabra, entwined with nandina sprays and floor baskets of white chrysanthemums, canadense lilies and foliage. White satin bows marked the family pews.

Mrs. Paul J. Young was pianist for the nuptial music preceding the ceremony and also sang "Always."

The bride, given in marriage by Maple McWilliams, wore a petal blue embroidered nylon sheath over acetate taffeta. The gown was styled with a scoop neckline and brief sleeves, dotted with rhinestones and sequins. For her headdress she wore a wide circular whimsey in matching shade, attached to a bandeau of rhinestones. Her only jewelry was a crystal drop on a white gold chain and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and loops of narrow satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Miss Evelyn Stampley and Miss Joyce Ann Brown. Miss Stampley wore a honey gold satin fall ensemble and Miss Brown was wearing a brown velvet sheath. Both carried bouquets of white carnations.

Serving as best man was Charles E. Simmons of Greenville, Miss., and ushers and groomsmen were Virgil Frith of Lake Providence; John T. Jenkins and Robert W. Jenkins of Covington.

Mrs. Barnes selected for her daughter's wedding a dress of parakeet blue and a corsage of pink carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the community room of the church. The bride's table was covered with an ecru lace cloth and centered with the tiered cake beneath an arch of wedding bells. Mrs. H. A. West and Mrs. C. R. Brown served the cake with Mrs. James A. Stampley presiding at the punch bowl.

After a wedding trip to points in Mississippi the couple will establish a home in Lake Providence.

MISS MARGIE ANN RAMSEY

Margie Ramsey To Wed Texas Man December 27

Mr. and Mrs. Glendell Ramsey of Newellton, announced this weekend the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Margie Ann to Patrick Maurice Williams, Kilgore, Tex. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Williams, Kilgore.

December 27 is the date chosen for the wedding which will be solemnized at 5 p.m. in the First Baptist Church at Newellton. Rev. A. D. Foster, pastor of the church, will officiate.

Miss Ramsey has selected Miss Rose Ann Teller to serve as maid of honor. Bridesmaids will include Misses Elizabeth Ann Coit, Myra Jane Curry, Edith DeWitt, and Gloria Crain with Sandra Kay Watts, cousin of the bride-elect, to be junior bridesmaid.

Attending the bridegroom as best man will be his brother, Bob Williams. Ushers chosen are Maurice Watts, John Harville, Dick Williams, Vaughn Stewart and Lewis Watts. The ushers will also light the candles.

The bride-elect was graduated from Newellton high school and is now attending Northwestern State College in Natchitoches, where she is a member of Tri Sigma sorority.

Mr. Williams graduated from Kilgore high school and will receive his degree from Northwestern in January.

Lavender And Lace Create Romantic Bedroom Scene

Bedrooms are dream rooms! At least they can be if properly decorated. Light, new fresh-looking effects are easy to achieve in accessories.

Whether you fancy the romantic look or the tailored formal effect, there are styles in furnishings to fit your needs. Too, the color scheme for today's bedroom is limited only by the imagination of the owner.

Decoration's newest fashion color, lilac, is a flatterer to practically any room in the house, but is particularly effective in bedroom decor. Almost always associated with the impressions of royalty and regalness, it's a natural choice for creating a dressier more opulent look. Add the frothiness of lace for a window treatment and you'll have a room of feminine elegance.

Rooms can have personalities just as people do. In this age of standardization, the trait of individuality is particularly needed and welcome. If you are not sure of your tastes, buy things which are well-made, yet are on the moderately - priced side. Select things for the sheer pleasure — because the color, or perhaps the design, has a personal meaning to you.

Don't buy things because you think you'll impress the neighbors. They might - but you probably won't be happy with them. No longer do you have to make a choice of beauty or practicality The new fabrics in bedspreads and curtains take work, worry and wear out of housepkeeping and make elegance easy to live with.

Foil Those Spuds

Wrapping potatoes in foil before baking has come into fashion because cooks have discovered that the foil keeps the potatoes hot and moist should there be a short wait before the meal is served.

Suit Roster Has Many Nominees

Numerous candidates, all with good fashion records, appear on the roster of fall suits. Lengthened jackets, pleated and flared skirts, overblouse accompaniments, and fur get the nomination of many designers, but it's anticipated that the popularity poll will also accord a vote of confidence to strictly - tailored classics, young-looking short jackets and slim skirts.

Demi-fit prevails in jackets of every length, with easy lines that nevertheless follow the curves. Sometimes there's blousing, cinched in by a belt. Lengths start with the cropped little jacket and continue through waist, hip-top and wrist levels.

Tunic and coat-length toppings for skirts are an important category.

As in every phase of fashion, fur and the fur-look hold the limelight. Suit jackets are collared and - or lined in just about every imaginable fur or copy of fur. Fur weskits or overblouses make warm additions to the winter suit.

When jackets are not fur-collared, they're often collarless — in the belief that it's good politics to be able to dress up a suit with scraves or jewelry.

Soft ties shape pretty necklines, and tie-sashes belt overblouses and long-line jackets. Mid - arm length, funnel width often characterize sleeves.

Skirts, designed for attractive fluidity in motion, take to pleats, flares, bias cuts and soft gathers.

Suit fabrics have an air of refinement. Brushed surfaces, ribbing, plaids and checks win attention. Colors offer pleasant surprises — among them, fall gold, red, vintage wine hues, violet, plum, blue and taupe.

Bowlegs In Children

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) —Bowlegs in early childhood are not uncommon, normally correct themselves spontaneously and rarely require treatment, Dr. Mary Sherman of the Ochsner Clinic reports in the Southern Medical Journal.

She appeals to parents of bowlegged children to support the SLPLBA — Society for Leaving the Poor Little Blighters Alone!

BON-BON COLORS from pale to deep make an enchanting night-time dress for all your special occasions. Eye-catching features of this "After-Five" costume are the keyhole back, sash waist and bell skirt.

Fashion Party Nominates Winning Ticket For Fall '60 Candidates

The fashion party has nominated for Fall '60, a winning ticket of sparkling colors, soft-spoken fabrics and a diversity of flattering silhouettes — sure to capture the fancy and vote of every fashion-conscious constituent in the country!

Fall 1960 is a season of many silhouettes! A season where FUR is the foremost talking point. . . where COLORS are smoky or bright as jewels. . .or brilliant with gold and silver accents. . . and where fabrics are glossy, fine, brushed or plush

Opulence is a word you'll hear and read over and over again —The dictionary defines it as. . . "wealthy. . .rich . . . abundant". . . it's wealthy in its wonderful variety! Rich — in color, fabric textures and elegant detailing And — fashion has an abundance of neat tailoring, orderly elegance and "shapes" for every one

Frills and fussiness have been stripped from the scene . . . yet a most gentle feminine look prevails everywhere.

Tailored themes assert themselves competently and confidently in dresses, coats, and suits especially.

Fur — seen everywhere, and on everything — trims, collars, cuffs, ascots, scarves and hats. Or, it may gracefully and elegantly underscore a coat or suit with lining.

Skirts — however they may be in length — are never skimpy. They give a woman more grace with all around pleats, slightly flared, floating panels or even in full circles.

Waistlines stay well defined thanks to bodice draping . . . belting at the natural waist. . .sashes and dressmaker detailing.

Tunics of all lengths, although still a "sleeper" are expected to catch many fashion-conscious women as the season progresses.

Colors are the aces in fall's winning hand — there's a gypsy charm to the many sparkling reds, glowing purples and the glowing-ember look to smoky tones.

Blues are surprises! It's been many a moon since fall has been sparked with so many clear-hued blues such as teal, cornflower royal, peacock, cadet blue and a clear-glowing navy with an ultra-marine salute

All in all the season's fashions are shaping up with little controversy. . .a strong platform of color, charm and complementary coordinates; with fur, far out in front in popularity and a wide variety of diversified silhouettes and styles to win every woman's popular vote.

Vows Unite Area Couple In Tallulah

Vows uniting Miss Libby Ann Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Reynolds and Dolar Lamar (Pat) Bullard, son of Mrs. D. P. Bullard and the late Mr. Bullard were solemnized at St. Edward's Catholic Church in Tallulah Saturday morning, October 29. The Reverend William M. Hopp officiated at the 10 o'clock nuptials.

White chrysanthemums and fern on the altar and tall white tapers in brass candelabra formed a background for the exchange of vows.

A program of nuptial music was played by Mrs. Jim Gilfoil, who accompanied Mrs. Sam Scurria, as she sang "Ave Maria," and "On This Day," Johnny and Eddie Mills, cousins of the bride, served as acolytes.

Miss Margo Reynolds, wearing an aqua jersey afternoon dress with a corsage of miniature orchids, attended her sister as maid of honor. Sammy Bullard, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a winter white sheath dress and matching jacket with three-quarter sleeves and rolled collar. She wore a crown of seed pearls and tear drop crystals to which was attached a waist length veil. Her other accessories were white and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Mrs. Reynolds chose for her daughter's wedding a beige knitted suit, with which she wore black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a black ensemble with a corsage of white carnations.

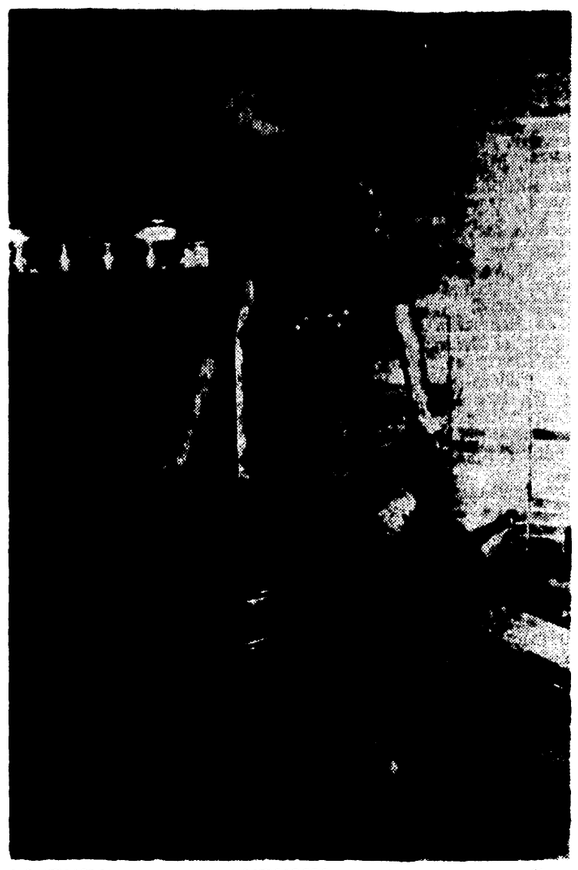
After a short wedding trip the couple has established a home in Tallulah where both are employed.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. H. L. Tryon, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Tryon and Gary Tryon, of Columbia and Mr. and Mrs. Marvelle Melton of Vidalia.

Ham Plus Yam

NEW YORK (UPI) — Here's a spicy main dish — ham and yams with almond glaze.

Arrange 1 ham steak, ¾-inch thick, and 4 medium yams, cooked and peeled, in a shallow baking dish. Combine 3 tablespoons of melted butter or margarine with ¼ cup of firmly-packed brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon each of nutmeg and cinnamon and 1-3 cup of ground almonds and spread over ham and yams. Bake 45 minutes in a 35-degree oven. Serves 4.



PICTURES OF AN AUTUMN evening: a warm fireside and you in a lounging costume featuring separates of sweater and slim pants. Blocks of "snowflakes" are inlaid to border the hipline and delineate the sleeves of the luxurious lambswool sweater. Matching perfectly are slim pants, with rounded outlines at the ankle. Fabric is luxurious cashmere woven with wool, for the softest, smoothest texture. Colors are beige and light gray heather, for the elegant "neutral" look.

NOVEMBER NUPTIALS will unite Miss Elizabeth Ann Duke, above, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Ray Duke of Olla, and Ray Edward Parham Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Edward Parham of Urania, La. The ceremony will take place November 18 at 6 p.m. in the home of the bride's parents. Miss Duke is a graduate of LaSalle high school. Her fiance, also a graduate of LaSalle high school, attended Northeastern State College.

Leather Fashions Making Bright Splash Of Colors

Nature's own bright splash of color is reflected in the new leather apparel fashions for daytime, casual, and evening wear this fall.

There are glove-soft cowhide, cabretta, kidskin, coltskin, suede and calf leathers in bright rusts, vivid reds, soft blues and greens, and a whole range of more subtle neutrals such as greige, tan, beige, bone and white.

These are seen in smartly tailored tunic suits, or skirts teamed with three-quarter length jackets richly lined in a complementary thue or paisley print.

The three-quarter length casual suit is important in neutral suede colors and sooty browns. It is also seen in easily draped smooth leathers.

Leather teams with cashmere, tweed and knit for warm wear in the brisk days ahead. New two-piece suits feature leather jackets with fur collars, to wear with evening sheaths. Teamed with silver fox, many dressmaker jackets are interpreted in softest kid or antelope leather.

Full length evening coats in coltskin appear in flattering smock versions in brilliant plum, deep purple, and rich green to enhance classically simple sheath gowns.

The perennial trench coat in smooth cabretta, as well as a wide assortment of soft suede type jackets in smooth leather are projected for autumn's nippy weather.

There are junior versions of the tailored jacket for young girls, as well as handsomely styled full-length coats in cowhide, coltskin and cabretta leathers, with self-leather belts, generous slash pockets, and a wide range of bright colors to appeal to 'tween and 'teen-agers. Cardigan of leather with knit sleeves makes an ideal school jacket.

Separates Lead

All-in-one wardrobe of separates meets many fashion needs. Components are a slim skirt, double-breasted vest, sporty jacket, slacks and shorts. All are in American wool.

Observance Of Education Week Planned By Schools

Plans for observance of National Education Week, beginning Monday, November 7 and continuing through November 11, were announced by Monroe City elementary schools at the Monroe City Council of Parent-Teacher Association on Thursday, November 3.

Barkdull-Faulk grammar school will hold an assembly program November 10, at 1 p.m. to be conducted by the student council. Taking part on the program will be students of various organizations in the school. A physical education demonstration will follow and visitors will be invited to an art display in the hall.

Georgia Tucker grammar school plans parents visitation at the school throughout the week, with individual programs scheduled.

Lexington grammar school has chosen as its theme "The Magic Book Comes to Life," stressing Book Week observance.

Lida Benton grammer school will highlight the week with a symposium Thursday, November 10, at 7:30 p.m. entitled, "Today's Curriculum for Today's Children". Educators and parents will participate.

Plum Street elementary school will open its third annual Art Festival entitled, "Art Around the World," in connection with the observance. In addition an International Art Exhibit, sponsored by the National Art Association and the American Red Cross will be opened to the public. Observance of the school's program will be the theme of individual room programs for parents .

A film taken on a field trip stressing the value of visual aid and field trips in today's education will be shown at Sherrouse grammar school Monday at 5 p.m.

Parents of the six elementary schools are invited to attend the programs.

Mrs. J. W. Schonlau, president of Monroe City Council of PTA, presided at the second meeting of the council this year in the Louis Loche room of Ouachita Parish library.

Mrs. Clyde Campbell, program chairman, introduced the guest speakers, John Kelso Jr., of the Monroe City Recreation Center and Miss Johnnie Bankhead, special music director of Monroe elementary schools. Mr. Kelso spoke on the needs of providing recreation for children, adults and the aged and Miss Bankhead explained the program of the Monroe Youth Symphony Concert and its plans to enrich the lives of local children.

Representatives of the six elementary schools were in attendance. The next meeting will be on January 5, 1961.

Beta Sigma Phi Chapter Concludes Rush With Tea

Two events were held during the weekend by Beta Pi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, which climaxed the current rush season.

The annual Halloween party for members and their husbands was held Saturday night at the VFW Hall, which was gaily decorated for the occasion with corn stalks and pumpkins.

Square dancing was the diversion of the evening during which appropriate refreshments were served.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Racer of Shreveport and rushees and husbands invited included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schott, Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Cascio, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Caulfield, and Mrs. Nelwyn Reeves. Members present included Mr. and Mrs. Harry Black, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Alvis Gossett, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hinckley, Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Hubka, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Kemp, Miss Joyce Lanier, Jim Files, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Savanna and Mr. and Mrs. George Smale.

Concluding the rushing season members of the sorority entertained with a preferential tea Sunday afternoon from 3 until 5 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Martin Schempf, 304 Medorah in West Monroe.

Corsages of yellow chrysanthemums were presented to the rushees, Mrs. Robert Schott, Mrs. Nelwyn Reeves, Mrs. Joseph Caulfield, and to the sponsor, Mrs. Georgia Nastasi, and president, Miss Joyce Lanier.

Centerpiece for the serving table was a massive arrangement of white chrysanthemums and English ivy, centered with a single white taper. Lighted white tapers flanked the arrangement and a yellow and black color note was carried out in refreshments. Miss Lanier and Mrs. Alvis Gossett presided at the table.

Guests were Mrs. Jack Millette and Mrs. Wayne A. Franks, members of Gamma Iota chapter and members present were Mrs. E. H. Bailey, Mrs. Harry Black, Mrs. Gossett, Mrs. Walter Hinckley, Mrs. V. A. Hubka, Mrs. A. A. Kemp, Miss Lanier, Mrs. George Smale, Mrs. Norman Smith, Mrs. Roger Somsen, Mrs. Robert Whitelaw and Mrs. Schempf.

Mrs. Bailey is chairman of the social committee, which had charge of arrangements for the two events.

Nancy Jacks To Become Bride Of K. L. Williams

Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Jacks of Ruston, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of his daughter, Miss Nancy Lucile Jacks to Kenneth Lee Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carnie L. Williams of Shreveport.

The ceremony will be performed December 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Southside Baptist Church at Ruston, with the pastor, Rev. H. E. Henderson, officiating.

Miss Martha Ann McBride has been selected to serve as maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Misses Carolyn Ann Fowler, Dorothy Louise Fowler, Janis Maxine Peel and Charlotte Jean Henderson.

Serving as candlelighters will be Thomas Wayne Williams and Melvin LaMoyne Batten.

Mr. Williams will attend his son as best man and ushers will be Ronald Williams, Ramie T. Jacks, Harry W. Thompson and Bruce Mitchell.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Sharmon of Ruston and the late Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Jacks of Arcadia. She was graduated from Ruston high school and will receive her degree from Louisiana Tech in January, 1961.

Mr. Williams, who is minister of music at the First Baptist Church in Clinton, La., was graduated from Fair Park high school in Shreveport and Louisiana Tech in Ruston. He is at present a student at New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. He is the grandson of Mrs. Peter James Williams, Monroe, and the late Mr. and Mrs. La Moyne Ransom Batten of Monroe.

Feeding The Kids

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Department of Agriculture says 60,000 of the 106,000 public schools in the nation provide a lunch service. A new booklet called "The Growing School Lunch Food Market" reported these schools had more than 21 million children enrolled.

Verbeck-Watson Nuptials Read In Harrisonburg

Miss Mildred Watson became the bride of Louis J. Verbeck Jr., on Sunday, October 30 in the Rosin Creek Pentecostal Church near Harrisonburg. The Rev. William McLain of Jonesville, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Watson, Harrisonburg and Mr. Verbeck is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Verbeck, of Natchez, Miss.

The bride is a senior at the Harrisonburg high school.

Morgan-Barnes Vows Read In Lake Providence

Miss Martha Nell Barnes, daughter of Mrs. Ella Mae Carter Barnes of Lake Providence and the late Dillard Barnes, became the bride of Charles Erven Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Morgan of Dallas, Texas, on Thursday, October 27. The ceremony was performed in the Assembly of God church in Lake Providence.

The Rev. Paul J. Young officiated at the single ring ceremony in a candlelight setting of seven-branched candelabra, entwined with nandina sprays and floor baskets of white chrysanthemums, canadense lilies and foliage. White satin bows marked the family pews.

Mrs. Paul J. Young was pianist for the nuptial music preceding the ceremony and also sang "Always."

The bride, given in marriage by Maple McWilliams, wore a petal blue embroidered nylon sheath over acetate taffeta. The gown was styled with a scoop neckline and brief sleeves, dotted with rhinestones and sequins. For her headdress she wore a wide circular whimsey in matching shade, attached to a bandeau of rhinestones. Her only jewelry was a crystal drop on a white gold chain and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and loops of narrow satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Miss Evelyn Stampley and Miss Joyce Ann Brown. Miss Stampley wore a honey gold satin fall ensemble and Miss Brown was wearing a brown velvet sheath. Both carried bouquets of white carnations.

Serving as best man was Charles E. Simmons of Greenville, Miss., and ushers and groomsmen were Virgil Frith of Lake Providence; John T. Jenkins and Robert W. Jenkins of Covington.

Mrs. Barnes selected for her daughter's wedding a dress of parakeet blue and a corsage of pink carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the community room of the church. The bride's table was covered with an ecru lace cloth and centered with the tiered cake beneath an arch of wedding bells. Mrs. H. A. West and Mrs. C. R. Brown served the cake with Mrs. James A. Stampley presiding at the punch bowl.

After a wedding trip to points in Mississippi the couple will establish a home in Lake Providence.

Ultimate In Style Now Seen In Maternity Wear

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Maternity clothes are probably the biggest single clothes problem women ever face. Once they solved the whole business by retreating from public view altogether. But since it has become socially acceptable not only to be seen but to remain active on the job or in community life, clothes have to be at least presentable.

The first solution, about 20 years ago, was the tent dress. It fell straight from the shoulders, widening as it went. All right for concealment, but all too like a sack. There wasn't much to make one feel happy in it.

Then some bright brain came up with the two-piece idea. A slim skirt could be worn if a large hole was cut in at the waistline and concealed by a tent-shaped top.

This style has remained popular up to the present. All sorts of pretty things can be done with the top, and a woman who remains reasonably slim during pregnancy can be dressed quite as gaily as usual.

However, this style doesn't lend itself to "after" wearing. Nobody wants to go around perpetually in skirts with holes in them. And since wearing time for strictly maternity clothes is, after all, short, one bought as few as possible and was heartily sick of them by the time the baby arrive ..

So now it's back to the one-piece dress. A couple of seasons ago when the Empire line was the rage, maternity dress designers discovered that this high-waisted silhouette was ideal for their purposes. At that time, several of my friends wore Empire dresses that hadn't even been designed for maternity use.

Since then, designers have gone on developing the Empire in a number of clever ways. At one manufacturers they have a costume in tapestry and chiffon. The small bodice of the empire dress is in tapestry, the floating skirt in the chiffon. Over it goes a dramatic coat of the tapestry.

For days this house likes the separates look, but uses the Empire line here, too. Over slim skirt and pants go tunics with modified Empire silhouette. They are sleeveless, taking blouses beneath with pretty necklines.

Other styles are pleats, plastrons, fur touches and inside ties to create a group of dresses that can be worn as long as any others. The pleats fare fine and fall from just below the bust in long, slimming lines, while the bodice is treated with wide, square seaming that keeps the eye at the neckline.

When an outside sash is used, it ties high under the bust. Wide sleeves and a circle of fur at the neckline create bodice interest. Soft gathers under the sash are meant to be released as time goes by.

Another one likes the slim, cut-out skirt topped by a long tunic whose front is entirely flat-pleated. Held under the bustline by a flat self-bow, the tunic is full in back.

I saw a holiday costume so beautiful I would have worn it myself. The top was in gauzy organza, woven with sparkling nylon thread, and sunburst pleated all around from a softly rolled and scarved neckline. The organza was placed over an underlayer of opaque crepe. In champagne beige, the top was to be worn with a black velvet skirt.

The gayest thing about all these pretty maternity clothes is their frank espousal of color. Since women have taken to keeping their weight down while pregnant, there is less and less need for dull or dark shades in maternity clothes. Red, beige, royal blue, and all kinds of gay prints and stripes can be found.

It would seem that maternity these days is becoming another aspect of fashion, rather than a period to be endured.

NEWS IN THE familiar two-piece maternity style is made by this crisp flat-pleated tunic, held under the bust by a self-bow, released in the back. Wide bateau neckline gives illusion of slimness to figure below.

FASHION'S LOVE for fur is carried into smart one-piece maternity dresses like this wool model. Beaver circles the neckline and a high sash under the bust holds soft gathers that can be released. Sleeves and bodice are cut in one piece.

Calico And Rickrack Fad In Tots Fashions On Wane

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The calico and rickrack fad in small fashions is on the wane. But what's to succeed it?

"One of the few men designers of children's dresses said, "Frankly I don't know. But I hope children's wear is headed for a period of casual, simple lines. Not a return to frills and fluff . . . but relying on design, not on fabric and trim, to sell dresses."

The designer speaking was Clyde Grant, a Navy veteran of World War II, who succeeded in the adult fashion world before he joined Jack Bargenicht, Inc., a 20-year-old firm and the first to mass produce children's dresses.

Grant, a native of Montgomery, Ala., won a scholarship to the Harris School of Advertising Art in Nashville, Tenn., before he was through high school.

He was doing window decorating for a store in his hometown when he was offered a job in Hollywood making an art film for the United Nations Office of Public Information. The film, done in animated art form, took first place in the California State Art Film Awards.

DESIGNED FOR TV

He stayed around the film capital — working with Paramount Pictures' chief designer Edith Head on costumes for several pictures. From Paramount, he went to the Dinah Shore television show for a year, and also did the clothes for a number of shows starring Tony Martin.

Grant set out for New York four years ago "because I'd never been here before" and while loafing around to "get the feel of the town" furthered his training at the Traphagen School of Fashion. He said he was doing all right financially as a free-lance designer for a couple of boutique shops, but figured if he were to get anywhere in New York, he'd better settle down to the security of one manufacturer.

A "job wanted" ad in Women's Wear Daily, the trade publication, brought a call from Borgenicht. "I'd never thought of doing children's dresses," said Grant, "but Bergenicht liked the sketches I took in. He said they were just enough 'way out,' and what the industry needed was some new blood."

USES UNUSUAL COLORS

Grant has been with the firm for nearly two years, doing four collections a year for three size groups. They are the three to six-X, the seven to 14, and the six to 14 for sub-teens.

Grant includes the wide sashes and full skirts little girls always have worn — he called them "bread and butter" items. But the stamp of the artist shows in the rich "portrait" colors of plum and rich burgundy he used in the 1960 holiday line and in his one-man war on a couple of "don'ts" in the industry — don't put little girls in green or beige.

"Beige is wonderful on little blondes," said Grant. "And put green on a pink - skinned little brunette; it's terribly pretty."

Barkdull Faulk PTA Benefit To Aid School

Mrs. Harry Greenwood presided over a meeting of the Barkdull Faulk Parent - Teacher Association held Thursday at the school.

During the business session Mrs. Sam Brinson, treasurer, made a report on the recent spaghetti supper, proceeds from which will go toward playground and school improvements.

Special guests for the program were Van Odom, superintendent of schools and Sidney Seegers, principal of Neville high school and school board members.

Mr. Seegers spoke on the recent evaluation of the city school system, which was followed by a panel discussion with school board members participating.

A fellowship period was held in the library at the conclusion of the meeting.

District Music Directors Hold Dinner In City

The Paragon Club was the scene of a 7 o'clock dinner Tuesday night held by District 1 vocal music directors, with Miss Hermione Driskell, Monroe, as acting hostess.

Pink roses combined with pink Country Girl chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece for the dinner table.

Miss Edith Cotton, Louisiana Tech, Ruston, presided over a business session following dinner at which time officers were elected for the ensuing two years.

The new officers are Mrs. M. R. Brady, Dubach, chairman and Miss Driskell, secretary.

Remainder of the evening was spent in a general discussion of district and state festivals to be held next March. The group also discussed improvement of standards for elementary and junior high music and a committee was appointed to study needed improvements. The committee is composed of Miss Joan Lay, chairman, Mrs. Joe Caskey, E. McClung, and Miss Driskell.

Those present were Miss Elizabeth Landis and Mr. McClung, Winnsboro; Miss Dorothy Roach, Wisner; Mrs. Edleen Marczak, Gilbert; Miss Kathleen Chipley, Rayville; Miss Edith Cotton and Kendall Hearn, both of Ruston; Solon King, Mrs. A. R. Kilpatrick, representing Ouachita Parish schools; Miss Nina Sue Harris, Miss Joan Lay, Mrs. Joe Caskey and Miss Hermione Driskell, Monroe City Schools and Mrs. M. R. Brady, Dubach.

Fashion Party Nominates Winning Ticket For Fall '60 Candidates

The fashion party has nominated for Fall '60, a winning ticket of sparkling colors, soft-spoken fabrics and a diversity of flattering silhouettes — sure to capture the fancy and vote of every fashion-conscious constituent in the country!

Fall 1960 is a season of many silhouettes! A season where FUR is the foremost talking point. . . where COLORS are smoky or bright as jewels. . .or brilliant with gold and silver accents. . . and where fabrics are glossy, fine, brushed or plush

Opulence is a word you'll hear and read over and over again —The dictionary defines it as. . . "wealthy. . .rich . . . abundant". . . it's wealthy in its wonderful variety! Rich — in color, fabric textures and elegant detailing And — fashion has an abundance of neat tailoring, orderly elegance and "shapes" for every one.

Frills and fussiness have been stripped from the scene . . .yet a most gentle feminine look prevails everywhere.

Tailored themes assert themselves competently and confidently in dresses, coats, and suits especially.

Fur — seen everywhere, and on everything — trims, collars, cuffs, ascots, scarves and hats. Or, it may gracefully and elegantly underscore a coat or suit with lining.

Skirts — however they may be in length — are never skimpy. They give a woman more grace with all around pleats, slightly flared, floating panels or even in full circles.

Waistlines stay well defined thanks to bodice draping . . . belting at the natural waist. . .sashes and dressmaker detailing.

Tunics of all lengths, although still a "sleeper" are expected to catch many fashion-conscious women as the season progresses.

Colors are the aces in fall's winning hand — there's a gypsy charm to the many sparkling reds, glowing purples and the glowing-ember look to smoky tones.

Blues are surprises! It's been many a moon since fall has been sparked with so many clear-hued blues such as teal, cornflower, royal, peacock, cadet blue and a clear-glowing navy with an ultra-marine salute

All in all the season's fashions are shaping up with little controversy. . .a strong platform of color, charm and complementary coordinates; with fur, far out in front in popularity and a wide variety of diversified silhouettes and styles to win every woman's popular vote.

Vows Unite Area Couple In Tallulah

Vows uniting Miss Libby Ann Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Reynolds and Dolar Lamar (Pat) Bullard, son of Mrs. D. P. Bullard and the late Mr. Bullard were solemnized at St. Edward's Catholic Church in Tallulah Saturday morning, October 29. The Reverend William M. Hopp officiated at the 10 o'clock nuptials.

White chrysanthemums and fern on the altar and tall white tapers in brass candelabra formed a background for the exchange of vows.

A program of nuptial music was played by Mrs. Jim Gilfoil, who accompanied Mrs. Sam Scurria, as she sang "Ave Maria," and "On This Day." Johnny and Eddie Mills, cousins of the bride, served as acolytes.

Miss Margo Reynolds, wearing an aqua jersey afternoon dress with a corsage of miniature orchids, attended her sister as maid of honor. Sammy Bullard, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a winter white sheath dress and matching jacket with three-quarter sleeves and rolled collar. She wore a crown of seed pearls and tear drop crystals to which was attached a waist length veil. Her other accessories were white and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Mrs. Reynolds chose for her daughter's wedding a beige knitted suit, with which she wore black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a black ensemble with a corsage of white carnations.

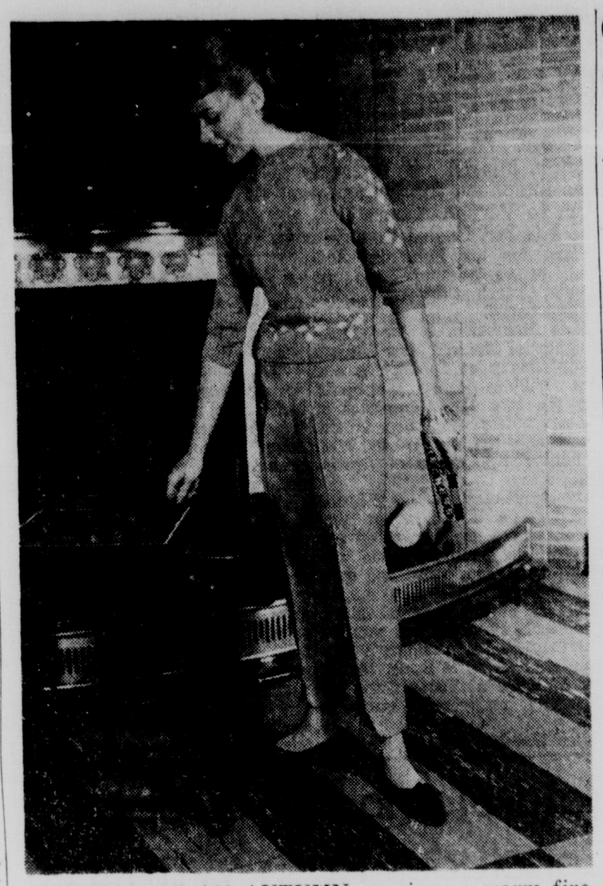
After a short wedding trip the couple has established a home in Tallulah where both are employed.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. H. L. Tryon, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Tryon and Gary Tryon, of Columbia and Mr. and Mrs. Marvelle Melton of Vidalia.

Ham Plus Yam

NEW YORK (UPI) — Here's a spicy main dish — ham and yams with almond glaze.

Arrange 1 ham steak, ¾-inch thick, and 4 medium yams, cooked and peeled, in a shallow baking dish. Combine 3 tablespoons of melted butter or margarine with ¼ cup of firmly-packed brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon each of nutmeg and cinnamon and 1-3 cup of ground almonds and spread over ham and yams. Bake 45 minutes in a 35-degree oven. Serves 4.



PICTURES OF AN AUTUMN evening: a warm fireside and you in a lounging costume featuring separates of sweater and slim pants. Blocks of "snowflakes" are inlaid to border the hipline and delineate the sleeves of the luxurious lambswool sweater. Matching perfectly are slim pants, with rounded outlines at the ankle. Fabric is luxurious cashmere woven with wool, for the softest, smoothest texture. Colors are beige and light gray heather, for the elegant "neutral" look.

NOVEMBER NUPTIALS will unite Miss Elizabeth Ann Duke, above, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Ray Duke of Olla, and Ray Edward Parham Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Edward Parham of Urania, La. The ceremony will take place November 18 at 6 p.m. in the home of the bride's parents. Miss Duke is a graduate of LaSalle high school. Her fiance, also a graduate of LaSalle high school, attended Northeastern State College.

Leather Fashions Making Bright Splash Of Colors

Nature's own bright splash of color is reflected in the new leather apparel fashions for daytime, casual, and evening wear this fall.

There are glove-soft cowhide, cabretta, kidskin, coltskin, suede and calf leathers in bright rusts, vivid reds, soft blues and greens, and a whole range of more subtle neutrals such as greige, tan, beige, bone and white.

These are seen in smartly tailored tunic suits, or skirts teamed with three-quarter length jackets richly lined in a complementary thue or paisley print.

The three-quarter length casual suit is important in neutral suede colors and sooty browns. It is also seen in easily draped smooth leathers.

Leather teams with cashmere, tweed and knit for warm wear in the brisk days ahead. New two-piece suits feature leather jackets with fur collars, to wear with evening sheaths. Teamed with silver fox, many dressmaker jackets are interpreted in softest kid or antelope leather.

Full length evening coats in coltskin appear in flattering smock versions in brilliant plum, deep purple, and rich green to enhance classically simple sheath gowns.

The perennial trench coat in smooth cabretta, as well as a wide assortment of soft suede type jackets in smooth leather are projected for autumn's nippy weather.

There are junior versions of the tailored jacket for young girls, as well as handsomely styled full-length coats in cowhide, coltskin and cabretta leathers, with self-leather belts, generous slash pockets, and a wide range of bright colors to appeal to 'tween and 'teen-agers. Cardigan of leather with knit sleeves makes an ideal school jacket.

Separates Lead

All-in-one wardrobe of separates meets many fashion needs. Components are a slim skirt, double-breasted vest, sporty jacket, slacks and shorts. All are in American wool.

Observance Of Education Week Planned By Schools

Plans for observance of National Education Week, beginning Monday, November 7 and continuing through November 11, were announced by Monroe City elementary schools at the Monroe City Council of Parent-Teacher Association on Thursday, November 3.

Barkdull-Faulk grammar school will hold an assembly program November 10, at 1 p.m. to be conducted by the student council. Taking part on the program will be students of various organizations in the school. A physical education demonstration will follow and visitors will be invited to an art display in the hall.

Georgia Tucker grammar school plans parents visitation at the school throughout the week, with individual programs scheduled.

Lexington grammar school has chosen as its theme "The Magic Book Comes to Life," stressing Book Week observance.

Lida Benton grammer school will highlight the week with a symposium Thursday, November 10, at 7:30 p.m. entitled, "Today's Curriculum for Today's Children". Educators and parents will participate.

Plum Street elementary school will open its third annual Art Festival entitled, "Art Around the World," in connection with the observance. In addition an International Art Exhibit, sponsored by the National Art Association and the American Red Cross will be opened to the public. Observance of the school's program will be the theme of individual room programs for parents .

A film taken on a field trip stressing the value of visual aid and field trips in today's education will be shown at Sherrouse grammar school Monday at 5 p.m.

Parents of the six elementary schools are invited to attend the programs.

Mrs. J. W. Schonlau, president of Monroe City Council of PTA, presided at the second meeting of the council this year in the Louis Loche room of Ouachita Parish library.

Mrs. Clyde Campbell, program chairman, introduced the guest speakers, John Kelso Jr., of the Monroe City Recreation Center and Miss Johnnie Bankhead, special music director of Monroe elementary schools. Mr. Kelso spoke on the needs of providing recreation for children, adults and the aged and Miss Bankhead explained the program of the Monroe Youth Symphony Concert and its plans to enrich the lives of local children.

Representatives of the six elementary schools were in attendance. The next meeting will be on January 5, 1961.

Christmas Day Vows Set By Miss Burford, Fiance

Miss Sandra Lynn Burford, daughter of Mrs. L. N. Larche of Monroe and B. G. Burford of Bradenton, Florida, will become the bride of Charles Ray McCullen on December 25. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd E. McCullen of Simsboro.

The ceremony will be performed at 4 o'clock Christmas Day in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Foster, Monroe, aunt and uncle of the bride-elect. Rev. T. Earl Ogg will officiate.

Mrs. Mildred Walters, sister of the bride-elect, will serve as matron of honor and Don Ed McCullen, brother of the future bridegroom, will be best man.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. W. F. Odom and the late Mr. Odom, and Mr. and Mrs T. C. Burford, all of Monroe. Her fiance is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Barlett of Simsboro and the late Mr. and Mrs. M. E. McCullen.

Miss Burford was graduated from Neville high school and Mr. McCullen from Simsboro high school. Both are at present attending Northeast Louisiana State College.

They plan to establish a home in Monroe where they will continue studies at Northeast.

Lakeshore PTA Hears Talk On Students' Work

W. W. Ward, superintendent of Ouachita Parish School system, was guest speaker for the Lakeshore Parent-Teacher Association when it met Thursday night at the school.

In presenting his topic "These Are Our Children At Work," he stressed the importance of the curriculum and the need for all parents to seriously study the work their children are required to do and to determine if the work is being done that will prepare them for the changing world in which they live.

Stanley Brister, first vice-president, conducted the business session in the absence of Dr. Fred J. Vogel. Group singing was led by Mrs. F. S. Fisher, accompanied by Miss Evelyn Duke.

Mrs. Maude Gore, school librarian, outlined the parents reading course being sponsored by Miss Sallie Farrell, chairman of Library Services and Children's Reading and urged all parents to secure a list of books and read the required number for a certificate.

Mrs. Louise Thacker's first grade won the room count award. Sixth grade parents were hosts and served refreshments during the social hour.

Cropping The Coats

Length as well as styling is varied in fall coats. Nine-tenths length, showing just a bit of the dress or skirt beneath, is frequently seen, especially in costume coats with their own dresses or suits. Other coats stop at three-quarter and seven-eighths lengths.

Always Taste It!

You need to test a baked product for doneness even though a recipe specifies a definite baking time. Ovens vary! To test a cake, insert a wire tester into the center; if no bits of uncooked batter stick to it — if it comes out clean — your cake is done.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

How to sew your clothes to look as if they come from the costume room rather than the dressgoods department, is expertly detailed by teacher Eunice Farmer. Save her columns, which appear each Sunday for reference.

"Dear Eunice,

"At last, someone to help us with all our sewing problems. All of my friends have the same difficulty, namely "Buttonholes." We have all ruined many otherwise well made clothes by this detail. Any help you can give us will be more than welcome."

Mrs. B. E. C.

Dear Mrs. B. E. C.:

Buttonholes are one of the most important details of a garment and must be made to perfection. Of all the questions I have received, yours is the most common.

You may receive your detailed, easy to follow Bound Buttonhole instructions by sending a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Sew Simple, in care of your local paper. I will guarantee professional looking buttonholes if you will carefully follow each step.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"Now that school is again in session, most mothers are faced with the same problems. How to lengthen the hems of girls dresses without a home-make look. How can we keep the old hemline mark from showing?"

Mrs. M. B.

Dear Mrs. M. B.:

Our readers have sent me many suggestions for lengthening dresses successfully. I will tell you about the one that has impressed me the most. In fact, I tried it with my youngest daughter, and I like the appearance almost better than when the dress was new.

First, without ripping the hem out, machine stitch ½" from the lower edge of the hem, this will form a decorative tuck.

Now rip the hem and press flat. If you have any of the same fabric left, you can face the hem with this. If not, a very effective decorative touch can be achieved by using a contrasting color. Try to use one of the colors already prominent in the dress.

Make the facing wide enough so that you can hand whip your new hem under the tuck. One point to remember: If you lengthen a dress and make a narrow hem, it is a dead give away that it had to be let down. Another tell-tale look, is the line of the old hem.

When we have questions like this one, we welcome your suggestions.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"On examining some very expensive ready made reversible coats, I found the material was different on both sides, but appeared to be woven together. These coats had no lining or facings. I don't know how the seams could be finished so that they would look good on either side."

Mrs. C. C. T.

Dear Mrs. C. C. T.:

The type of fabric you are referring to is actually two pieces of fabric that have been put together with invisible stitches. One of the main objections to reversible coats in the past was that the two pieces of fabric didn't stay together and consequently, one would invariably hang down under the other. With this new type of fabric, you will not have this problem.

When cutting your garment, allow a little extra for all the seams. When making your seams, use a ¾" seam instead of ⅝". Press both seams together, to one side. After they have been pressed, trim the seam allowance of the lower piece of fabric to ¼".

Now fold the top seam allowance over the trimmed seam and baste to hold. Machine stitch on the fold, be sure your machine stitching is exactly the same distance from the seam. This actually forms a flat-felled seam. It will give your garment a very attractive "welt" appearance and will look good on both sides.

The edges of your coat may be finished by applying braid, self bias, or leather binding. Your garment will definitely have a custom look.

Please send all questions and inquiries to Sew Simple, care of The World.

Tweeds, Ribs Cued For Fall Suit Honors

Tweeds, ribs, brushed surfaces, plaids and checks are all cued for suit fashions. In more dressy fashions, suitings are summed up in elegant textures whether ribbed, fleecy or nubby.

There are two color candidates for top honors in color—one campaigns on the bright color ticket in clear reds, gold, Chinese blue, bright browns and warm mink tones as well as bright plaids and checks; these vie with more somber, vintage hues of claret, burgundy and chianta; amethyst, plum and deep beiges, assorted violet variations, tobacco, taupes and darkened neutrals.

Ultimate In Style Now Seen In Maternity Wear

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Maternity clothes are probably the biggest single clothes problem women ever face. Once they solved the whole business by retreating from public view altogether. But since it has become socially acceptable not only to be seen but to remain active on the job or in community life, clothes have to be at least presentable.

The first solution, about 20 years ago, was the tent dress. It fell straight from the shoulders, widening as it went. All right for concealment, but all too like a sack. There wasn't much to make one feel happy in it.

Then some bright brain came up with the two-piece idea. A slim skirt could be worn if a large hole was cut in at the waistline and concealed by a tent-shaped top.

This style has remained popular up to the present. All sorts of pretty things can be done with the top, and a woman who remains reasonably slim during pregnancy can be dressed quite as gaily as usual.

However, this style doesn't lend itself to "after" wearing. Nobody wants to go around perpetually in skirts with holes in them. And since wearing time for strictly maternity clothes is, after all, short, one bought as few as possible and was heartily sick of them by the time the baby arrived.

So now it's back to the one-piece dress. A couple of seasons ago when the Empire line was the rage, maternity dress designers discovered that this high-waisted silhouette was ideal for their purposes. At that time, several of my friends wore Empire dresses that hadn't even been designed for maternity use.

Since then, designers have gone on developing the Empire in a number of clever ways. At one manufacturers they have a costume in tapestry and chiffon. The small bodice of the empire dress is in tapestry, the floating skirt in the chiffon. Over it goes a dramatic coat of the tapestry.

For days this house likes the separates look, but uses the Empire line here, too. Over slim skirt and pants go tunics with modified Empire silhouette. They are sleeveless, taking blouses beneath with pretty necklines.

Other styles are pleats, plastrons, fur touches and inside ties to create a group of dresses that can be worn as long as any others. The pleats fare fine and fall from just below the bust in long, slimming lines, while the bodice is treated with wide, square seaming that keeps the eye at the neckline.

When an outside sash is used, it ties high under the bust. Wide sleeves and a circle of fur at the neckline create bodice interest. Soft gathers under the sash are meant to be released as time goes by.

Another one likes the slim, cut-out skirt topped by a long tunic whose front is entirely flat-pleated. Held under the bustline by a flat self-bow, the tunic is full in back.

I saw a holiday costume so beautiful I would have worn it myself. The top was in gauzy organza, woven with sparkling nylon thread, and sunburst pleated all around from a softly rolled and scarved neckline. The organza was placed over an underlayer of opaque crepe. In champagne beige, the top was to be worn with a black velvet skirt.

The gayest thing about all these pretty maternity clothes is their frank espousal of color. Since women have taken to keeping their weight down while pregnant, there is less and less need for dull or dark shades in maternity clothes. Red, beige, royal blue, and all kinds of gay prints and stripes can be found.

It would seem that maternity these days is becoming another aspect of fashion, rather than a period to be endured.

NEWS IN THE familiar two-piece maternity style is made by this crisp flat-pleated tunic, held under the bust by a self-bow, released in the back. Wide bateau neckline gives illusion of slimness to figure below.

FASHION'S LOVE for fur is carried into smart one-piece maternity dresses like this wool model. Beaver circles the neckline and a high sash under the bust holds soft gathers that can be released. Sleeves and bodice are cut in one piece.

District Music Directors Hold Dinner In City

The Paragon Club was the scene of a 7 o'clock dinner Tuesday night held by District 1 vocal music directors, with Miss Hermione Driskell, Monroe, as acting hostess.

Pink roses combined with pink Country Girl chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece for the dinner table.

Miss Edith Cotton, Louisiana Tech, Ruston, presided over a business session following dinner at which time officers were elected for the ensuing two years.

The new officers are Mrs. M. R. Brady, Dubach, chairman and Miss Driskell, secretary.

Remainder of the evening was spent in a general discussion of district and state festivals to be held next March. The group also discussed improvement of standards for elementary and junior high music and a committee was appointed to study needed improvements. The committee is composed of Miss Joan Lay, chairman, Mrs. Joe Caskey, E. McClung, and Miss Driskell.

Those present were Miss Elizabeth Landis and Mr. McClung, Winnsboro; Miss Dorothy Roach, Wisner; Mrs. Edleen Marczak, Gilbert; Miss Kathleen Chipley, Rayville; Miss Edith Cotton and Kendall Hearn, both of Ruston; Solon King, Mrs. A. R. Kilpatrick, representing Ouachita Parish schools; Miss Nina Sue Harris, Miss Joan Lay, Mrs. Joe Caskey and Miss Hermione Driskell, Monroe City Schools and Mrs. M. R. Brady, Dubach.

Calico And Rickrack Fad In Tots Fashions On Wane

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The calico and rickrack fad in small fashions is on the wane. But what's to succeed it?

One of the few men designers of children's dresses said, "Frankly I don't know. But I hope children's wear is headed for a period of casual, simple lines. Not a return to frills and fluff . . . but relying on design, not on fabric and trim, to sell dresses."

The designer speaking was Clyde Grant, a Navy veteran of World War II, who succeeded in the adult fashion world before he joined Jack Bargenicht, Inc., a 70-year-old firm and the first to mass produce children's dresses.

Grant, a native of Montgomery, Ala., won a scholarship to the Harris School of Advertising Art, in Nashville, Tenn., before he was through high school.

He was doing window decorating for a store in his hometown when he was offered a job in Hollywood making an art film for the United Nations Office of Public Information. The film, done in animated art form, took first place in the California State Art Film Awards.

DESIGNED FOR TV

He stayed around the film capital — working with Paramount Pictures' chief designer Edith Head on costumes for several pictures. From Paramount, he went to the Dinah Shore television show for a year, and also did the clothes for a number of shows starring Tony Martin.

Grant set out for New York four years ago "because I'd never been here before" and while loafing around to "get the feel of the town" furthered his training at the Traphagen School of Fashion. He said he was doing all right financially as a free-lance designer for a couple of boutique shops, but figured if he were to get anywhere in New York, he'd better settle down to the security of one manufacturer.

A "job wanted" ad in Women's Wear Daily, the trade publication, brought a call from Borgenicht. "I'd never thought of doing children's dresses," said Grant, "but Bergenicht liked the sketches I took in. He said they were just enough 'way out,' and what the industry needed was some new blood."

USES UNUSUAL COLORS

Grant has been with the firm for nearly two years, doing four collections a year for three size groups. They are the three to six-X, the seven to 14, and the six to 14 for sub-teens.

Grant includes the wide sashes and full skirts little girls always have worn — he called them "bread and butter" items. But the stamp of the artist shows in the rich "portrait" colors of plum and rich burgundy he used in the 1960 holiday line and in his one-man war on a couple of "don'ts" in the industry — don't put little girls in green or beige.

"Beige is wonderful on little blondes," said Grant. "And put green on a pink - skinned little brunette; it's terribly pretty."

Barkdull Faulk PTA Benefit To Aid School

Mrs. Harry Greenwood presided over a meeting of the Barkdull Faulk Parent - Teacher Association held Thursday at the school.

During the business session Mrs. Sam Brinson, treasurer, made a report on the recent spaghetti supper, proceeds from which will go toward playground and school improvements.

Special guests for the program were Van Odom, superintendent of schools and Sidney Seegers, principal of Neville high school and school board members.

Mr. Seegers spoke on the recent evaluation of the city school system, which was followed by a panel discussion with school board members participating.

A fellowship period was held in the library at the conclusion of the meeting.

School Phobia Is Common Childhood Disease Today

BY MARY CAMPBELL

CHICAGO (AP) — A common childhood disease that parents aren't always aware of is called school phobia. The symptoms: The youngster doesn't want to go to school, or he's afraid to go.

Dr. Jerome Schulman, attending psychiatrist at Children's Memorial Hospital, says school phobia strikes nearly all children at some time or other. Usually it happens when the child wakes up in the morning, realizes it's the day for a test, and suddenly has a stomach ache.

Treatment is easy, says Dr. Schulman. Boot him out and send him to school, or tell him he'll have to spend the whole day in bed with no playing. If he's not sick, this prospect may sound so dull he'll discover he fells like going to school after all.

Sometimes, Dr. Schulman says, the child may convince himself and his parents that he really is sick. Then he stays home from school and his mother takes care of him.

The doctor says illness can be mutually satisfactory to mother and child when the child doesn't want to grow up —perhaps from dread of competing with other children — and the mother finds it strengthening to keep her child a baby and dependent on her.

With this combination of mother and child, both can keep finding excuses why it's not good for the child to start back to school today, and the stomach ache may go on from day to day.

When the child stays home several days, it's time for father or someone else to step in, the doctor says, and take the child to the family physician. He can treat the organic illness if there is one or send the child back to school.

At Children's Memorial Hospital each year Dr. Schulman sees about 20 children with school phobia, some of whom haven't been to school for years.

Most of these, he says, start with a real illness. The child is in a hospital or at home for a long time. Then, when it is almost time for him to go back to school, he begins to be afraid.

He tells himself, "Maybe my friends will make fun of me; I won't be in the gang any more; I'm so far behind in my lessons I'll never catch up."

He wants to put off facing the return to school. Real symptoms shade off into a continuation of symptoms. He may fool his mother, or, again, she may enjoy coddling and caring for him, and subtly encourage him to stay at home.

The longer this goes on, with the child getting farther behind in classwork and more out of touch with his friends, Dr. Schulman says, the harder it is for him to go back to school. The family needs to see a doctor, who may send them to a psychiatrist.

Stomach pains and headaches which really are school phobia may be most pronounced during school hours, Dr. Schulman says, but not always. He says a child with school phobia usually is bright and imaginative, able to think of lots of good excuses and keep his symptoms consistent.

It's not a new discovery. Mark Twain was aware of disease and treatment. When Tom Sawyer awoke on a Monday morning with a sore toe, only to be told by his Aunt Polly, "Now you shut up that nonsense and climb out of this bed."

Lively Colors, Fluid Lines In Fashion Splash

Zestful and full of zing, new fashions launch the young crowd into fall on a wave of fun. To be seen in class, campus and career locales are.

Lively, almost startling colors. Kelly green, shocking pink, turquoise, bright yellow, vivid blues, orange- flaming- and brick reds make a fashion spash, separately or together in daring combinations.

Animal prints and fur imitations. A whole zoo of animals cavorts through young wardrobes. Leopard, zebra and jaguar prints are on the spot for blouses, skirts, suits, jackets and coats. Pile fabrics emulate broadtail, curly lamb, ocelot and seal.

Overblouses and tunics. The blouse that drops below the waist with easy, fluid lines, is a fall signature. Overblouse look is popular for one and two pieces dresses, too. Tunics continue summer sleevelessness, as tops that reveal a long-sleeved blouse or sweater beneath.

Bulky sweaters, dressy sweaters. Longer sweaters illustrate the fashion trend to lowered waistlines. Bulky knits and shaggy textures are effective. For dressier occasions are smooth knits with pretty details.

Skirts in motion. Even the slimmest skirts are easier, and some styles are really bountiful. There are dirndls, hip-stitched pleats, bias-cut bold plaids, other types with soft fullness. Popular cropped jacket tops many. Slender skirts with dropped waistbands match up with longer jackets.

Culottes and knickers. Culottes or divided skirts come in all lengths — full length, street length, and above the knee. The shortest compete with bermudas for attention. Knickers, often in plaid, are a fun fashion joining the ranks of the many casual pants styles.

Hoods and belts. Hoods top off blouses, sweaters, jackets, coats — including the always popular car coat. Belts mark normal or lowered waistlines — spaghetti strings for sweaters and blouses, wider belts for dresses and skirts. Newest looking belt idea is the sash or robelike tie.

Cover-up look for dressse. High, jewel necklines and bracelet length sleeves mark many day and date dresses. Dress and jacket costumes combine covered-up look with bared necklines.

Spring Fashions Offer Personal 'Look' For '61

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spring fashion collections provide something for everybody — all we women have to do is decide on a personal "look" for 1961.

We can go gay and giddy with color, or stick to black and white, neutral gray or beige. We can choose full skirts, or slim skirts, or trouser skirts for the spring suit or ensemble. And coats come from sweeping pyramid silhouettes to straight columns with slits at the sides.

We can keep our hemlines high, hovering just at the knee where they've been for a couple of seasons, or haul them down almost to mid-calf, if we prefer a look promulgated by the French-born designer, Pauline Trigere.

NO BIG TREND

For the biggest news to come from the New York collections shown the last four weeks to buyers and fashion reporters is that there is no one gigantic trend, as we've had in past seasons when the sack or the raised waistline (empire) dominated.

Instead there are many small changes, mostly in color, fabric and details.

Take the matter of color. Brilliant is the most apt way to describe some of the new pinks, blues, yellows and greens which overwhelm the muted tones that the trend to bright tones is in what Jacques Tiffeau created for his Tiffeau - Busch collection. There was little other than pink in his collection, ranging from pale rose to bright watermelon and peony.

For the woman scared of strong colors, there still will be neutral shades. Less navy than in previous seasons, but designers love the "strong" tones — off - white, ivory and pale beige.

Fabrics grow airier each season. Woolens have a spongy, souffle texture. Cottons in turn look more like wool. The silk print dress paired with a solid shade coat is a favorite at all houses. And at Trigere, there is a group of costumes in sheer wools which look like cotton denim, batiste or gingham.

Change in detail shows most frequently in bias cut yokes, in collars, sleeves, and garment closings.

Parisienne Urges Femininity In Working Girls

By VIVIAN BROWN
... AP Newsfeatures Writer

The working girl should maintain femininity above all else, says one of France's most elegant working women, Mrs. Marcel Rochas.

Men do not like brisk business women, believes this Parisian beauty who spends three days weekly running a perfume business inherited when her husband died five years ago.

The working girl should develop her personality, attitudes and clothing along feminine lines to dispel the notion that she is a manly part of a man's world. Keeping feminine - looking after work is especially important to the married working girl, she says.

"French women do try to emphasize their feminine charm even though they must earn a living. They have no desire to impress a man with their business sense."

Christmas Day Vows Set By Miss Burford, Fiance

Miss Sandra Lynn Burford, daughter of Mrs. L. N. Larche of Monroe and B. G. Burford of Bradenton, Florida, will become the bride of Charles Ray McCullen on December 25. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd E. McCullen of Simsboro.

The ceremony will be performed at 4 o'clock Christmas Day in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Foster, Monroe, aunt and uncle of the bride-elect. Rev. T. Earl Ogg will officiate.

Mrs. Mildred Walters, sister of the bride-elect, will serve as matron of honor and Don Ed McCullen, brother of the future bridegroom, will be best man.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. W. F. Odom and the late Mr. Odom, and Mr. and Mrs T. C. Burford, all of Monroe. Her fiance is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Barlett of Simsboro and the late Mr. and Mrs. M. E. McCullen.

Miss Burford was graduated from Neville high school and Mr. McCullen from Simsboro high school. Both are at present attending Northeast Louisiana State College.

They plan to establish a home in Monroe where they will continue studies at Northeast.

Mrs. Bingham Is New Member Of Music Guild

Mrs. David Bingham was introduced as a new member of The Music Guild when it met in the home of Mrs. R. A. Morgan in Fairbanks. Co-hostesses for the November meeting were Mrs. Veo T. Gray and Mrs. J. Norman Coon.

A report was given on the Guild's junior club, the La Petite Musicale.

The program opened with the hymn of the month, "Praise to the Lord, the Almighty," presented by Mrs. Rabun Wroten. Mrs. C. L. Dillingham gave the text on the transformation from romanticism to nationalism as reflected in music which was followed by the musical portion of the program.

Selections included "Polonaise," Chopin by Mrs. Wayne Medley; "British Children's Prayer," Wolfe, by Mrs. Donald Logan; "The Cat and Mouse," Aaron Copeland," by Miss Betty Pope; "Songs My Mother Taught Me," Dvorak by Mrs. Cecil Hill and "Over the Steppe," Gretchinoff by Mrs. J. Norman Coon.

Members present were Mrs. Tommy Spurlock, Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. C. L. Dillingham, Mrs. Wayne Medley, Mrs. Marvin Shipp, Mrs. Robert Davis vin Smith, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. Cecil Hill, Mrs. Marvin Bliss, Mrs. David Bingham, Mrs. R. A. Cretney, Mrs. Veo T. Gray, Mrs. Jack Kimball, Mrs. Robert Wroten, Mrs. Donald Logan, Mrs. Earl Ogg, Mrs. R. A. Morgan, Miss Betty Pope and Mrs. Max Dillingham.

PURE, GAY FASHION fun is the abbreviated "knee tickler" skirt that's become a campus favorite everywhere. The crisply pleated skirt (just above the knee) is shown here with a long pull crew-necked slipover in shaggy kitten-soft wool. Highlighting the costume is the colorful muffler worn over the head which blends the tones of the ensemble.

Lakeshore PTA Hears Talk On Students' Work

W. W. Ward, superintendent of Ouachita Parish School system, was guest speaker for the Lakeshore Parent-Teacher Association when it met Thursday night at the school.

In presenting his topic "These Are Our Children At Work," he stressed the importance of the curriculum and the need for all parents to seriously study the work their children are required to do and to determine if the work is being done that will prepare them for the changing world in which they live.

Stanley Brister, first vice-president, conducted the business session in the absence of Dr. Fred J. Vogel. Group singing was led by Mrs. F. S. Fisher, accompanied by Miss Evelyn Duke.

Mrs. Maude Gore, school librarian, outlined the parents reading course being sponsored by Miss Sallie Farrell, chairman of Library Services and Children's Reading and urged all parents to secure a list of books and read the required number for a certificate.

Mrs. Louise Thacker's first grade won the room count award. Sixth grade parents were hosts and served refreshments during the social hour.

Cropping The Coats

Length as well as styling is varied in fall coats. Nine-tenths length, showing just a bit of the dress or skirt beneath, is frequently seen, especially in costume coats with their own dresses or suits. Other coats stop at three-quarter and seven-eighths lengths.

Always Taste It!

You need to test a baked product for doneness even though a recipe specifies a definite baking time. Ovens vary! To test a cake, insert a wire tester into the center; if no bits of uncooked batter stick to it — if it comes out clean — your cake is done.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

How to sew your clothes to look as if they come from the costume room rather than the dressgoods department, is expertly detailed by teacher Eunice Farmer. Save her columns, which appear each Sunday for reference.

"Dear Eunice,

"At last, someone to help us with all our sewing problems. All of my friends have the same difficulty, namely "Buttonholes." We have all ruined many otherwise well made clothes by this detail. Any help you can give us will be more than welcome."

Mrs. B. E. C.

Dear Mrs. B. E. C.:

Buttonholes are one of the most important details of a garment and must be made to perfection. Of all the questions I have received, yours is the most common.

You may receive your detailed, easy to follow Bound Buttonhole instructions by sending a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Sew Simple, in care of your local paper. I will guarantee professional looking buttonholes if you will carefully follow each step.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"Now that school is again in session, most mothers are faced with the same problems. How to lengthen the hems of girls dresses without a home-make look. How can we keep the old hemline mark from showing?"

Mrs. M. B.

Dear Mrs. M. B.:

Our readers have sent me many suggestions for lengthening dresses successfully. I will tell you about the one that has impressed me the most. In fact, I tried it with my youngest daughter, and I like the appearance almost better than when the dress was new.

First, without ripping the hem out, machine stitch ½" from the lower edge of the hem, this will form a decorative tuck.

Now rip the hem and press flat. If you have any of the same fabric left, you can face the hem with this. If not, a very effective decorative touch can be achieved by using a contrasting color. Try to use one of the colors already prominent in the dress.

Make the facing wide enough so that you can hand whip your new hem under the tuck. One point to remember: If you lengthen a dress and make a narrow hem, it is a dead give away that it had to be let down. Another telltale look, is the line of the old hem.

When we have questions like this one, we welcome your suggestions.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"On examining some very expensive ready made reversible coats, I found the material was different on both sides, but appeared to be woven together. These coats had no lining or facings. I don't know how the seams could be finished so that they would look good on either side."

Mrs. C. C. T.

Dear Mrs. C. C. T.:

The type of fabric you are referring to is actually two pieces of fabric that have been put together with invisible stitches. One of the main objections to reversible coats in the past was that the two pieces of fabric didn't stay together and consequently, one would invariably hang down under the other. With this new type of fabric, you will not have this problem.

When cutting your garment, allow a little extra for all the seams. When making your seams, use a ¾" seam instead of ⅝". Press both seams together, to one side. After they have been pressed, trim the seam allowance of the lower piece of fabric to ¼".

Now fold the top seam allowance over the trimmed seam and baste to hold. Machine stitch on the fold, be sure your machine stitching is exactly the same distance from the seam. This actually forms a flat-felled seam. It will give your garment a very attractive "welt" appearance and will look good on both sides.

The edges of your coat may be finished by applying braid, self bias, or leather binding. Your garment will definitely have a custom look.

Please send all questions and inquiries to Sew Simple, care of The World.

Tweeds, Ribs Cued For Fall Suit Honors

Tweeds, ribs, brushed surfaces, plaids and checks are all cued for suit fashions. In more dressy fashions, suitings are summed up in elegant textures whether ribbed, fleecy or nubby.

There are two color candidates for top honors in color—one campaigns on the bright color ticket in clear reds, gold, Chinese blue, bright browns and warm mink tones as well as bright plaids and checks; these vie with more somber, vintage hues of claret, burgundy and chianta; amethyst, plum and deep bieges, assorted violet variations, tobacco, taupes and darkened neutrals.

GINA LOLLOBRIGIDA, caught in a secluded cabin, struggles in vain to free herself from the ruthless clutches of Yves Montand in a scene from Joseph E. Levine's "Where the Hot Wind Blows." The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre.

'HOT WIND BLOWS'

Dramatic Picture Coming To Jim

The explosive talents of Gina Lollobrigida and Yves Montand, two of the screen's most exciting personalities, merge in one of the year's most provocative dramas, "Where The Hot Wind Blows," opening Wednesday at the Jim Theatre.

Filmed in Sicily, this Joseph E. Levine presentation dramatically traces the story of a small fishing village and its inhabitants, the most powerful of which, Brigante, as played by Montand, holds nothing sacred but his own personal power. His strong arm hold on Porto Manacore applies to all except the village's untamed beauty, Marietta, portrayed by Miss Lolobrigida, who refuses to be controlled by any man.

Montand, one of the entertainment world's most versatile performers, brings to life the Brigante character made famous by author Roger Vailland in his best-selling novel, "The Law," which won France's highest literary honor, the Prix Goncourt, and was a Book-of-the-Month selection in this country.

FAVORITE

An international singing favorite who rocketed to fame via the song and dance route in France following the end of World War II, Montand received world-wide acclaim for his dramatic performance in "Wages of Fear," which prompted Producer Bar to cast him in the lusty role of the evil Brigante.

A Montand's co-star in the Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer release, Miss Lollobrigida continues to rank as one of the cinema world's most sought after actresses. Since she began her career some 15 years ago, her leading men include Frank Sinatra, Yul Brynner and Tony Curtis among others.

DICK BORGARDE portrays a fabulous composer-pianist in "Song Without End" a CinemaScope-color production starring Capucine. The picture opens today at the Paramount.

'Song Without End' About Franz Liszt

William Goetz' "Song Without End," the story of composer-pianist Franz Liszt whose loves were as tempestuous as his music, opens today at the Paramount Theatre. A Columbia Pictures release in CinemaScope and Eastman Color, "Song Without End" stars Dirk Bogarde, England's top romantic actor, as the musical genius whose vibrant personality and enormous talent swept all Europe before him. Capucine, an amazingly beautiful French model-turned-actress, stars with Bogarde as the Russian princess whose love inspired Liszt.

FEATURED

Genevieve Page is featured in the film's principal supporting role, that of the Countess Marie who, for love of Liszt, left her husband and lived with the composer for several years. Patricia Morison is seen as the celebrated writer George Sand, Liszt's friend; Ivan Desny, as Capucine's husband, who refuses her a divorce when she wants to wed the romantic Liszt; Martita Hunt, as the Grand Duchess who tries to help the lovetossed pair, and Lou Jacobi, as Liszt's concert manager.

While on a concert tour, Liszt meets Capucine, a Russian princess who recognizes his genius as a composer. They fall deeply in love, although she also is married, and her inspiraiton helps Liszt compose music until his fame as a composer eclipses his success as a performer.

EXCITEMENT

"Song Without End" is said to be not only a story of the private life and loves of a genius but it also reportedly projects, in music, the cultural excitement of his time. Some of the greatest music ever written — by Liszt himself; Beethoven, Chopin, Wagner, Bach, Handel, Mendelssohn, Verdi, Schumann and Paganini — pours from the soundtrack.

Interiors of Europe's concert halls, opera houses, palaces and cathedrals background the beauty of "Song Without End." The famed Schonbrunn Palace, the celebrated Schloss Theatre, the Hofburg Palace and Esterhazy Castle are some of the film's spectacular landmarks seen in film's spectacular landmarks seen in the film.

PORTRAYING Franklin Delano Roosevelt in "Sunrise at Campobello," is Ralph Bellamy. The Technicolor picture which co-stars Greer Garson opens November 13 at the Paramount.

Strange Lot Cast In TV Cowboy Roles

By JOE FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Producers of TV horse operas, ever on the lookout for unique cowboys, have done themselves justice by casting a one-eyed gunman whose aim certainly can't be the best.

The whole idea of having semi-invalids play regular roles in TV shows probably started with "Gunsmoke's" gimpy legged handyman "Chester" and progressed all the way to a gunfighter with one arm.

SIDEKICK

The one-eyed character is Read Morgan, cast as the sidekick of Henry Fonda and Allen Case in "The Deputy."

"The first show I did was the worst because I had nothing to do but play checkers," Read said. "The only other thing I did was play poker with the wranglers between scenes and it cost me $25.

"In the series, I'm a cavalry sergeant who got his eye poked and that's why I wear the patch".

Even though he's only got an injured optic, Morgan's TV chances are slim that it'll heal up as long as the show is on the air.

"Those things never heal," he laughed, looking towards a full time job. "Everytime I cry, it opens again."

Morgan, playing a cavalry man who's been sidelined with the injury, pals around with Case and helps fill the void on the many shows in which Fonda does not prominently appear.

CAUGHT ON

"I think the character has caught on," Read claimed, admitting his job has been an uphill battle.

"When you come into a series that has been on the air a year with two stars, one of whom has the stature of Fonda, you've got to allow time for character development," he explained. "But, people have started to recognize me, even without the patch."

Morgan was asked if he plays "honest injun," with no peep holes in the patch.

"A lot of people have suggested that I poke a hole in the patch", he revealed. "But, I figured I should play it straight."

Stout fellow that Morgan, not wanting to rig any of his killings.

"Besides, if you're playing the part of someone who has a disability, do it right," he said. "But that I don't mean if the character has lost his leg that the actor should get his own cut off though.

Playwright Due For New Activity

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennessee Williams, playwright, is turning now to musical activities.

The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, announcing his election to membership, disclosed the dramatist has written the lyrics to three songs, "Heavenly Grass," "Lonesome Man" and "Sugar in the Cane."

Curtain Call

By B. B. STRON

The very deserving and hard-working cast and crew of "The Seven Year Itch," were entertained with a very delightful party at the home of Ray and Katherine Magruder last Saturday night. They were very ably entertained by Bessie Mullican and Patricia Peyton, who did a take-off on "Seven Year Itch," which was orignated and performed by them, entitled "Series of Blackouts." It was superb, and was so well done, that they were called upon to do an encore later in the evening. We may be calling on them later on.

If you are one of those, and most of us fall into that category, who drive by the new theatre site periodically, we know you have noticed that the concrete roof is now on the building, and it is beginning to look like a theatre. Things are shaping up and it won't be too long before we will be enjoying our new "Strauss Memorial Playhouse." Our membership is over the 1,600 mark, and we are so happy to be a part of this wonderful organization.

Our director, Richard Clark, and Pat, have just returned from the Southwest Theatre Conference in Baton Rouge. They are bubbling over with enthusiasm, and were privileged to hear two outstanding speakers during the sessions. Mrs. H. Alvyn Janes-brown, vice - chairman of the International Cultural Exchange Service of the American Theatre Association, spoke to the group on "The Arts in International Understanding," Henry Hewes, drama editor and critic for the "Saturday Review of Literature," gave an address on "How Real Should Theatre Be." Both of these were wonderful speakers and most informative on these subjects. Richard and Pat were also privileged to see two productions during the conference. The LSU Drama Department presented their production of "Look Homeward Angel." Our own Joan Magruder had the lead and gave her usual excellent performance. They also enjoyed the Baton Rouge Little Theatre's production of "Inherit the Wind." An annual award is presented by the Conference and was presented for the second time to Joan Rosenfield of the "Dallas Morning News" for his outstanding reviews. Richard and Pat are home and very enthusiastic about the new play which is about to get into rehearsal, and enjoyed the conference extremely.

Turning out for tryouts for "The Gazebo" at the theatre Monday night were Jo Ann Ussery, V. P. Dalrymple, Carl Slakter, Jo Brain, Pat Davis, Gerry Lester, Margaret Fryant, Charlene Correro, Dot Elmendorf, Judy and Bob Evans, Frances Yeldell, Frances Hunt, Carolyn Gwin, Patricia Peyton, Claude Fuller, Keith Scrogin, Barbara Breeland, Bill Lentz, Joyce Fowler, Gail Ulrich, Arthur Griffith, Patsy Pickett, Marylene Higginbotham, Violet Cotton, Bill Blythe, Betty Sugar, Mr. and Mrs. Sales, Scherck Bogen, Pat Clark, Julius Chan, Mary Gill, Jim Knuckles, W. J. Haddad, Kay McDonald, Sharon Peters, Sybil Boyd, Leigh Gonzales, Katherine Magruder, Ray Magruder, Lallage Feazel, Shady Wall, BB Stron, Jessica Lawn, George Patterson, Dell Moore, Curtis Rape, and Betty Bandy.

School Phobia Is Common Childhood Disease Today

BY MARY CAMPBELL

CHICAGO (AP) — A common childhood disease that parents aren't always aware of is called school phobia. The symptoms: The youngster doesn't want to go to school, or he's afraid to go.

Dr. Jerome Schulman, attending psychiatrist at Children's Memorial Hospital, says school phobia strikes nearly all children at some time or other. Usually it happens when the child wakes up in the morning, realizes it's the day for a test, and suddenly has a stomach ache.

Treatment is easy, says Dr. Schulman. Boot him out and send him to school, or tell him he'll have to spend the whole day in bed with no playing. If he's not sick, this prospect may sound so dull he'll discover he fells like going to school after all.

Sometimes, Dr. Schulman says, the child may convince himself and his parents that he really is sick. Then he stays home from school and his mother takes care of him.

The doctor says illness can be mutually satisfactory to mother and child when the child doesn't want to grow up —perhaps from dread of competing with other children — and the mother finds it strengthening to keep her child a baby and dependent on her.

With this combination of mother and child, both can keep finding excuses why it's not good for the child to start back to school today, and the stomach ache may go on from day to day.

When the child stays home several days, it's time for father or someone else to step in, the doctor says, and take the child to the family physician. He can treat the organic illness if there is one or send the child back to school.

At Children's Memorial Hospital each year Dr. Schulman sees about 20 children with school phobia, some of whom haven't been to school for years.

Most of these, he says, start with a real illness. The child is in a hospital or at home for a long time. Then, when it is almost time for him to go back to school, he begins to be afraid.

He tells himself, "Maybe my friends will make fun of me; I won't be in the gang any more; I'm so far behind in my lessons I'll never catch up."

He wants to put off facing the return to school. Real symptoms shade off into a continuation of symptoms. He may fool his mother, or, again, she may enjoy coddling and caring for him, and subtly encourage him to stay at home.

The longer this goes on, with the child getting farther behind in classwork and more out of touch with his friends, Dr. Schulman says, the harder it is for him to go back to school. The family needs to see a doctor, who may send them to a psychiatrist.

Stomach pains and headaches which really are school phobia may be most pronounced during school hours, Dr. Schulman says, but not always. He says a child with school phobia usually is bright and imaginative, able to think of lots of good excuses and keep his symptoms consistent.

It's not a new discovery. Mark Twain was aware of disease and treatment. When Tom Sawyer awoke on a Monday morning with a sore toe, only to be told by his Aunt Polly, "Now you shut up that nonsense and climb out of this bed."

Lively Colors, Fluid Lines In Fashion Splash

Zestful and full of zing, new fashions launch the young crowd into fall on a wave of fun. To be seen in class, campus and career locales are.

Lively, almost startling colors. Kelly green, shocking pink, turquoise, bright yellow, vivid blues, orange- flaming- and brick reds make a fashion spash, separately or together in daring combinations.

Animal prints and fur imitations. A whole zoo of animals cavorts through young wardrobes. Leopard, zebra and jaguar prints are on the spot for blouses, skirts, suits, jackets and coats. Pile fabrics emulate broadtail, curly lamb, ocelot and seal.

Overblouses and tunics. The blouse that drops below the waist with easy, fluid lines, is a fall signature. Overblouse look is popular for one and two pieces dresses, too. Tunics continue summer sleevelessness, as tops that reveal a long-sleeved blouse or sweater beneath.

Bulky sweaters, dressy sweaters. Longer sweaters illustrate the fashion trend to lowered waistlines. Bulky knits and shaggy textures are effective. For dressier occasions are smooth knits with pretty details.

Skirts in motion. Even the slimmest skirts are easier, and some styles are really bountiful. There are dirndls, hip-stitched pleats, bias-cut bold plaids, other types with soft fullness. Popular cropped jacket tops many. Slender skirts with dropped waistbands match up with longer jackets.

Culottes and knickers. Culottes or divided skirts come in all lengths — full length, street length, and above the knee. The shortest compete with bermudas for attention. Knickers, often in plaid, are a fun fashion joining the ranks of the many casual pants styles.

Hoods and belts. Hoods top off blouses, sweaters, jackets, coats — including the always popular car coat. Belts mark normal or lowered waistlines — spaghetti strings for sweaters and blouses, wider belts for dresses and skirts. Newest looking belt idea is the sash or robelike tie.

Cover-up look for dressse. High, jewel necklines and bracelet length sleeves mark many day and date dresses. Dress and jacket costumes combine covered-up look with bared necklines.

Spring Fashions Offer Personal 'Look' For '61

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spring fashion collections provide something for everybody — all we women have to do is decide on a personal "look" for 1961.

We can go gay and giddy with color, or stick to black and white, neutral gray or beige. We can choose full skirts, or slim skirts, or trouser skirts for the spring suit or ensemble. And coats come from sweeping pyramid silhouettes to straight columns with slits at the sides.

We can keep our hemlines high, hovering just at the knee where they've been for a couple of seasons, or haul them down almost to mid-calf, if we prefer a look promulgated by the French-born designer, Pauline Trigere.

NO BIG TREND

For the biggest news to come from the New York collections shown the last four weeks to buyers and fashion reporters is that there is no one gigantic trend, as we've had in past seasons when the sack or the raised waistline (empire) dominated.

Instead there are many small changes, mostly in color, fabric and details.

Take the matter of color. Brilliant is the most apt way to describe some of the new pinks, blues, yellows and greens which overwhelm the muted tones that the trend to bright tones is in what Jacques Tiffeau created for his Tiffeau - Busch collection. There was little other than pink in his collection, ranging from pale rose to bright watermelon and peony.

For the woman scared of strong colors, there still will be neutral shades. Less navy than in previous seasons, but designers love the "strong" tones — off - white, ivory and pale beige.

Fabrics grow airier each season. Woolens have a spongy, souffle texture. Cottons in turn look more like wool. The silk print dress paired with a solid shade coat is a favorite at all houses. And at Trigere, there is a group of costumes in sheer wools which look like cotton denim, batiste or gingham.

Change in detail shows most frequently in bias cut yokes, in collars, sleeves, and garment closings.

Parisienne Urges Femininity In Working Girls

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The working girl should maintain femininity above all else, says one of France's most elegant working women, Mrs. Marcel Rochas.

Men do not like brisk business women, believes this Parisian beauty who spends three days weekly running a perfume business inherited when her husband died five years ago.

The working girl should develop her personality, attitudes and clothing along feminine lines to dispel the notion that she is a manly part of a man's world. Keeping feminine - looking after work is especially important to the married working girl, she says.

"French women do try to emphasize their feminine charm even though they must earn a living. They have no desire to impress a man with their business sense."

THE HOME SHIFT

Good Season To Garden

By MILDRED SWIFT

The cool days have given gardners pep. Seems everybody wants to move everything. All summer we've looked at those shrubs, seeing how much better the yard picture would be if this plant was moved to that spot and plant moved to this spot. Remember though, it's best to make a landscape plan. Then you know where you're going. Also, we don't tire our help (often the husband) moving the same plants every year. Maybe "disgust" is a better word than tire. Remember the husband who said his wife's plants should be on wheels.

THE MOVING

Now back to transplanting. Wait until we have some frosts and rains. The nurserymen wouldn't even sell you a deciduous plant or shrub now, because the plants haven't lost their leaves. These plants are moved with roots bare. So - take note from that and wait until plants that lost their leaves have dropped them.

Now for evergreens - these are moved with a ball of earth. That is - if you have the kind of help who can do that. Run-of-the-mill help and husband help (no disrespect intended) seldom can move a good -sized evergreen with a ball of dirt. The plant will stand a better chance (unless it's moved professionally) if you'll wait until it is a little more dormant and the soil has more moisture.

Now, if you wish to buy a balled and burlapped or bucket evergreen, that's different. The plant already has the soil ready to plant. Of course you'll have to water the plant until the rains come. The actual preparation of the hole we've discussed so many times. Just remember don't put any type fertilizer under or around the plant. Wait until the second year before fertilizing. There are no established roots, yet to use the food. Fertilizer would burn the hair roots that are there before they had time to get a "hold" in the soil.

The above all adds up to this: wait for frosts and rains before you move anything. If you are buying, get balled and bucket plants. Leave deciduous plants until later.

SPACING

Wide spacing of plants makes for finer specimens and makes maintenance of beds easier. Also, plants spaced far enough apart can have a small levee built in a ring around them. This need not be more than two inches high. If it's firmly constructed, the area within the levee can be flooded, insuring that every drop of water seeps into the soil instead of running off and doing the plant no good. Such a plan makes watering easier and surer and saves on the water bill.

SNOWFLAKES

Snowflakes (Leucojum) are quaint little flowers that bloom in the spring, if the bulbs are put out now or next month. This is an old-fashioned bulb that our great grandmothers enjoyed and handed down to us. They have narrow, strap like dark green foliage which grows 8 to 10 inches high. The nodding bell shaped blooms of the snowflakes are the size of a small thimble - white in color, with a kely-green calyx and lighter green dot at the tip of each petal. The flowers are nice for cutting. They bloom all through February. They repeat blooms each year and require no digging or storing. They multiply rapidly, and cutural requirements are very simple. They'll grow in any type soil.

When planting snowflake bulbs, if you'll put several in the same hole the flowers will show up better. This snowflake is not to be confused with the snowdrop which blooms earlier. They're very much alike.

PERMANENT PLEATS

In answer to questions in regard to the TV program on permanent pleats in permanent finished cottons, this is the information Sue Cupit gave: Mix equal amounts of white vinegar and water. Place the garment on the ironing board. Using a sponge, put a small amount of the vinegar mixture on the crease of the pleat. Press until dry. After you've gone all around the skirt, turn to the wrong side and do the same thing. Let the garment hang for four or five hours. Wash. This can only be done with permanent finished cottons. One person misunderstood and tried the process on wool. Results — a ruined skirt.

COATS

Coats are the most dramatic of the new fashions, going all out for whatever style they're featuring. For instance, if a coat is large scale in silhouette, then it's almost tent like. If fitted, then it's completely fitted. Collars are large, rise high or are set wide. Sleeves frequently start at the waist. Flare is unrestrained.

The newest idea for dress up is the party costume in lovely damask brocade. It comes in a choice of deep jewel colors. The dress is made on slim lines with a deep open neckline. Over it is shown a waist length jacket with wide, face framing collar. It's called the theatre or party suit.

When buying a great coat, this is often a big investment. Before you buy one examine the fabric carefully. Crumple the fabric in your hand. If the wool is of good quality, it will be springy. Poor quality wool materials feel heavy, look dull and matted and have little resilience. Check all labels on coat materials. They are required by law to state the fiber content and percentage. Any fiber that is less than five per cent of the total fiber content will simply be quoted as other fabric.

There's a wide choice of beautiful furs this season. You won't have any trouble finding just the one you want within the price range that will fit your pocketbook. Mink, leopard, jaguar, Alaskan seal, nutria, fox and other varieties are being shown.

One of the most beautiful coats of the season is the blonde cloth one with matching blonde fur collar. This fur is usually fox, which is making a big comeback in Paris.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House program for next week are: Monday, Kathryn Hoyt will select and make Christmas toys; Tuesday, Ronald Ewing will show us how to make simple home electric repairs; Wednesday, flower arrangements with Gladys Kulke; Thursday and Friday, marketing with Mildred.

See you next Week.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Many Stories On Narcissus

By MARY JARDINE

Today we will recall some legends about the narcissus which does so well as a garden flower in North Louisiana.

Early Greeks named a favorite wildflower "narcissus" (meaning narcotic) because its heavy fragrance caused drowsiness. In time a legend arose explaining the flower's origin. It told of the vain youth Narcissus who fell in love with his own reflection and stayed enamored by a pool until he pined away and became the flower that bears his name. This is the poet's Narcissus which we sometimes call "pheasant's-eye" for its rimmed center.

Jonquil means "little rush" and refers to the slender leaves of these south European types with fragrant, golden flowers. They traveled to England in the 16th century and early colonists brought them to America.

CULTIVATED

For centuries the Chinese have cultivated Polyanthus narcissus (meaning many flowers) as a sacred flower for their New Year celebrations. Today it is a world-wide favorite for growing indoors in pebbles and water.

The daffodil made its social bow as an asphodel, that became Dodil, and by Sharkespeare's time the "d" had been added. He wrote of "...daffodils that came before the swallow dares ..." Spenser used the playful nickname "daffydowndilly" in his poems. Country folk once gathered these golden blooms to sell as "lent-lilies".

Narcissus flowers have a stiff central corona or crown to protect their precious pollen and attract passing insects. As if to make up for its lack of fragrance, the daffodil crown reaches trumpet proportions, making this flower largest of the "crown jewels" in the amaryllis family.

There are many short-cup daffodils in which the reduced crown resembles a bowl or chalice more than a trumpet. One is the Narcissus incomparabilis once called "great nonesuch daffodil." This species may have been born in some ancient European field from a crossing between the large trumpet and small poet's narcissus. Today we have an infinite variety of hardy short-cup daffodils.

The name Hoop-Petticoat perfectly describes this small narcissus with the stiffly flaring crown. The "petticoat" so outshines the very slender petals that they pale to insignificance. The equally small Triandus narcissus has petals that shoot back from the crown so it is described as "cyclamen-flowered." Both plants make good rock garden subjects.

There are double narcissus flowers in which the crown has split into petals, but these seem to have lost their identity or mark of distinction. The crowned single narcissi truly are jewels, ornamental but impractical, never valued as food or medicine. Their only gift is beauty, and they give it in early spring when winter-weary people are most appreciative.

WISNER CLUB

Wisner Garden Club members presented a beautiful flower show at the Garden Center. Mrs. J. G. Mitchell Sr. starred lavender chrysanthemums in her line mass arrangement. The container selected was a modern gray compote set on a black base. The background pattern was set with placements of aspidistra with furled aspidistra on the left side. Secondary placements were lavender-pink spikes of celosia. The lovely lavendar mums were massed in the center of the design and to the right for balance.

Mrs. H. A. Cruce and Mrs. R. A. Brown tilted her design "Simplicity," a design for the busy home-maker. Using a tall pillow vase set to one side of a rectangular black base they created a long-lasting design of aspidistra leaves placed in an asymmetrical pattern with folded leaves at the edge of the container. For a center of interest they used brilliant bronze dahlias. The design was so constructed that the flowers could be changed when they fade or fruit or grapes substituted in the focal area. Very lovely.

Mrs. R. R. Scatts selected a low footed brass container for her asymetrical design with a color harmony of red-violet. Dark green elaeagnus foliage formed the background pattern. Red-violet dahlias followed the established line, terminating in clusters of red-violet grapes over the rim of the container. Excellent for a living room table or buffet.

Don't forget the district meeting Ruston, November 11. Tickets for Mrs. Richardson's lecture are available at the Garden Center or from Mrs. John Tolar, telephone FA 2-5488. Hope to see you there.

Latin America In Spotlight With Stamps

LATIN AMERICA occupies the philatelic spotlight this week with the announcement of several new issues from this section of the world.

Ecuador has issued a new stamp honoring the 100th anniversary of the Red Cross. It shows the National Red Cross Building in Quito plus a portrait of Henry Dunant, founder of the Red Cross.

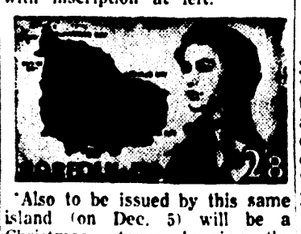
Venezuela has stated it will issue a new set of stamps early in 1961 to commemorate the 1960 National Census. There will be nine stamps for regular postage and 13 for airmail.

The World Wide Philatelic Agency, distributors for the United Nations World Refugee Year Organization, was notified by the United Nations Postal Administration about the issuance of a Pan-American set of first day covers. The set includes covers of Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Paraguay and the United States.

The cover design, a stylized pen and ink drawing of a refugee mother and child, is by Jean Cocteau. All of these covers were cancelled on April 7 (except for Columbia which bears the postmark May 24).

The covers may be obtained from your local stamp dealer.

Norfolk Island, in the South Pacific near Australia, commemorates the 100th anniversay of local government with the issuance of a new 2-8 pence stamp. The stamp is of the large Australian commemorative size. The design features the Annigoni portrait of Queen Elizabeth II at the right and a map of the island with inscription at left.



*Also to be issued by this same island (on Dec. 5) will be a Christmas stamp bearing the same design as the Australian stamp discussed and depicted in this column last week.

The United States Post Office Department reports that the pictorial first day canceliation to be applied to covers bearing the 4 cent and 8 cent Garibaldi "Champion of Liberty" stamps placed on sale Nov. 2 at Washington, D. C., feature an outline map of Italy as it was a century ago and the wording "Centenary Italian Unification."

The Swiss Philatelic Agency announced that a 5 franc United Nations stamp depicting the U.N. Building in Geneva (Palais des Nations) illustrates the Lake of Geneva and Mont Blanc in the background. The stamp is to be used to simplify payment of postage on large packets. At the same time the Swiss Postal Administration declared it is issuing three new service stamps.

Police Official Role Prelude To Bigger Portrayal

NEW YORK (AP) — From police chief to attorney general describes the rise of actor Roy Poole — who is also going from off-Broadway to Broadway.

Poole is police chief in the Jean Genet play, "The Balcony," at the Circle in the Square.

He has signed for the featured role of the attorney general in "Face of a Hero," the Robert L. Joseph play starring Jack Lemmon. It is slated to open at the Eugene O'Neill Theatre Oct. 20.

Scenes To Remember Recorded By Camera

REMBRANDT STUDY by these youths makes a picture in itself. Permission to take pictures is often obtained if a serious amateur takes the trouble to ask for it. Such was the case with our columnist who shot the above photo in the Rijk Museum in Amsterdam.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

My return from a trip aboard, on which a couple of cameras and a group of photographers were constant companions, left me with a great many photo experiences and impressions, some of which could not be captured on film.

But of one thing I'm certain: A camera and a friendly spirit form a bridge of understanding with people everywhere.

BOND

It explains that you're a tourist, starts friendships, opens doors and acts as a common bond or universal language.

It permits you to join children at play, men at work and people at leisure with a recognizable reason for your presence.

It paves the way, often, to a front row place at activities because people are apt to open a path for a camera which they wouldn't do for merely another spectator.

To be specific, there was the visit to the Rijk Art Museum in Amsterdam. Along with Ralph Miller, photo columnist for the New York World-Telegram and Sun, and in accordance with the rules, we checked our cameras at the entrance and started the tour.

We were impressed not only with the Rembrandts, Frans Hals and other famous Dutch painters but with the people who came to study them. It was Saturday morning and numerous groups of school children were present.

The urge to photograph the youngsters as they clustered around their teachers or lounged on the floor looking at the paintings, became too much. We were directed to a young lady at the information desk. Fortunately she spoke perfect English and we asked how we could get permission to use a camera to show the children's interest in art.

COOPERATIVE

She was very cooperative and made several calls until she found an official with the proper authority and a sympathtic ear. Finally he agreed it could be done under his supervision. However, by the time I retrieved my camera it was past noon and the classes were gone. But now the official seemed to have as much interest in the project as we.

He disappeared for a few moments, reappeared and motioned us to follow him. We soon saw why. He had found a trio of young boys studying a Rembrandt from a sitting position on the floor. When we shot the picture, he was as pleased as we were.

The following day we were in Volendam, a town where many of the inhabitants were native Dutch costumes, lace caps and wooden shoes. As we took pictures, we wondered out loud why some of the girls wore costumes and others didn't. An English-speaking Hollander, standing nearby, explained that only girls from authentic fishermen's families could wear the costumes. Other questions and answers followed.

FRIENDSHIPS

His interest in our cameras and our attention to his information cemented a mutual friendship and soon Ralph Miller and I had a volunteer guide, Henk Rikkers, at our service. He led us to some photogenic spots off the tourist track, introduced us to townspeople, persuaded the children to continue their playing while we took pictures — then took pictures of us with the children.

Our newly-found friend had another treat in store for us and our cameras. On a boat, which he piloted himself, he ferried us to the nearby colorful island of Marken.

House Plants Care Advised

By AUDREY DAWSON

This is an excellent time to get your house plants ready for the winter months. It is a good time to repot all house plants. Select a good potting soil. For good drainage place a layer of broken pottery or rocks in the bottom of the pots. You may select your house plants from those plants out of doors that will be killed by early frost.

Place plants in the section of the house where they will get as much sunlight as possible. Avoid placing them in dark damp areas.

Prune out all dead, diseased and broken limbs on your trees and shrubs that bloom in summer and fall. Do not prune your spring flowering shrubs because the flower buds are on the wood produced the previous season. Pruning stimulates new growth, so prune at different levels throughout the shrub, so it will grown thick and fall from the bottom.

WEIGHT WATCHERS

Very few people are overweight because of bodily disturbances. Most people are fat because they are sitting down on the job of living while continuing to eat as through they were vigorously active. For many little physical activity is needed to earn a living or to keep house.

In this age of the push button and the thermostat one no longer needs the quantities of food for warmth and energy. Wishing that you might lose weight will make it so when your wishbone is supported by a firm backbone. But you can't lose weight on those in between meal snacks. Usually they are high in calories - as an example seven potato chips 110-calories. Average section of fruit pie 350 calories - one average doughnut 120. So if you are trying to lose weight better cut out those TV snacks at night.

STORAGE SPACE

Are you Mrs. Homemaker complaining because you don't have enough storage space. Ask yourself these two questions. Is storage really lacking or isn't it properly used. How long has it been since you cleaned the closets and drawers of items that are never used. Perhaps some of us have white elephants that need to be discarded. A general rule is to discard anything that has not been used within the last year. This applies to clothing, gadgets, toys, magazines and other items that needed at some future time. With a place for eveything and everything in its place, gives a great deal more storage space in the home.

COUNCIL MEMBERS

Remember the council meeting date has been changed this month to Friday, November 11th. It will be a most exciting meeting as the winning club will be awarded a silver service by one of our local feed stores. The club having the greatest per cent of attendance at council meeting during the year will be awarded $10 in cash by Ouachita Valley Fair. The best scrapbook for year will receive $5 cash award. Doesn't it sound as though there will be plenty of surprises - so be sure to bring visitors with you for this meeting. Don't forget the date, Friday, November 11th.

Mrs. Truman Wright, citizenship chairman for the parish Home Demonstration Council, ask that I remind you to go to the polls and vote November 8th. Remember it's one of our privileges here in this good United State and we women surely want to exercise our rights and duties as homemakers.

There are no hopeless situations; there are only men who have grown hopeless about them.

'Ambassadors' Production Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry James' novel. "The Ambassadors," will come to Broadway in the form of a musical before the year is out.

Jim Downey Jr., who has unrestricted rights to the novel, reports that Worthington Miner is writing the libretto, Don Gohman the music and Hal Hackady, the lyrics.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Autumn Tea Roses Best

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Tea rose time is here again. Of course, the old tea roses have been blooming all along since Spring, but it is always in the Autumn that they are at their best. In the cemetery at St. Phillips Church in Charleston, South Carolina, last week, the little white Zephyranthes candida from Chile was in bloom around the large flat grave stones, and Ducheese de Brabant, the fragrant cup-shaped old tea rose had survived the hurricanes and the fires that have overtaken that lovely old city so many times.

BUSHES

The huge bushes of the old-fashioned tea roses are to be found these days , around old houses and in cemeteries, in the run-down and long undisturbed parts of our Southern towns and cities — and in the gardens of connoiseurs of roses. Tea roses are not something for a few seasons; they are not really grown until they are five to 10 years old. They dislike being pruned! They resist black spot! When black spot attacks them, they lose their leaves, but not their lives because they are able to put out a new set of leaves at any time and make new growth.

Tea roses do not come in the brilliant colors of the modern hybrid teas we grow today. Teas usually have weak necks and may tend to pout a bit. The best teas, however, bear enormous quantities of blossoms. When cool weather comes in autumn, the colors deepen to gorgeous shades, and the tea fragrance given off by little bits of oil in the petals becomes stronger.

SUITED

Tea roses are well suited for hedges. The plants get off to a slow start, but will grow to be 10 ft. high and more. About the only pruning they need is the removal of the old, old trunks when they cease to produce new limbs. Single specimens of the Cochets, William Allen Richardson, Duchesse de Brabant, Safrano, Mme. Lambard, Bon Silene will eventually need from five to 10 feet square. They are big shrubs.

Since the foliage of tea roses is nearly evergreen, they can be thought of as broadleaf evergreens. The new red shoots and leaves are very attractive, and the green stems are beautiful even when some of our coldest winters bring the leaves down.

For a glorious hedge of these charming old roses, have a ditch dug two feet or more deep. Put in rich compost and fertilizer as you would for single specimens —only more of it. Remember that you are preparing for a huge shrub that will, if properly fed, survive you.

GINA LOLLOBRIGIDA, caught in a secluded cabin, struggles in vain to free herself from the ruthless clutches of Yves Montand in a scene from Joseph E. Levine's "Where the Hot Wind Blows." The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre.

'HOT WIND BLOWS'

Dramatic Picture Coming To Jim

The explosive talents of Gina Lollobrigida and Yves Montand, two of the screen's most exciting personalities, merge in one of the year's most provocative dramas, "Where The Hot Wind Blows," opening Wednesday at the Jim Theatre.

Filmed in Sicily, this Joseph E. Levine presentation dramatically traces the story of a small fishing village and its inhabitants, the most powerful of which, Brigante, as played by Montand, holds nothing sacred but his own personal power. His strong arm hold on Porto Manacore applies to all except the village's untamed beauty, Marietta, portrayed by Miss Lolobrigida, who refuses to be controlled by any man.

Montand, one of the entertainment world's most versatile performers, brings to life the Brigante character made famous by author Roger Vailland in his best-selling novel, "The Law," which won France's highest literary honor, the Prix Goncourt, and was a Book-of-the-Month selection in this country.

FAVORITE

An international singing favorite who rocketed to fame via the song and dance route in France following the end of World War II, Montand received world-wide acclaim for his dramatic performance in "Wages of Fear," which prompted Producer Bar to cast him in the lusty role of the evil Brigante.

A Montand's co-star in the Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer release, Miss Lollobrigida continues to rank as one of the cinema world's most sought after actresses. Since she began her career some 15 years ago, her leading men include Frank Sinatra, Yul Brynner and Tony Curtis among others.

Curtain Call

By B. B. STRON

The very deserving and hard-working cast and crew of "The Seven Year Itch," were entertained with a very delightful party at the home of Ray and Katherine Magruder last Saturday night. They were very ably entertained by Bessie Mullican and Patricia Peyton, who did a take-off on "Seven Year Itch," which was originated and performed by them, entitled "Series of Blackouts." It was superb, and was so well done, that they were called upon to do an encore later in the evening. We may be calling on them later on.

If you are one of those, and most of us fall into that category, who drive by the new theatre site periodically, we know you have noticed that the concrete roof is now on the building, and it is beginning to look like a theatre. Things are shaping up and it won't be too long before we will be enjoying our new "Strauss Memorial Playhouse." Our membership is over the 1,600 mark, and we are so happy to be a part of this wonderful organization.

Our director, Richard Clark, and Pat, have just returned from the Southwest Theatre Conference in Baton Rouge. They are bubbling over with enthusiasm, and were privileged to hear two outstanding speakers during the sessions. Mrs. H. Alwyn Innesbrown, vice - chairman of the International Cultural Exchange Service of the American Theatre Association, spoke to the group on "The Arts in International Understanding." Henry Hewes, drama editor and critic for the "Saturday Review of Literature," gave an address on "How Real Should Theatre Be." Both of these were wonderful speakers and most informative on these subjects. Richard and Pat were also privileged to see two productions during the conference. The LSU Drama Department presented their production of "Look Homeward Angel." Our own Joan Magruder had the lead and gave her usual excellent performance. They also enjoyed the Baton Rouge Little Theatre's production of "Inherit the Wind." An annual award is presented by the Conference and was presented for the second time to Joan Rosenfield of the "Dallas Morning News" for his outstanding reviews. Richard and Pat are home and very enthusiastic about the new play which is about to get into rehearsal, and enjoyed the conference extremely.

Turning out for tryouts for "The Gazebo" at the theatre Monday night were Jo Ann Ussery, V. P. Dalrymple, Carl Slakter. Jo Brain, Pat Davis, Gerry Lester, Margaret Fryant, Charlene Correro, Dot Elmendorf, Judy and Bob Evans, Frances Yeldell, Frances Hunt, Carolyn Gwin, Patricia Peyton, Claude Fuller, Keith Scrogin, Barbara Breeland, Bill Lentz, Joyce Fowler, Gail Ulrich, Arthur Griffith, Patsy Pickett, Marylene Higginbotham, Violet Cotton, Bill Blythe, Betty Sugar, Mr. and Mrs. Sales, Scherck Bogen, Pat Clark, Julius Chan, Mary Gill, Jim Knuckles, W. J. Haddad, Kay McDonald, Sharon Peters, Sybil Boyd, Leigh Gonzales, Katherine Magruder, Ray Magruder, Lallage Feazel, Shady Wall, BB Stron, Jessica Lawn, George Patterson, Dell Moore, Curtis Rape, and Betty Bandy.

'Song Without End' About Franz Liszt

William Goetz' "Song Without End," the story of composer-pianist Franz Liszt whose loves were as tempestuous as his music, opens today at the Paramount Theatre. A Columbia Pictures release in CinemaScope and Eastman Color, "Song Without End" stars Dirk Bogarde, England's top romantic actor, as the musical genius whose vibrant personality and enormous talent swept all Europe before him. Capucine, an amazingly beautiful French model-turned-actress, stars with Bogarde as the Russian princess whose love inspired Liszt.

FEATURED

Genevieve Page is featured in the film's principal supporting role, that of the Countess Marie who, for love of Liszt, left her husband and lived with the composer for several years. Patricia Morison is seen as the celebrated writer George Sand, Liszt's friend; Ivan Desny, as Capucine's husband, who refuses her a divorce when she wants to wed the romantic Liszt; Martita Hunt, as the Grand Duchess who tries to help the lovetossed pair, and Lou Jacobi, as Liszt's concert manager.

While on a concert tour, Liszt meets Capucine, a Russian princess who recognizes his genius as a composer. They fall deeply in love, although she also is married, and her inspiraiton helps Liszt compose music until his fame as a composer eclipses his success as a performer.

EXCITEMENT

"Song Without End" is said to be not only a story of the private life and loves of a genius but it also reportedly projects, in music, the cultural excitement of his time. Some of the greatest music ever written — by Liszt himself; Beethoven, Chopin, Wagner, Bach, Handel, Mendelssohn, Verdi, Schumann and Paganini — pours from the soundtrack.

Interiors of Europe's concert halls, epera houses, palaces and cathedrals background the beauty of "Song Without End." The famed Schonbrunn Palace, the celebrated Schloss Theatre, the Hofburg Palace and Esterhazy Castle are some of the film's spectacular landmarks seen in film's spectacular landmarks seen in the film.

Strange Lot Cast In TV Cowboy Roles

By JOE FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Producers of TV horse operas, ever on the lookout for unique cowboys, have done themselves justice by casting a one-eyed gunman whose aim certainly can't be the best.

The whole idea of having semi-invalids play regular roles in TV shows probably started with "Gunsmoke's" gimpy legged handyman "Chester" and progressed all the way to a gunfighter with one arm.

SIDEKICK

The one-eyed character is Read Morgan, cast as the sidekick of Henry Fonda and Allen Case in "The Deputy."

"The first show I did was the worst because I had nothing to do but play checkers," Read said. "The only other thing I did was play poker with the wranglers between scenes and it cost me $25.

"In the series, I'm a cavalry sergeant who got his eye picked and that's why I wear the patch".

Even though he's only got an injured optic, Morgan says chances are slim that it'll heal up as long as the show is on the air.

"Those things never heal," he laughed, looking towards a full time job. "Everytime I cry, it opens again."

Morgan, playing a cavalry man who's been sidelined with the injury, pals around with Case and helps fill the void on the many shows in which Fonda does not prominently appear.

CAUGHT ON

"I think the character has caught on," Read claimed, admitting his job has been an uphill battle.

"When you come into a series that has been on the air a year with two stars, one of whom has the stature of Fonda, you've got to allow time for character development," he explained. "But, people have started to recognize me, even without the patch."

Morgan was asked if he plays "honest injun," with no peep holes in the patch.

"A lot of people have suggested that I poke a hole in the patch", he revealed. "But, I figured I should play it straight."

Stout fellow that Morgan, not wanting to rig any of his killings.

"Besides, if you're playing the part of someone who has a disability, do it right," he said. "But that I don't mean if the character has lost his leg that the actor should get his own cut off though.

Playwright Due For New Activity

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennessee Williams, playwright, is turning now to musical activities.

The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, announcing his election to membership, disclosed the dramatist has written the lyrics to three songs, "Heavenly Grass," "Lonesome Man" and "Sugar in the Cane."

PORTRAYING Franklin Delano Roosevelt in "Sunrise at Campobello," is Ralph Bellamy. The Technicolor picture which co-stars Greer Garson opens November 13 at the Paramount.

Girl Scout News

A larger group than usual, it seemed, turned out for the fall work-and-play day at Pine Wood. Maybe it just seemed a larger crowd because everyone had to get under shelter eventually. After the opening flag ceremony, in charge of Troop 52, some troops were able to lay trails or hike to the river before the drizzle drove them indoors. Troop 26 turned out to be most ingenious. They had planned to practice pitching tents, so when they finished they stayed under shelter, snug and dry.

Troops 32 and 60, who had only a few girls there, had planned to practice cooking on a reflector oven. Offhand, we'd have said that was something they'd have to postpone, but, they came to the hall bearing a piece of gingerbread as proof that they had carried out plans. How they made the fire burn in the rain, no one knows. They, too, pitched a tent and had shelter from the rain.

It was work and play day, but only a few troops could do the jobs they had agreed upon. Girls of Troop 46 industriously washed windows; Troop 103, Brownies, brought a tree and planted it; Troop 33 straightened all the first aid kits and cleaned up the first aid room. Troop 52 had planned a cookout, so hung a pot on the crane in the fireplace and cooked just the same, toasting marshmallows afterward. Troop 14 had fun toasting marshmallows over the fireplace coals. In spite of the crowd, the Brownies managed some singing games, and rabbits-in-a-trap. As the crowd diminished after lunch, groups found room to play "strut, Miss Suise" and other favorite games.

An intertroop affair was the Founder's Day celebration held by Troops 23 and 37 at Highland Presbyterian Church, meeting place of the hostess troop 23. Girls of Troop 23 opened the meeting with a flag ceremony, after which Mrs. Marvin Carmichael showed slides of Greece and North Africa, where she lived for some time. She displayed examples of Greek pottery, Persian tapestry, and other souvenirs.

The troops had a birthday cake, decorated with yellow roses, in honor of the 100th birthday of Juliette Low, founder of Girl Scouting. Jean Dana, a new member of Troop 23 will remember the occasion because she was invested on that day.

Mrs. B. B. McWhorter, Mrs. A. T. Harrelson, Mrs. Lamar Hayden, assisted Troop 23 with their plans. Girls of Troop 37, Mitchell School, who directed the closing song and game, have Mrs. Morris Chambliss and Mrs. Clyde Bassett as leaders. Both troops took part in the playday Saturday, getting in a few of their planned activities before the rain drove them indoors.

We'll mention other Founder's Day celebrations another time, as well as the court-of-awards, more troop camping, other activities of busy, happy Scouts.

We hope we can count on all Girl Scout adults to vote Tuesday. Also, we hope West Monroe adults in Scouting will attend the Neighborhood meeting at 1:30 at Highland School.

Gay Rainwear

Newest way to brave a rainstorm is to wear one of the new raincoats with a cape collar or silhouette. Then add knee-high boots in gleaming rubber.

Add Zest

Choose your footwear in subtle taupe tones when the costume is a color difficult to match. Try any of the taupes with a purple outfit or one of the bright colors for fall and winter.

Seaway Institute

DULUTH, Minn. (UPI) — Heavy requests from area businessmen for information on ocean shipping, a result of the St. Lawrence Seaway opening, has prompted the University of Minnesota, Duluth, to schedult an annual seaway institute. The first one will be held here Jan. 16-18.

McGuire Club Elects Officers At Maxey Home

Four new officers were elected to the October meeting of McGuire Home Demonstration Club held in the home of Mrs. Harry Maxey, 209 Mallard, West Monroe.

They include Mrs. Don Wills, vice-president; Mrs. Aubrey Gaston, secretary; Mrs. Marvin Howze, treasurer and Mrs. Gus Campbell, reporter.

For the program Mrs. Aubrey Gaston talked on "Spending Our Christmas Dollar," and Mrs. Don Wills gave a demonstration on quick and easy meals.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. Maxey, assisted by Mrs. Tuck Taylor. Those present were Mrs. Barbara Little, Mrs. Gus Campbell, Mrs. B. E. Thigpen, Mrs. Leon Caldwell, Mrs. Wills, Mrs. Reginald Futch, Mrs. Walter M. Krone, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Hilton Tolbird, Mrs. Herbert Peterson, Mrs. K. L. Lindsey, Mrs. Danny Sullivan, Mrs. Marvin Howze, Mrs. Gaston and Mrs. Elenor Ingram.

Saigon Salad

Siagon salad is a fruit-filled dish suitable for dessert. Rinse, halve and seed 1½ cups of Tokay grapes. Pare, core and dice 1 fresh pear. Cut 1 banana in wedges. Pare and section 1 large orange. Toss fruit lightly with a mixture of ½ cup of commercial sour cream, 3 tablespoons of muscatel wine, 1 teaspoon of sugar, ¼ to ½ teaspoon of ginger and a dash salt. Chill. Serve on salad greens topped with ¼ cup of toasted coconut. Serves 5 to 6.

THE HOME SHIFT

Good Season To Garden

By MILDRED SWIFT

The cool days have given gardeners pep. Seems everybody wants to move everything. All summer we've looked at those shrubs, seeing how much better the yard picture would be if this plant was moved to that spot and plant moved to this spot. Remember though, it's best to make a landscape plan. Then you know where you're going. Also, we don't tire our help (often the husband) moving the same plants every year. Maybe "disgust" is a better word than tire. Remember the husband who said his wife's plants should be on wheels.

THE MOVING

Now back to transplanting. Wait until we have some frosts and rains. The nurserymen wouldn't even sell you a deciduous plant or shrub now, because the plants haven't lost their leaves. These plants are moved with roots bare. So - take note from that and wait until plants that lost their leaves have dropped them.

Now for evergreens - these are moved with a ball of earth. That is - if you have the kind of help who can do that. Run-of-the-mill help and husband help (no disrespect intended) seldom can move a good -sized evergreen with a ball of dirt. The plant will stand a better chance (unless it's moved professionally) if you'll wait until it is a little more dormant and the soil has more moisture.

Now, if you wish to buy a balled and burlapped or bucket evergreen, that's different. The plant already has the soil ready to plant. Of course you'll have to water the plant until the rains come. The actual preparation of the hole we've discussed so many times. Just remember don't put any type fertilizer under or around the plant. Wait until the second year before fertilizing. There are no established roots, yet to use the food. Fertilizer would burn the hair roots that are there before they had time to get a "hold" in the soil.

The above all adds up to this: wait for frosts and rains before you move anything. If you are buying, get balled and bucket plants. Leave deciduous plants until later.

SPACING

Wide spacing of plants makes for finer specimens and makes maintenance of beds easier. Also, plants spaced far enough apart can have a small levee built in a ring around them. This need not be more than two inches high. If it's firmly constructed, the area within the levee can be flooded, insuring that every drop of water seeps into the soil instead of running off and doing the plant no good. Such a plan makes watering easier and surer and saves on the water bill.

SNOWFLAKES

Snowflakes (Lencofum) are quaint little flowers that bloom in the spring, if the bulbs are put out now or next month. This is an old-fashioned bulb that our great grandmothers enjoyed and handed down to us. They have narrow, strap like dark green foliage which grows 8 to 10 inches high. The nodding bell shaped blooms of the snowflakes are the size of a small thimble - white in color, with a kelly-green calyx and lighter green dot at the tip of each petal. The flowers are nice for cutting. They bloom all through February. They repeat blooms each year and require no digging or storing. They multiply rapidly, and cutural requirements are very simple. They'll grow in any type soil.

When planting snowflake bulbs, if you'll put several in the same hole the flowers will show up better. This snowflake is not to be confused with the snowdrop which blooms earlier. They're very much alike.

PERMANENT PLEATS

In answer to questions in regard to the TV program on permanent pleats in permanent finished cottons, this is the information Sue Cupit gave: Mix equal amounts of white vinegar and water. Place the garment on the ironing board. Using a sponge, put a small amount of the vinegar mixture on the crease of the pleat. Press until dry. After you've gone all around the skirt, turn to the wrong side and do the same thing. Let the garment hang for four or five hours. Wash. This can only be done with permanent finished cottons. One person misunderstood and tried the process on wool. Results — a ruined skirt.

COATS

Coats are the most dramatic of the new fashions, going all out for whatever style they're featuring. For instance, if a coat is large scale in silhouette, then it's almost tent like. If fitted, then it's completely fitted. Collars are large, rise high or are set wide. Sleeves frequently start at the waist. Flare is unrestrained.

The newest idea for dress up is the party costume in lovely damask brocade. It comes in a choice of deep jewel colors. The dress is made on slim lines with a deep open neckline. Over it is shown a waist length jacket with wide, face framing collar. It's called the theatre or party suit.

When buying a great coat, this is often a big investment. Before you buy one examine the fabric carefully. Crumple the fabric in your hand. If the wool is of good quality, it will be springy. Poor quality wool materials feel heavy, look dull and matted and have little resilience. Check all labels on coat materials. They are required by law to state the fiber content and percentage. Any fiber that is less than five per cent of the total fiber content will simply be quoted as other fabric.

There's a wide choice of beautiful furs this season. You won't have any trouble finding just the one you want within the price range that will fit your pocketbook. Mink, leopard, jaguar, Alaskan seal, nutria, fox and other varieties are being shown.

One of the most beautiful coats of the season is the blonde cloth one with matching blonde fur collar. This fur is usually fox, which is making a big comeback in Paris.

Latin America In Spotlight With Stamps

LATIN AMERICA occupies the philatelic spotlight this week with the announcement of several new issues from this section of the world.

Ecuador has issued a new stamp honoring the 100th anniversary of the Red Cross. It shows the National Red Cross Building in Quito plus a portrait of Henry Dunant, founder of the Red Cross.

Venezuela has stated it will issue a new set of stamps early in 1961 to commemorate the 1960 National Census. There will be nine stamps for regular postage and 13 for airmail.

The World Wide Philatelic Agency, distributors for the United Nations World Refugee Year Organization, was notified by the United Nations Postal Administration about the issuance of a Pan-American set of first day covers. The set includes covers of Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Paraguay and the United States.

The cover design, a stylized pen and ink drawing of a refugee mother and child, is by Jean Cocteau. All of these covers were cancelled on April 7 (except for Columbia which bears the postmark May 24).

The covers may be obtained from your local stamp dealer.

Norfolk Island, in the South Pacific near Australia, commemomorates the 100th anniversay of local government with the issuance of a new 2-3 pence stamp. The stamp is of the large Australian commemorative size. The design features the Annigoni portrait of Queen Elizabeth II at the right and a map of the island with inscription at left.

*Also to be issued by this same island (on Dec. 5) will be a Christmas stamp bearing the same design as the Australian stamp discussed and depicted in this column last week.

The United States Post Office Department reports that the pictorial first day canceliation to be applied to covers bearing the 4 cent and 8 cent Garibaldi "Champion of Liberty" stamps placed on sale Nov. 2 at Washington, D. C., feature an outline map of Italy as it was a century ago and the wording "Centenary Italian Unification."

The Swiss Philatelic Agency announced that a 5 franc United Nations stamp depicting the U.N. Building in Geneva (Palais des Nations) illustrates the Lake of Geneva and Mont Blanc in the background. The stamp is to be used to simplify payment of postage on large packets. At the same time the Swiss Postal Administration declared it is issuing three new service stamps.

Scenes To Remember Recorded By Camera

REMBRANDT STUDY by these youths makes a picture in itself. Permission to take pictures is often obtained if a serious amateur takes the trouble to ask for it. Such was the case with our columnist who shot the above photo in the Rijk Museum in Amsterdam.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

My return from a trip aboard, on which a couple of cameras and a group of photographers were constant companions, left me with a great many photo experiences and impressions, some of which could not be captured on film.

But of one thing I'm certain: A camera and a friendly spirit form a bridge of understanding with people everywhere.

BOND

It explains that you're a tourist, starts friendships, opens doors and acts as a common bond or universal language.

It permits you to join children at play, men at work and people at leisure with a recognizable reason for your presence.

It paves the way, often, to a front row place at activities because people are apt to open a path for a camera which they wouldn't do for merely another spectator.

To be specific, there was the visit to the Rijk Art Museum in Amsterdam. Along with Ralph Miller, photo columnist for the New York World-Telegram and Sun, and in accordance with the rules, we checked our cameras at the entrance and started the tour.

We were impressed not only with the Rembrandts, Frans Hals and other famous Dutch painters but with the people who came to study them. It was Saturday morning and numerous groups of school children were present.

The urge to photograph the youngsters as they clustered around their teachers or lounged on the floor looking at the paintings, became too much. We were directed to a young lady at the information desk. Fortunately she spoke perfect English and we asked how we could get permission to use a camera to show the children's interest in art.

COOPERATIVE

She was very cooperative and made several calls until she found an official with the proper authority and a sympathtic ear. Finally he agreed it could be done under his supervision. However, by the time I retrieved my camera it was past noon and the classes were gone. But now the official seemed to have as much interest in the project as we.

He disappeared for a few moments, reappeared and motioned us to follow him. We soon saw why. He had found a trio of young boys studying a Rembrandt from a sitting position on the floor. When we shot the picture, he was as pleased as we were.

The following day we were in Volendam, a town where many of the inhabitants were native Dutch costumes, lace caps and wooden shoes. As we took pictures, we wondered out loud why some of the girls wore costumes and others didn't. An English-speaking Hollander, standing nearby, explained that only girls from authentic fishermen's families could wear the costumes. Other questions and answers followed.

FRIENDSHIPS

His interest in our cameras and our attention to his information cemented a mutual friendship and soon Ralph Miller and I had a volunteer guide, Henk Rikkers, at our service. He led us to some photogenic spots off the tourist track, introduced us to townspeople, persuaded the children to continue their playing while we took pictures — then took pictures of us with the children.

Our newly-found friend had another treat in store for us and our cameras. On a boat, which he piloted himself, he ferried us to the nearby colorful island of Marken.

House Plants Care Advised

By AUDREY DAWSON

This is an excellent time to get your house plants ready for the winter months. It is a good time to repot all house plants. Select a good potting soil. For good drainage place a layer of broken pottery or rocks in the bottom of the pots. You may select your house plants from those plants out of doors that will be killed by early frost.

Place plants in the section of the house where they will get as much sunlight as possible. Avoid placing them in dark damp areas.

Prune out all dead, diseased and broken limbs on your trees and shrubs that bloom in summer and fall. Do not prune your spring flowering shrubs because the flower buds are on the wood produced the previous season. Pruning stimulates new growth, so prune at different levels throughout the shrub, so it will grown thick and fall from the bottom.

WEIGHT WATCHERS

Very few people are overweight because of bodily disturbances. Most people are fat because they are sitting down on the job of living while continuing to eat as through they were vigorously active. For many little physical activity is needed to earn a living or to keep house.

In this age of the push button and the thermostat one no longer needs the quantities of food for warmth and energy. Wishing that you might lose weight will make it so when your wishbone is supported by a firm backbone. But you can't lose weight on those in between meal snacks. Usually they are high in calories - as an example seven potato chips 110-calories. Average section of fruit pie 350 calories - one average doughnut 120. So if you are trying to lose weight better cut out those TV snacks at night.

STORAGE SPACE

Are you Mrs. Homemaker complaining because you don't have enough storage space. Ask yourself these two questions. Is storage really lacking or isn't it properly used. How long has it been since you cleaned the closets and drawers of items that are never used. Perhaps some of us have white elephants that need to be discarded. A general rule is to discard anything that has not been used within the last year. This applies to clothing, gadgets, toys, magazines and other items that needed at some future time. With a place for eveything and everything in its place, gives a great deal more storage space in the home.

COUNCIL MEMBERS

Remember the council meeting date has been changed this month to Friday, November 11th. It will be a most exciting meeting as the winning club will be awarded a silver service by one of our local feed stores. The club having the greatest per cent of attendance at council meeting during the year will be awarded $10 in cash by Ouachita Valley Fair. The best scrapbook for year will receive $5 cash award. Doesn't it sound as though there will be plenty of surprises - so be sure to bring visitors with you for this meeting. Don't forget the date, Friday, November 11th.

Mrs. Truman Wright, citizenship chairman for the parish Home Demonstration Council, ask that I remind you to go to the polls and vote November 8th. Remember it's one of our privileges here in this good United State and we women surely want to exercise our rights and duties as homemakers.

There are no hopeless situations; there are only men who have grown hopeless about them.

'Ambassadors' Production Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry James' novel. "The Ambassadors," will come to Broadway in the form of a musical before the year is out.

Jim Downey Jr., who has unrestricted rights to the novel, reports that Worthington Miner is writing the libretto, Don Gohman the music and Hal Hackady, the lyrics.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Autumn Tea Roses Best

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Tea rose time is here again. Of course, the old tea roses have been blooming all along since Spring, but it is always in the Autumn that they are at their best. In the cemetery at St. Phillips Church in Charleston, South Carolina, last week, the little white Zephyranthes candida from Chile was in bloom around the large flat grave stones, and Ducheese de Brabant, the fragrant cup-shaped old tea rose had survived the hurricanes and the fires that have overtaken that lovely old city so many times.

BUSHES

The huge bushes of the old-fashioned tea roses are to be found these days , around old houses and in cemeteries, in the run-down and long undisturbed parts of our Southern towns and cities — and in the gardens of connoiseurs of roses. Tea roses are not something for a few seasons; they are not really grown until they are five to 10 years old. They dislike being pruned! They resist black spot! When black spot attacks them, they lose their leaves, but not their lives because they are able to put out a new set of leaves at any time and make new growth.

Tea roses do not come in the brilliant colors of the modern hybrid teas we grow today. Teas usually have weak necks and may tend to pout a bit. The best teas, however, bear enormous quantities of blossoms. When cool weather comes in autumn, the colors deepen to gorgeous shades, and the tea fragrance given off by little bits of oil in the petals becomes stronger.

SUITED

Tea roses are well suited for hedges. The plants get off to a slow start, but will grow to be 10 ft. high and more. About the only pruning they need is the removal of the old, old trunks when they cease to produce new limbs. Single specimens of the Cochets, William Allen Richardson, Duchesse de Brabant, Safrano, Mme. Lambard, Bon Silene will eventually need from five to 10 feet square. They are big shrubs.

Since the foliage of tea roses is nearly evergreen, they can be thought of as broadleaf evergreens. The new red shoots and leaves are very attractive, and the green stems are beautiful even when some of our coldest winters bring the leaves down.

For a glorious hedge of these charming old roses, have a ditch dug two feet or more deep. Put in rich compost and fertilizer as you would for single specimens —only more of it. Remember that you are preparing for a huge shrub that will, if properly fed, survive you.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Many Stories On Narcissus

By MARY JARDINE

Today we will recall some legends about the narcissus which does so well as a garden flower in North Louisiana.

Early Greeks named a favorite wildflower "narcissus" (meaning narcotic) because its heavy fragrance caused drowsiness. In time a legend arose explaining the flower's origin. It told of the vain youth Narcissus who fell in love with his own reflection and stayed enamored by a pool until he pined away and became the flower that bears his name. This is the poet's Narcissus which we sometimes call "pheasant's-eye" for its rimmed center.

Jonquil means "little rush" and refers to the slender leaves of these south European types with fragrant, golden flowers. They traveled to England in the 16th century and early colonists brought them to America.

CULTIVATED

For centuries the Chinese have cultivated Polyanthus narcissus (meaning many flowers) as a sacred flower for their New Year celebrations. Today it is a worldwide favorite for growing indoors in pebbles and water.

The daffodil made its social bow as an asphodel, that became daffodil, and by Sharkespeare's time the "d" had been added. He wrote of "...daffodils that came before the swallow dares ..." Spenser used the playful nickname "daffydowndilly" in his poems. Country folk once gathered these golden blooms to sell as "lent-lilies".

Narcissus flowers have a stiff central corona or crown to protect their precious pollen and attract passing insects. As if to make up for its lack of fragrance, the daffodil crown reaches trumpet proportions, making this flower largest of the "crown jewels" in the amaryllis family.

There are many short-cup daffodils in which the reduced crown resembles a bowl or chalice more than a trumpet. One is the Narcissus incomparabilis once called "great nonesuch daffodil." This species may have been born in some ancient European field from a crossing between the large trumpet and small poet's narcissus. Today we have an infinite variety of hardy short-cup daffodils.

The name Hoop-Petticoat perfectly describes this small narcissus with the stiffly flaring crown. The "petticoat" so outshines the very slender petals that they pale to insignificance. The equally small Triandus narcissus has petals that shoot back from the crown so it is described as "cyclamen-flowered." Both plants make good rock garden subjects.

There are double narcissus flowers in which the crown has split into petals, but these seem to have lost their identity or mark of distinction. The crowned single narcissi truly are jewels, ornamental but impractical, never valued as food or medicine. Their only gift is beauty, and they give it in early spring when winter-weary people are most appreciative.

WISNER CLUB

Wisner Garden Club members presented a beautiful flower show at the Garden Center. Mrs. J. G. Mitchell Sr. starred lavender chrysanthemums in her line mass arrangement. The container selected was a modern gray compote set on a black base. The background pattern was set with placements of aspidistra with furled aspidistra on the left side. Secondary placements were lavender-pink spikes of celosia. The lovely lavendar mums were massed in the center of the design and to the right for balance.

Mrs. H. A. Cruce and Mrs. R. A. Brown tilted her design "Simplicity," a design for the busy home-maker. Using a tall pillow vase set to one side of a rectangular black base they created a long-lasting design of aspidistra leaves placed in an asymetrical pattern with folded leaves at the edge of the container. For a center of interest they used brilliant bronze dahlias. The design was so constructed that the flowers could be changed when they fade or fruit or grapes substituted in the focal area. Very lovely.

Mrs. R. R. Scatts selected a low footed brass container for her asymetrical design with a color harmony of red-violet. Dark green elaeagnus foliage formed the background pattern. Red-violet dahlias followed the established line, terminating in clusters of red-violet grapes over the rim of the container. Excellent for a living room table or buffet.

Don't forget the district meeting Ruston, November 11. Tickets for Mrs. Richardson's lecture are available at the Garden Center or from Mrs. John Tolar, telephone FA 2-5488. Hope to see you there.

Police Official Role Prelude To Bigger Portrayal

NEW YORK (AP) — From police chief to attorney general describes the rise of actor Roy Poole — who is also going from off-Broadway to Broadway.

Poole is police chief in the Jean Genet play, "The Balcony," at the Circle in the Square.

He has signed for the featured role of the attorney general in "Face of a Hero," the Robert L. Joseph play starring Jack Lemmon. It is slated to open at the Eugene O'Neill Theatre Oct. 20.

MOVIEDOM'S 'ENFANT TERRIBLE'

Preminger's Personality Is Discussed By Many

NEW YORK (AP)—Movie producer Sam Goldwyn once fumed: "He tried to take over my job."

Actress Lana Turner: "He is a very difficult and unreasonable man."

An ex-wife: "He got so violent he beat his head on the floor."

The subject of these observations: Otto Preminger, Vienna-born enfant terrible of moviedom.

"I am not a difficult man," he says. "I am a misunderstood man."

All through his career he has been involved in controversy. He challenged Hollywood by releasing "The Moon is Blue" without the industry seal of approval and won at the box office; he has waged battle with the American Legion; he continually fights censors.

Of all this, he says:

"I do only things that interest me. Perhaps the things that interest me are controversial. I don't look for controversy, but being in it seems to be my fate."

Now, at 53, another big fight is imminent. His new movie, "Exodus," was written by Dalton Trumbo, who topped Hollywood's blacklist of those who refused to answer questions from the House Un-American Activities Committee. The American Legion, in particular, has strongly opposed their rehiring.

"I felt that Trumbo was the best man to write the movie and when you see it you will know I am right," Preminger says. "I don't approve of communism. I don't know if Trumbo ever was a Communist. He went to prison and paid his price. I don't think he should be disqualified to work in our society. I gave Trumbo this job and I didn't do it secretly. People can see his name and if they don't like it, they can stay away."

Trained for the law in Vienna, Preminger turned to the professional stage at 21. He came to the United States in 1935 to direct a play and has since been busy in both films and stage. Even his critics respect him as a craftsman who can set a schedule and come in with the product right on the exact date.

Before filming began on "Exodus," Preminger said it would open Dec. 16 in New York. When the cameras started rolling, tickets went on sale and there's already a half million dollars in the till. In a business where a star can catch a cold or get fat because of a broken romance, setting an opening date at such a time is hazardous. But Preminger is a corner-cutter and time-saver in his own specialized way.

For a scene in "Exodus"—filmed in Israel and Cyprus—he wanted to use the Russian compound in Jerusalem but decided it would mean a lot of red tape to get Soviet permission. In the same scene, he wanted 2,000 extras but figured this would strain his budget and involve complications in hiring and payrolls.

He solved the problem by advertising the sale of lottery tickets, offering six free trips to the movie's New York opening and cash prizes totaling 20,000 Israeli pounds. When more than one-fourth of Jerusalem's 160,000 inhabitants gathered in the compound for the lottery, and before the Soviets could object, Preminger started shooting.

Even so, he ran into a snag. There was a huge tree blocking a camera angle. Preminger wanted to cut it down but police intervened. So he spread the word among young onlookers that they could get a better view from the tree. Hundreds of them perched on the branches, weighing them down enough for a clear camera shot.

In dealing with actors, Preminger immediately makes it clear that there's only one way to do something and that's his way. Lana Turner withdrew from the lead in "Anatomy of a Murder," commenting that "it was simply impossible to deal wih Mr. Preminger's unpredictable temper." Preminger says she quit in an argument over costumes.

Preminger's argument with censorship is founded on determined belief that it has no place in democracy. "I don't think cutting one word from a movie like 'The Man with a Golden Arm' will hurt it," he says, "but it is a matter of principle and if you fail to fight for principles, your rights deteriorate. I believe every good work has a built-in morality. What youth seeing this picture about dope addiction would want to take dope?"

Through all the controversy, Preminger has prospered but he pooh-poohs money as a driving force in his life.

"I have a strange attitude toward money. I have always lived the same way. Even having children (he became the father of twins in October, the first children in three marriages) hasn't changed this. I don't think I would be driven to make more money so that I could leave it to them. This is because I don't think you can secure the future for them with money. To look upon money as a final end is wrong.

19 States To Be Eyed By Politicians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nineteen states in which President Eisenhower's vote-pulling power was below his winning national percentage in 1956 will be watched with interest by politicians in the Nov. 8 election.

Among them they have 245 electoral votes, 24 less than the 269 needed to win the presidnecy.

In 1956, when his percentage of the total nationwide popular vote was 57.3, Eisenhower carried 16 of the 19 states and Adlai E. Stevenson the other three. In nine of them, the President's popular vote was less than 55 per cent of the total. These nine have 94 electoral votes.

In the other 10, with 151 electoral votes, the President's vote ranged from 55.1 per cent to 57.2 per cent.

In the other 10, the President's 1956 vote of 462,288 actually was less than half of the total vote of 939,404. Stevenson polled 456,507 and minor parties accounted for 20,609.

The President polled 53.3 per cent of the total vote in Louisiana, 57.7 in Minnesota, 53.9 in Washington, 54.1 in West Virginia, and 54.3 in Kentucky.

Stevenson won 50.1 per cent of the vote in Missouri, 50.7 in North Carolina and 52.4 in Arkansas.

Tennessee has 11 electoral votes Louisiana 10, Minnesota 11, Washington 9, West Virginia 8 Kentucky 10, Missouri 13, North Carolina 14 and Arkansas 8.

States which Eisenhower carried by less than his national margin of 57.3 per cent were California 55.4 per cent, Delaware 55.1, Michigan 55.7, Montana 57.1, Oklahoma 55.1, Oregon 55.2, Pennsylvania 56.5, Texas 55.2, Virginia 55.4 and Florida 57.2.

IMPORTANT FACET

Behind The Scenes At School Eyed

NEW YORK (UPI)—If there's a school-age child in your house, it's vital to know what goes on behind the scenes in the schoolhouse.

That is—what do the school officials tell the teachers about their jobs? And what is expected of the teachers in their relationships with pupils?

Answers to these questions come via the New York City school system. But since schools from coast to coast have identical fundamental aims generally, the answers are of interest to parents everywhere.

The answers are packaged in a booklet the New York school system prepared for new teachers.

In the "definition" section, the school officials have the following to say about a teacher:

"A teacher finds stimulus and challenge in working with all kinds of children. You—the teacher—will soon discover not only that no two classes are alike but also that no two children are alike. Since it will call for considerable resourcefulness on your part, you cannot fail to be stimulated by the variety characteristic of your work.

"It will be a source of strength to realize that you are not devoting your time and energy to something trivial or ephemeral. There is no more important job in the world today than that of education of American youth.

"Your achievements further more will be enduring, for your work will live on in the children you teach."

That's the uplifting part of the statement on teachers and, to a large extent, it's the kind of statement that salutes teachers everywhere, defining the job of a teacher in noble words.

Next come words about how a teacher can best get along in his or her job. The educators put it this way:

"First, you—the teacher—must like children. You must be an acknowledged specialist in your subject field, but unless you like boys and girls you will never teach them successfully.

"If you enjoy living and working with children, if you have a natural and sincere respect for the personality of every child in your class, if you try to understand his outlook and his problems, and if you can share in his hopes and aspirations, you are already well on the way to becoming a good teacher."

This love for the job and love for children, the teachers are told, is something "you must find within yourself." In other words, it's nothing that can be taught.

How to get along with the children—that is, kids like yours and mine? The teachers are told that they will encounter no difficulty if they "approach the children with kindness, understanding, patience and — a smile."

Girl Scout News

A larger group than usual, it seemed, turned out for the fall work-and-play day at Pine Wood. Maybe it just seemed a larger crowd because everyone had to get under shelter eventually. After the opening flag ceremony, in charge of Troop 52, some troops were able to lay trails or hike to the river before the drizzle drove them indoors. Troop 26 turned out to be most ingenious. They had planned to practice pitching tents, so when they finished they stayed under shelter, snug and dry.

Troops 32 and 60, who had only a few girls there, had planned to practice cooking on a reflector oven. Offhand, we'd have said that was something they'd have to postpone, but, they came to the hall bearing a piece of gingerbread as proof that they had carried out plans. How they made the fire burn in the rain, no one knows. They, too, pitched a tent and had shelter from the rain.

It was work and play day, but only a few troops could do the jobs they had agreed upon. Girls of Troop 46 industriously washed windows; Troop 103, Brownies, brought a tree and planted it; Troop 33 straightened all the first aid kits and cleaned up the first aid room. Troop 52 had planned a cookout, so hung a pot on the crane in the fireplace and cooked just the same, toasting marshmallows afterward. Troop 14 had fun toasting marshmallows over the fireplace coals. In spite of the crowd, the Brownies managed some singing games, and rabbits-in-a-trap. As the crowd diminished after lunch, groups found room to play "strut, Miss Suise" and other favorite games.

An intertroop affair was the Founder's Day celebration held by Troops 23 and 37 at Highland Presbyterian Church, meeting place of the hostess troop 23. Girls of Troop 23 opened the meeting with a flag ceremony, after which Mrs. Marvin Carmichael showed slides of Greece and North Africa, where she lived for some time. She displayed examples of Greek pottery, Persian tapestry, and other souvenirs.

The troops had a birthday cake, decorated with yellow roses, in honor of the 100th birthday of Juliette Low, founder of Girl Scouting. Jean Dana, a new member of Troop 23 will remember the occasion because she was invested on that day.

Mrs. B. B. McWhorter, Mrs. A. T. Harrelson, Mrs. Lamar Hayden, assisted Troop 23 with their plans. Girls of Troop 37, Mitchell School, who directed the closing song and game, have Mrs. Morris Chambliss and Mrs. Clyde Bassett as leaders. Both troops took part in the playday Saturday, getting in a few of their planned activities before the rain drove them indoors.

We'll mention other Founder's Day celebrations another time, as well as the court-of-awards, more troop camping, other activities of busy, happy Scouts.

We hope we can count on all Girl Scout adults to vote Tuesday. Also, we hope West Monroe adults in Scouting will attend the Neighborhood meeting at 1:30 at Highland School.

Gay Rainwear

Newest way to brave a rainstorm is to wear one of the new raincoats with a cape collar or silhouette. Then add knee-high boots in gleaming rubber.

Add Zest

Choose your footwear in subtle taupe tones when the costume is a color difficult to match. Try any of the taupes with a purple outfit or one of the bright colors for fall and winter.

Religious TV Series In Full Color Slated

By DORMAN CORDELL

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A minister who believes Christ would have favored television as a means of reaching large numbers of people has made the nation's first color religious TV series.

"I think Jesus would use the techniques that would appeal to the people and make them listen," said the Rev. Ford Philpot of Lexington. "Look at the use he made of parables."

Mr. Philpot's half-hour series, "The Story," soon will appear on 75 to 100 stations across the United States.

The nondenominational program is put together like a commercial offering, Mr. Philpot said.

NEW SET

"We have a new set for every number. That's what makes the program beautiful and appealing—and expensive."

However, there is no solicitation of funds. The money comes from friends and foundations, he said.

It cost about $130,000 to film the first series of 13 programs at Chester Springs, Pa. Filming of another series will begin during the fall.

The White Sisters, formerly with Ted Mack and Arthur Godfrey, are featured on each program. So is a musical group called The Storytellers.

PATTERN

"We try to pattern the theme after the title of the program," said Mr. Philpot. "A businessman or athlete tells his story of testimony and I use a story in my message. We try to be inspirational without being too theological."

Viewers in Lexington, Louisville, Tampa, Wichita, Charlotte and Harrisburg, Ill., already have seen part or all of the first 13 programs.

"We've had requests from the other stations," said Mr. Philpot, "but we had only the one print of the series. Enough prints are almost finished now, however, to take care of the other stations."

In addition to his work with "The Story," Mr. Philpot is an evangelist of the Kentucky Conference of the Methodist Church.

Husband, Wife Are Co-Pastors Of Congregation

EAST GREENVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Religion is a family affair at the Schwenkfelder Church in nearby Palm.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Krieger, both 25, are co-pastors of the United Church of Christ congregation. They take turns every Sunday giving sermons and orders of worship.

The Rev. Mrs. Krieger recently ordained her husband as co-pastor. She was graduated from Lancaster Theological Seminary a year ahead of him.

When the Kriegers met — at the same church of course — he was going to become a teacher, and she a doctor.

"We decided we could be of greater service in the ministry," Mrs. Krieger said.

Group Considers National Office

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —Business managers of 158 Protestant churches have voted to study the feasibility of setting up a national office with a full time staff to coordinate their efforts. The action was taken at the annual meeting of the National Association of Church Business Administrators.

THE PILGRIMS' QUARTET from Southwestern Bible Institute, Waxahachie, Tex., will be the gospel music feature of the Monroe-Ruston sections Youth Rally of the Assemblies of God, scheduled for 7:15 p.m. Thursday at Central Assembly of God Church, Hall and Calypso streets in Monroe. Dr. Klaude Kendrick of the same school will deliver the message. There will be a period of fellowship following the services and refreshments will be served.

REV. L. C. REECE

Rev. L. Reece Is Evangelist At Meet Here

The Rev. L. C. Reece of Jonesboro, Arkansas will be the evangelist for a one-week revival at the First Christian Church, Oak and St. John, beginning this morning, and continuing each evening during the week through Friday. All evening services will begin at 7:30 P.M., and a nursery will be provided for pre-school children.

For eight years prior to 1957, when Rev. Reece was involved in an automobile accident which forced him to give up fulltime evangelism, he served as national evangelist for the Christian Churches and conducted revivals all across the nation.

OTHER FEATURES

Other features will include congregational singing and special music each night under the direction of Jennings Wilkins, assisted by other members of the church. There will be both piano and organ accompaniment for the song services.

Other Christian churches in the area have been given invitations to attend the revival, but all people of the community are invited to attend and participate in these special services. The host pastor is Rev. John O. Stewart.

Bible Course Work Gets Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — American University's television-for-credit Bible course has been awarded $147,700 from the Lilly Foundation to finance a national telecast. It will be administered by the university in cooperation with the National Capital Area Council of Churches.

Canvas Shoes

Teens love the canvas shoe, especially in white. The girl who likes a change of pace will add a second pair of sneakers in camo or green. Wearable tan or black can also improve the fashion look of her footwear wardrobe.

A Letter To Our NON-CATHOLIC Neighbors

Catholics and non-Catholics, as a rule, get along right well together.

Our families live amicably next door to each other and often become lifetime friends. Our sons fight side by side on every battlefield. We work together in the same shops and factories... root for the same baseball teams... do business with one another in a spirit of mutual trust every day.

In these and other phases of everyday life, there is a close association which promotes understanding and respect. But in religion... where this close association does not exist... there is often a regrettable lack of understanding and a corresponding absence of good-will.

Many people, for instance, have all sorts of false ideas about Catholics and the Catholic Church. They actually believe that Catholics worship statues... that many sordid things happen behind convent walls... that Catholics do not believe in the Bible... that Catholic teaching is pure superstition and the Mass nothing but mumbo-jumbo.

All non-Catholics, of course, do not believe such things. But enough of these false rumors are in circulation to cause some sincere and intelligent non-Catholics to look upon the Catholic Church with suspicion, and to reject Catholic truth without even troubling to investigate it.

It is for this reason that the Knights of Columbus, a society of Catholic laymen, publishes advertisements like this explaining what Catholics really believe. We want our non-Catholic friends and neighbors to understand us and our Faith, even if they do not wish to join us. We want them to know the Catholic Church as it really is... not as it is so often misrepresented to be.

It is also important to you personally, however, to inquire into the teaching of the Catholic Church. For unless you do, you cannot know whether the Catholic Church is or is not the Church established by Jesus Christ for your salvation. You cannot intelligently accept or reject Catholic teaching until you investigate it and know what it really is.

A distinguished Catholic author has written "A Letter to a Friend Not of My Faith." This letter has been published in the form of a pamphlet which can be read in a few minutes... and which gives a remarkably clear and beautiful explanation of Catholic beliefs, worship and history. More importantly, it gives a blue print of Christian living which will deeply move you whether you accept or reject the Catholic viewpoint.

This highly interesting pamphlet is well worth the few minutes it will take you to read it. We will be glad to send you a copy free, on request. It will come in a plain wrapper — and nobody will call on you. Write today... ask for Pamphlet No. KC-23.

MOVIEDOM'S 'ENFANT TERRIBLE'

Preminger's Personality Is Discussed By Many

NEW YORK (AP)—Movie producer Sam Goldwyn once fumed: "He tried to take over my job."

Actress Lana Turner: "He is a very difficult and unreasonable man."

An ex-wife: "He got so violent he beat his head on the floor."

The subject of these observations: Otto Preminger, Vienna-born enfant terrible of moviedom.

"I am not a difficult man," he says. "I am a misunderstood man."

All through his career he has been involved in controversy. He challenged Hollywood by releasing "The Moon is Blue" without the industry seal of approval and won at the box office; he has waged battle with the American Legion; he continually fights censors.

Of all this, he says:

"I do only things that interest me. Perhaps the things that interest me are controversial. I don't look for controversy, but being in it seems to be my fate."

Now, at 53, another big fight is imminent. His new movie, "Exodus," was written by Dalton Trumbo, who topped Hollywood's blacklist of those who refused to answer questions from the House Un-American Activities Committee. The American Legion, in particular, has strongly opposed their rehiring.

"I felt that Trumbo was the best man to write the movie and when you see it you will know I am right," Preminger says. "I don't approve of communism. I don't know if Trumbo ever was a Communist. He went to prison and paid his price. I don't think he should be disqualified to work in our society. I gave Trumbo this job and I didn't do it secretly. People can see his name and if they don't like it, they can stay away."

Trained for the law in Vienna, Preminger turned to the professional stage at 21. He came to the United States in 1935 to direct a play and has since been busy in both films and stage. Even his critics respect him as a craftsman who can set a schedule and come in with the product right on the exact date.

Before filming began on "Exodus," Preminger said it would open Dec. 16 in New York. When the cameras started rolling, tickets went on sale and there's already a half million dollars in the till. In a business where a star can catch a cold or get fat because of a broken romance, setting an opening date at such a time is hazardous. But Preminger is a corner-cutter and time-saver in his own specialized way.

For a scene in "Exodus"—filmed in Israel and Cyprus—he wanted to use the Russian compound in Jerusalem but decided it would mean a lot of red tape to get Soviet permission. In the same scene, he wanted 2,000 extras but figured this would strain his budget and involve complications in hiring and payrolls.

He solved the problem by advertising the sale of lottery tickets, offering six free trips to the movie's New York opening and cash prizes totaling 20,000 Israeli pounds. When more than one-fourth of Jerusalem's 160,000 inhabitants gathered in the compound for the lottery, and before the Soviets could object, Preminger started shooting.

Even so, he ran into a snag. There was a huge tree blocking a camera angle. Preminger wanted to cut it down but police intervened. So he spread the word among young onlookers that they could get a better view from the tree. Hundreds of them perched on the branches, weighing them down enough for a clear camera shot.

In dealing with actors, Preminger immediately makes it clear that there's only one way to do something and that's his way. Lana Turner withdrew from the lead in "Anatomy of a Murder," commenting that "it was simply impossible to deal wih Mr. Preminger's unpredictable temper." Preminger says she quit in an argument over costumes.

Preminger's argument with censorship is founded on determined belief that it has no place in democracy. "I don't think cutting one word from a movie like 'The Man with a Golden Arm' will hurt it," he says, "but it is a matter of principle and if you fail to fight for principles, your rights deteriorate. I believe every good work has a built-in morality. What youth seeing this picture about dope addiction would want to take dope?"

Through all the controversy, Preminger has prospered but he pooh-poohs money as a driving force in his life.

"I have a strange attitude toward money. I have always lived the same way. Even having children (he became the father of twins in October, the first children in three marriages) hasn't changed this. I don't think I would be driven to make more money so that I could leave it to them. This is because I don't think you can secure the future for them with money. To look upon money as a final end is wrong.

19 States To Be Eyed By Politicians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nineteen states in which President Eisenhower's vote-pulling power was below his winning national percentage in 1956 will be watched with interest by politicians in the Nov. 8 election.

Among them they have 245 electoral votes, 24 less than the 269 needed to win the presidnecy.

In 1956, when his percentage of the total nationwide popular vote was 57.3, Eisenhower carried 16 of the 19 states and Adlai E. Stevenson the other three. In nine of them, the President's popular vote was less than 55 per cent of the total. These nine have 94 electoral votes.

In the other 10, with 151 electoral votes, the President's vote ranged from 55.1 per cent to 57.2 per cent.

In the other 10, the President's 1956 vote of 462,288 actually was less than half of the total vote of 939,404. Stevenson polled 456,507 and minor parties accounted for 20,609.

The President polled 53.3 per cent of the total vote in Louisiana, 57.7 in Minnesota, 53.9 in Washington, 54.1 in West Virginia, and 54.3 in Kentucky.

Stevenson won 50.1 per cent of the vote in Missouri, 50.7 in North Carolina and 52.4 in Arkansas.

Tennessee has 11 electoral votes Louisiana 10, Minnesota 11, Washington 9, West Virginia 8, Kentucky 10, Missouri 13, North Carolina 14 and Arkansas 8.

States which Eisenhower carried by less than his national margin of 57.3 per cent were California 55.4 per cent, Delaware 55.1, Michigan 55.7, Montana 57.1, Oklahoma 55.1, Oregon 55.2, Pennsylvania 56.5, Texas 55.2, Virginia 55.4 and Florida 57.2.

IMPORTANT FACET

Behind The Scenes At School Eyed

NEW YORK (UPI)—If there's a school-age child in your house, it's vital to know what goes on behind the scenes in the schoolhouse.

That is—what do the school officials tell the teachers about their jobs? And what is expected of the teachers in their relationships with pupils?

Answers to these questions come via the New York City school system. But since schools from coast to coast have identical fundamental aims generally, the answers are of interest to parents everywhere.

The answers are packaged in a booklet the New York school system prepared for new teachers.

In the "definition" section, the school officials have the following to say about a teacher:

"A teacher finds stimulus and challenge in working with all kinds of children. You—the teacher—will soon discover not only that no two classes are alike but also that no two children are alike. Since it will call for considerable resourcefulness on your part, you cannot fail to be stimulated by the variety characteristic of your work.

"It will be a source of strength to realize that you are not devoting your time and energy to something trivial or ephemeral. There is no more important job in the world today than that of education of American youth.

"Your achievements further more will be enduring. for your work will live on in the children you teach."

That's the uplifting part of the statement on teachers and, to a large extent, it's the kind of statement that salutes teachers everywhere, defining the job of a teacher in noble words.

Next come words about how a teacher can best get along in his or her job. The educators put it this way:

"First, you—the teacher—must like children. You must be an acknowledged specialist in your subject field, but unless you like boys and girls you will never teach them successfully.

"If you enjoy living and working with children, if you have a natural and sincere respect for the personality of every child in your class, if you try to understand his outlook and his problems, and if you can share in his hopes and aspirations, you are already well on the way to becoming a good teacher."

This love for the job and love for children, the teachers are told, is something "you must find within yourself." In other words, it's nothing that can be taught.

How to get along with the children—that is, kids like yours and mine? The teachers are told that they will encounter no difficulty if they "approach the children with kindness, understanding, patience and — a smile."

L. D. McIntyre

BASTROP (Special) — Luther D. McIntyre, 30, a native of Bastrop, died Friday morning in Hobbs, N. M., where he had lived for the past several years.

Funeral services will be held at 3:15 Sunday at the Van Avenue Assembly of God Church with the Rev. J. E. Allen officiating. Burial will be at the Carter Cemetery under the direction of Blackwell-Golden Funeral Home.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Farris McIntyre, one sister Mrs. Walter Doell, New Orleans and one brother, Murray McIntyre, Los Alamos, N. M.

Businessmen Set To Teach College Classes

Nearly 50 businessmen and women from the Twin City area will become teachers for two days next week when they take over accounting classes at Northeast Louisiana State College.

This group is part of a larger assemblage of approximately 100 businessmen who will take over all business classes at the college Nov. 14 and 15.

Wilbur L. Perkins, head of the division of Business Administration at Northeast, said the program is a renewal of an idea that was discontinued two years ago. He added that faculty and students had requested the reinstatement of the program.

Twenty minutes will be taken for lectures on businesses and business problems. A 30 - minute question and answer forum will fill the latter part of each class period.

Perkins said interested persons would be welcome to sit in on any of the classes.

Aged Negro Dies In Burning Bed

WINNSBORO (Special) — John Brown died in his bed late Friday night as a result of it catching fire.

The 90 - year - old Negro, who lived with his son - in - law Rev. W. M. Mathis at 1404 Blanson St., was alone in the house at the time. Neighbors saw the smoke and called the fire department.

Allen Robinson, fire chief, said the fire was reported at 11:20. It was extinguished with the only damage being to the bed clothing and two holes burned in the floor.

Robinson said that the fire was probably caused by smoking in bed.

Dr. Brasher Earle, Franklin Parish coroner, said that death was due to suffocation from smoke.

Religious TV Series In Full Color Slated

By DORMAN CORDELL

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A minister who believes Christ would have favored television as a means of reaching large numbers of people has made the nation's first color religious TV series.

"I think Jesus would use the techniques that would appeal to the people and make them listen,' said the Rev. Ford Philpot of Lexington. "Look at the use he made of parables."

Mr. Philpot's half-hour series, "The Story," soon will appear on 75 to 100 stations across the United States.

The nondenominational program is put together like a commercial offering, Mr. Philpot said.

NEW SET

"We have a new set for every number. That's what makes the program beautiful and appealing —and expensive."

However, there is no solicitation of funds. The money comes from friends and foundations, he said.

It cost about $130,000 to film the first series of 13 programs at Chester Springs, Pa. Filming of another series will begin during the fall.

The White Sisters, formerly with Ted Mack and Arthur Godfrey, are featured on each program. So is a musical group called The Storytellers.

PATTERN

"We try to pattern the theme after the title of the program," said Mr. Philpot. "A businessman or athlete tells his story of testimony and I use a story in my message. We try to be inspirational without being too theological."

Viewers in Lexington, Louisville, Tampa, Wichita, Charlotte and Harrisburg, Ill., already have seen part or all of the first 13 programs.

"we've had requests from the other stations," said Mr. Philpot, "but we had only the one print of the series. Enough prints are almost finished now, however, to take care of the other stations."

In addition to his work with "The Story," Mr. Philpot is an evangelist of the Kentucky Conference of the Methodist Church.

Husband, Wife Are Co-Pastors Of Congregation

EAST GREENVILLE, Pa. (AP) —Religion is a family affair at the Schwenkfelder Church in nearby Palm.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Kriebel, both 25, are co-pastors of the United Church of Christ congregation. They take turns every Sunday giving sermons and orders of worship.

The Rev. Mrs. Kreibel recently instal'ed her husband as co-pastor. She was graduated from Lancaster Theological Seminary a year ahead of him.

When the Kriebels met — at the same church, of course — he was going to become a teacher, and she a doctor.

L. D. McIntyre

BASTROP (Special) — Luther D. McIntyre, 30, a native of Bastrop, died Friday morning in Hobbs, N. M., where he had lived for the past several years.

Funeral services will be held at 3:15 Sunday at the Van Avenue Assembly of God Church with the Rev. J. E. Allen officiating. Burial will be at the Carter Cemetery under the direction of Blackwell-Golden Funeral Home.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Farris McIntyre, one sister Mrs. Walter Doell, New Orleans and one brother, Murray McIntyre, Los Alamos, N. M.

Businessmen Set To Teach College Classes

Nearly 50 businessmen and women from the Twin City area will become teachers for two days next week when they take over accounting classes at Northeast Louisiana State College.

This group is part of a larger assemblage of approximately 100 businessmen who will take over all business classes at the college Nov. 14 and 15.

Wilbur L. Perkins, head of the Division of Business Administration at Northeast, said the program is a renewal of an idea that was discontinued two years ago. He added that faculty and students had requested the reinstatement of the program.

Twenty minutes will be taken for lectures on businesses and business problems. A 30 - minute question and answer forum will fill the latter part of each class period.

Perkins said interested persons would be welcome to sit in on any of the classes.

Aged Negro Dies In Burning Bed

WINNSBORO (Special) — John Brown died in his bed late Friday night as a result of it catching fire.

The 90 - year - old Negro, who lived with his son - in - law Rev. W. M. Mathis at 1404 Blanson St., was alone in the house at the time. Neighbors saw the smoke and called the fire department.

Allen Robinson, fire chief, said the fire was reported at 11:20. It was extinguished with the only damage being to the bed clothing and two holes burned in the floor.

Robinson said that the fire was probably caused by smoking in bed.

Dr. Brasher Earle, Franklin Parish coroner, said that death was due to suffocation from smoke.

Special Meeting Slated Monday

FERRIDAY (Special) — Two important subjects will be discussed at a special meeting of the Parent - Teachers Assn. in the Ferriday Elementary School cafeteria at 7 p.m. Monday.

The subjects are: What do schools expect of parents? and What do parents expect of schools?

There will also be a demonstration of the new tape recordings used in classrooms.

Parents are urged to attend the meeting, visit the teachers and classrooms of their children, and air any local school problems they wish to discuss.

Population Jumps

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The government says this island nation's population has jumped from 2,553,025 to 4,070,000 since 1955.

TO LAST A LIFETIME

CONTEMPORARY home of solid masonry built on a 102 ft. corner lot in lovely Oak Park . . . There's a tremendous mahogany - paneled den besides 3 bedrooms . . . and there are 2 ceramic tile baths. All this is centrally air conditioned and heated. Would be a nice assumption.

LOOK HERE!

YOU CAN look Monroe over and never find a better buy . . . or a better home . . . than this lovely 2-year-old, 3 bedroom, 2 bath brick on Glenmar Ave.! There's also a den . . . it's air conditioned and you'll really enjoy the cozy warmth of central heating in the cold days just ahead. There's ideal financing . . . either an assumption or new FHA loan, with low down payment. Let's see this one today!

TIRED OF RENTING?

HERE'S a terrific deal . . . you can move into this brick home on exclusive Park Ave. with only $50 down. There's wall-to-wall carpeting throughout, and the living room's unusually pretty with its large, large window and beautiful fireplace. See it right away!

A WORLD OF LIVING

CAN BE yours in this spacious, older 2 bedroom home . . . it's on a beautiful corner lot with trees . . . Southside . . . excellent financing available. We'd be glad to show you anytime.

THE TAPPAN KITCHEN

WILL SELL this home . . . but other features you'll like in this 3 bedroom brick are . . . 1½ ceramic tile baths . . . central heating . . . marvelous Southside location near schools . . . and there's ideal financing . . . $600 moves you in on an assumption!

LOVE A GRACIOUS SETTING?

HERE IT IS . . . Rainbow Drive in beautiful Landsay's Countryside Addn., WM. Amidst trees and rolling hills, we offer this lovely 3 bedroom, 2 bath brick home (with hardwood floors) for only $15,200. It's an outstanding buy . . . let us show you today!

LOW DOWN PAYMENT?

EMERSON ST.

SO VERY attractive is this 2 bedroom brick home. Among its features: 11x18 living room with mock fireplace; floor furnaces; shower over tub; blinds; 10 x 11 breezeway. $500 down makes the move.

EMERSON ST.

THERE'S grace and room to spare in this older home. It includes: separate dining room; monowall bath with shower over tub; 2 air conditioners; oak floors. Lot is 75 x 150.

SOUTH NINTH ST.

JUST 2 years old is this 3 bedroom brick home with: ceramic tile bath; pine paneled cabinets with Formica tops; central heating; attic fan. Pay owner's equity and assume loan.

SOUTH GRAND ST.

SPACE is no problem in this 3 bedroom home of over 1300 sq. ft. It offers: living room with fireplace and bookcases; separate dining room; den; 2 baths with shower over tub.

McCAIN DR.

AN eye-catcher is this new 3 bedroom brick home. It has: 1¾ baths; kitchen with built-in oven; utility room with sliding door plus outside storage. Lot is 100 x 150. Selling for FHA appraisal.

Off Norris Lane, W.M.

TWO FOR the price of one! This acre lot has 2 houses. The 4 room house is furnished and there's a large 5 room house also. Total price is $7,000.00.

LAKESHORE DR.
ON BAYOU

FOR tomorrow's happiness, see this spacious 3 bedroom, 2 bath home. It features: 24 x 24 living room overlooking bayou; den; forced air heating; attic fan; blinds; drapes. Bayou lot is 100 x 300 and has bar-b-que pit and boat landing. Price is amazingly low, so hurry.

SOUTH FIFTH ST.

NO SOAP nor scrub brush needed here as this 2 bedroom and den home is amazingly neat. It offers: floor furnaces; shower over tub; attic fan; blinds; drapes; ventahood. Lot is 57 x 150 (corner). Pay owner's equity and assume $59.00 payments.

COLUMBIA RD.

THE Stradivarius of home is this almost new 3 bedroom brick. Its 1757 sq. ft. of living area includes: 2 ceramic tile baths; 14 x 31 living room; kitchen with built-in oven and range; central heating and air conditioning; 9 x 30 patio. It's situated on an acre lot. It's quality throughout.

RAYVILLE
LINDA ST.

YOUR best deed is a deed to your own home and a mere $200 plus closing costs buys a 3 bedroom frame and brick home. It contains: wall furnaces, attic fan, and insulation in attic. Redecorated recently, it's most attractive.

FORSYTHE AVE.

ITS LOCATION is tops—near Neville High and Shopping Center. This older 2 bedroom home has carpeted living room and dining room; floor furnaces; attic fan; built-in dishwasher. Lot is a corner 100 x 145.

LAKESHORE DR.
ON BAYOU

LOUNGING in luxury will be simple with this spacious 3 bedroom brick home on its 100 x 320 bayou lot. The lovely home features: spacious living room with mock fireplace and picture window facing bayou; tile bath; central heating and central gas air conditioning. Also, there are: concrete patio; bar-b-que pit; underground watering system; concrete steps to bayou; boat dock of treated lumber. All this can be yours for lovelier living, as owners have been transferred.

GLENMAR AVE.

PERFECT in every detail is this distinctive 2 bedroom brick home of over 2700 sq. ft. Among its desirable features: carpeted living room and master bedroom; kitchen with Tappan oven and range; 2½ ceramic tile baths; large birch paneled den with wood burning fireplace; central heating and air conditioning. Lot is 100 x 150. For a quality home, let's see this one.

OAKLAWN DR.

OWNER'S gone and house needs occupant! This 3 bedroom brick home includes: monotile bath with shower; central heating; formica cabinet tops; 220 wiring. Pay owner's equity and assume $67.00 payments.

FORSYTHE AVE.

CHARM and comfort will be yours with this 3 bedroom brick home. Its features include: 1½ baths with shower over tub; panel ray heating; attic fan; blinds; 220 wiring. 75 x 150 lot is well landscaped. Moderately priced, so hurry.

PEYTON DR.

SECURITY makes good living and this 3 bedroom home offers security. It has: den; wall heaters; shower over tub; attic fan; blinds. Lot 71 x 240. Pay owner's equity and assume payments below $60.00.

RAYMOND DR.
ON BAYOU
